SCOTT STAMP & COIN CO.
18 East 23d St., New York, N. Y.

$111,847.30

We have taken almost 3000 lines elsewhere in this paper in order to advertise, as widely as possible, the public auction of our entire stock of stamps listing at $111,847 30, unpriced stamps being estimated at a fair price.

All prices quoted refer to Scott's 1907 Catalogue, in most cases, and are for reference only. All lots will be sold without reserve to the highest bidder except the last lot of the sale which is reserved at $100.00.

Send bids on bid slip, elsewhere in this paper, and make all arrangements with B. L. Drew & Co.

HOLTON STAMP COMPANY,
62 Devonshire St., - BOSTON, MASS.

Do You Collect U. S. Envelopes?

If you do send us a list of what you want and its 10 to 1 we fill 85% of it. If you collect 'em entire use Bartels' numbers; if sq cut use Scott. Our prices except on the scarcer and rarer varieties are "half cat." or about that.

We have a beautiful copy of the $5 Proprietary perfect in every way; what in our auction catalogues we call a gem.

The first offer of $100 gets it. This is a special bargain.

We shall not speak about auctions in this space until after Christmas.

REVENUE MELANGE.

BY CHARLES A. NAST.

Phelps' Auction Sale.

The most important event in the world of revenue collecting during the past month, was the auction sale of B. L. Drew & Co. held on Oct. 20, in New York. At this writing I have not yet been able to get a priced catalog, and therefore can only speak in general terms. The collection itself was remarkable for the great number of M. and M. rarities it contained, many of which I have not seen offered for sale in this way in recent years. Unusual interest centered in certain lots of which only one or two copies of the stamps are known to exist.

The 1c Maryland Match on watermarked paper, listed by Scott at $100.00 brought twice the catalog price or to be exact $202.00. Just why it should be priced in the catalog at all is one of the unexplained mysteries of that very necessary work, since no one has ever had a copy to sell heretofore. Among other desirable things was a proof of the 4c black Wilson, of which only one copy of the stamp proper is known. I should have liked very much to have been present at the sale, as there were points enough uncovered to make a fine story.

Record breaking prices were the rule, all showing that the tendency to stiffen prices on fine M. and M. stamps is a lasting one and general throughout the list except in the very common varieties. Immediately after the sale, taking its showing as a sound basis, Geo. J. Carter issued his price list of U. S. Revenues, and as he prices only what he actually has to offer, it must be taken as authority until some one else with greater experience and a larger stock comes along. I reiterate the oft-expressed conviction that Match and Medicine stamps will some day be the most popular class of U. S. stamps.

The Collecting of Permits.

Some months ago I wrote an article for this paper on the collecting of "Permits," and my present correspondence still bears witness to the effects of that article. But I must add a few words now of general interest. Do not cut these square, as no one collects them except in their entirety. To guard against deception it is absolutely necessary that the name of the sender be included in some way, whether it be on the face of the cover or within the folder. This is the mark of genuineness. In sending for exchange one to another do not include those issued by magazine agencies, insurance and investment companies, medical, department store, or shoe factory productions, since these are sent broadcast throughout the land and they are within the reach of every one interested. What is wanted is the permits of small towns which are used only locally. These are the hard-to-get kind. Again those covered by stamps are worthless, since it no longer is a "permit" if postage is necessary. But those surcharged by changing the price, as for instance 2c on 1c, or vice versa, are legitimate varieties and are especially interesting if not valuable. Many of the permits stamped with postage are remainders and used only for convenience. It takes 2,000 of a kind before any "permit" is mailable at any post office. For convenience and general conformity the following types have been agreed upon:

Type I, "Paid in Money" without frame } 3d
" II, " " " " with frame } Class
" III, City and State" without frame
" IV, " " " with frame
" V, "Fourth Class Matter."

This last type so far as known (and only about 30 varieties have been noted to date) comes only without the frame. Should any be found with this single lined square around the letters and figures, they would be classed as type 6. Of course there are innumerable varieties of each type, but they are of too minor importance to cite here. Some collectors I know, are collecting only the number one (1) of each city. Not a bad idea either, as many of these are bound to have historic value in the future, though many of the rarest and prettiest are in later numbers. The first one as a rule is severely plain.

Some are really art productions and only a prosaic mind can pass up a collection of permits without expressing pleasure. Cleveland, O., No. 52, presents a picture of the Pilgrim father. Other notable artistic "permits" are New York No. 198; Columbus, Ohio, No. 18; Chicopee Falls, Mass, No. 1; Chicago Nos. 71 and 277; Pittsburg No. 63 is slightly humorous, while Richmond, Va., No. 12 is the most unique. It is entitled "What is in your barn" and has two doors which open out displaying the grain within.

The smallest permit thus far seen and it would be difficult to make one smaller and have it contain the permit, sender's name and address besides the written address, is Baltimore No. 45, size 2¼ inches by 1½

FIFTY YEARS OF PHILATELY.

THIS most interesting book, written by Mr. Chas. J. Phillips, is a history of the firm of STANLEY GIBBONS, Ltd., now Capitalized at $650,000.

Founded in 1856, the firm celebrated its jubilee in 1906, and this book gives all the interesting details of how the business has grown, step by step, from a little room in a druggist's shop to two entire buildings in London, and nearly an entire floor in a New York skyscraper, and employing directly and indirectly over one hundred and twenty-five people.

This book forms a most interesting addition to any library, philatelic or otherwise, and in addition to the firm's history, it contains a treatise on "Stamp Collecting as an Investment," by Mr. Phillips, who is acknowledged by the philatelic world to be the keenest and most accurate judge of stamps alive to-day.

inches, and is issued by Sharpe & Dohme.

Then there is also an invert, Chicago No. 277. So you see we are fast emulating our brother collectors of pre-cancelled stamps. The largest collection at present is, I believe, that of Geo. F. Duck, which runs up in the thousands and is contained in half a dozen large size invoice books. In conclusion let me say, do not get it in your head that these have a great monetary value, because they have not. They are interesting as presenting a phase of postal service and their collection gives genuine pleasure and recreation which is as much as any other branch of philately can promise, when not actuated by sordid or mercenary motives.

Two Finds Reported.

My friend, Lieutenant Fred V. S. Chamberlain of the U. S. army, is now stationed at Huston, Texas, assigned to the recruiting service. In the discharge of his duties he is often called away to other points in his department. Being an ardent collector he has made good use of his leisure moments and opportunities. Incidentally I may mention that he lately acquired a Confederate provisional local Richmond, Texas, on the original cover. (More information regarding this would be welcome.—EDITOR.) Owing to its extreme rarity it is not priced in the catalog. But what interests me most is the fact that he has lately found quite a number of brass cotton stamps of the slim letter "K" variety. I have referred to these once before in this department. The fact that they are made of brass and not printed on paper does not detract from their value or interest. I believe these arrow shaped stamps lend themselves admirably for room decoration. Every stamp collector who has a den can use these as an appropriate ornament without danger of having them deteriorate as would be the case with paper stamps. E. B. Sterling of Trenton, N. J., has a carefully prepared list of these, which will some day in the near future be published.

A New Hydrometer Variety.

There is a new variety of Hydrometer stamps out according to J. W. Prevost. It is like all others of its class except that the signature in this case reads "J. W. Yerkes."

Two Proprietary Cancellations.

C F. Rothfuchs sends two stamps with original cancellations. The surcharge on the 1c red proprietary I could not unravel, that on the 4c mauve proprietary bears the picture of a pine tree, but no date or initials. Quite a number of firms who manufactured pine balsams and cough mixtures used this symbol during the war times.

New Provisional Proprietaries.

I have lately discovered two new provisionals not contained in the Boston Book. Unfortunately neither is in first class condition, but that does not make any difference as to their status as provisionals.

My first is that of Hall & Ruckel on the 1c red proprietary and consists of the initials "H & R—Mar 17—1863" in blue ink, all in single-lined circle 22mm.

My second is that of Lawrence & Cohen playing card and consists of the initials "L & C—1864" in black ink, in the well known type 4, but on the 5 cent red inland exchange. It is imperforate.

Meat Inspection Labels.

H. B. Bromley sends some used meat inspection stamps of the kind furnished by the government, made of soluble gelatine on a cheese cloth base. In this case the imprint is still very legible on the cloth fibre. No. 173 is "Hammond, Standish & Co." The "Star" is Sullivan of Detroit.

Gabriel Ferrara writes from Puerto Rico that the meat inspection law of June 30, 1906, is in force there as here. He sends two very pretty stamps, circular in shape, one in blue, white letters "No. 3" being two inches in diameter. The other is star pointed all around, cut out with a die evidently in orange color, white letters, "No. 80." The highest number of this series thus far seen is "455," which was sent by E. A. Andrews of Trenton. While they have little philatelic value, they are interesting in that they are printed by the government and each is a different type as to size, shape and color of ink. They are especially interesting to collectors of "Tax Paids."

"Internal Revenue Paids."

Speaking of "Tax Paids" reminds me of a curious wrapper sent me by Irving Kelsey. It was a little puzzling at first since nothing contained in the inscription indicated the nature of the goods, and I thought at first it was some medicinal preparation. It was printed in vermilion ink on manila paper in six lines:

Internal Revenue Paid
2 cents per pack
Keep perfectly dry, free from moisture, and in temperature from 70 to 90 degrees

It was not mixed flour or cereals or food product. It was simply the covering on the outside of a box containing a dozen decks of playing cards and was notice to all interested, that the within decks were properly stamped.

New York State Revenues.

It is a long while since anything was said or written about these revenues. I am indebted to B. D. Forster of New York for giving me the opportunity to examine a selection of choice stamps of this class. The very scarce 4 cent red brown of the first issue, rouletted, comes in two distinct shades. The rose shade being the color of the 50 cent brown. Imperforates, and these are authenticated by being in blocks of four, are found in the 2c black and the 10 cent green. The new issue comes perforated. The uncut (cancelled) stamps are very rare in this state. The last printed list I saw did not include the $10.00 and $20.00, both of these are easily obtainable in the used state.

English Medicine Stamps.

In a vaudeville selection bought at auction some time since, I found two of these medicine stamps, which stand in the same relation to English revenues, that our M. and M. stamps do to the United States. I have long thought of broaching the subject, and just as I get ready to take up the matter, I am informed by a New York correspondent who has a large collection of these, that Morley's fiscal monthly is exploiting these stamps. Near to the official records and on the stamping ground so to speak, we may look for something interesting along this line. My own are 3 pence "R. M. Hobbs" and the 6 pence "Hooper's Pills." More of this later.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centres. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—We are indebted to Dr. Warren L. Babcock for two clippings from Detroit papers relating to stamp collecting. One of these from the Detroit Free Press of Sunday, Dec. 30, is a very ambitious article. The article is entitled "Fascination of Stamp Collecting" and across the top of the eight column page is found the portraits of John Kay, Theodore P. Ladue, Rev. John A. Crowe, S. E. Heineman, Tremont Woodruff, Howard Beck and Dr. Warren L. Babcock. The article describes in detail the great collections of which Detroit boasts, and gives an interesting description of philately as it exists in the Lake City. Three illustrations of stamps on the original covers including no less than seventeen New York "Post-Office" adds to the effective make up of this article which takes nearly an entire page.

—Handsome New Year's cards are acknowledged with thanks from H. A. Meyer, Herman W. Boers, P. M. Wolsieffer, M. Sereque, F. P. Brown and Wm. Brown (Salisbury, Eng.).

—The very convenient monthly calendar issued by Warren H. Colson which has adorned the office desk of the WEEKLY during the past months, has been brought up to date with the arrival of January. A handsome engraving of the 10c St. Louis first plate, type C is illustrated, and makes a very handsome effect. A card of New Year's greetings is also acknowledged with thanks.

—The "Cross on Stamps" story is having a wide reading. We have received clippings from Geo. L. Baldwin, Sioux City Journal, Wm. L. Hamilton, Jr., Newwark Call and Geo. H. Vose, N. Y. Commercial.

20,000 Varieties

Absolute necessity compelled me to break up the fine $25,000 collection mentioned in my advertisements last season, so many demands being made for selections. This collection, with another nearly as good, has been broken up and mounted, ready to send out, according to countries, in approval books holding 100 stamps each, giving a selection of 20 000 varieties from Abyssinia to Zululand complete. Prices are marked according to Scott's catalogue, and except in rare cases 50% discount is allowed. Most dealers allow 10% or not more than 25% disct. For the grade of stamps offered by me you can't possibly find their equal at the price. Try me with a want list. Don't forget the reference.

F. S. PARMELEE,

—The following officers were elected to serve the ensuing year at the annual meeting of the Garfield-Perry Stamp Club of Cleveland, Ohio, held Dec. 20th, 1906: President, J. R. Wilson; Vice President, C. E. Kendal; Secretary and Treasurer, A. W. Weigel; these gentlemen, together with Alvin Good, W. H. Waterbury, W. H. Field and Dr. W. H. Kinnicutt, compose the Board of Directors. This club will celebrate its 17th anniversary next March, meetings having been held continuously since March, 1890. Meetings will be held at 512 Caxton Bldg., evenings of January 10th and 24th, and all local philatelists, not already affiliated, are extended a cordial invitation to attend.

—P. M. Wolsieffer, sales superintendent of the American Philatelic Association, is felicitating himself over another stroke of good fortune, as he regards it, that saved a circuit from loss at Louisville, Ky., recently, when the mail-bag that carried the circuit, met with an accident; a street-car ran over the pouch badly mangling some of its contents, but beyound muddying the edges of some of the books of stamps, no damage was done to the stamps which were all found intact. This narrow escape was almost as providential as some of those to circuits in the San Francisco disaster.

—We have received the catalogue of B. L. Drew & Co's. 175th sale. A choice lot of 20th century, U. S. and revenues, Uruguay and selected foreign stamps are offered. While there are no great rarities in the sale a really attractive lot of stamps is offered.

—"I enclose a page from the Detroit Free Press which may prove of interest to you if you have not already received a copy. It is good to see the increasing interest in things philatelic, and I believe the WEEKLY is entitled to a few back-pattings for it."—R. M. FOLSOM. (The WEEKLY will be glad to receive a share of the credit for the good work being done. The National Stamp Committee is however the power that is moving things.—EDITOR.)

—Stamp clippings are acknowledged with thanks from John Hermansader, Geo. L Toppan, T. C. Mann, Edw. Howard, Mrs. H. R. Southworth, Chas. W. Gustafson (4), Alfred Dawson (2), Wm. Uhlmann and Hermann Wolff.

—The special committee on taxation of the Massachusetts Legislature, has decided to report favorably upon a measure to place a tax on stock transfers. Should this be carried it will mean an issue of state revenues for Massachusetts, after the order of the set recently put into use in New York State.

—At the last meeting of the Chicago Philatelic Society held in December, the following officers were elected to serve during the year 1907: President, H. N. Mudge; Vice-President, C. E. Severn; Secretary, P. M. Wolsieffer; Treasurer, C. F. Mann; additional members of the governing board: Messrs. Leonard Michael, Dodd, Johnson, Fowler and Dahl. A committee was appointed to arrange for the annual banquet.

—Julian Park calls our attention to the fact that a recent news gleaning erred in stating that the Philatelic Advertiser was the organ of the Esperanto-speaking collectors of the world. The Columbus Philatelist has the honor of serving in the capacity referred to. This society is in a very prosperous condition.

—Wholesale price list No. 41 of the Marks Stamp Co., has been received. Dealers may have a copy on application.

—The following is taken from a recent issue of the Stockholm Daily News: At the first December meeting of the Philatelic Society of Sweden, the president, Consul Sixten Keyser, exhibited and described the collections of postage stamps belonging to H. R. H. Prince Gustaf Adolf of Sweden, and which the Prince had kindly loaned for the entertainment of his fellow members. The collections were pronounced as very interesting and contained a great number of rarities. Many of the German states were found complete. The report of the sales department, which has been so efficiently managed by Hilmer Djurling, editor of the Swedish Phil. Journal, was also read at this meeting. It showed that the value of stamps circulated since last December, reached a total of 151,486 kronor. The sales amounted to 28,634 kr. and gave the treasury of the Society a net profit of 1,585 kr.

—Christmas greetings in the form of a handsome card have been extended to the WEEKLY by B. F. Egan. We also thank John A. Solomon for an office calendar, kindly sent us.

—Shirley H. Weber has been elected president of the philatelic society recently organized at the University of California. In a recent letter, enclosing a renewal of subscription, Mr. Weber kindly sent in two yearly subscriptions. Such evidences of appreciation are very gratifying.

—We have received from Morgenthau & Co. a catalogue of the firm's 7th sale to be held Jan. 29-30, at the Collectors Club, New York City. A fine lot of Spain and colonies is listed, the property of J. Leon of San Juan, Porto Rico, in which is the nicest lot of Fernando Po stamps ever offered at auction, so the firm claims. The second night will be given to the sale of Nevis plates, the property of J. M. Andreini. Mr. Andreini has for many years been a specialist in the stamps of this colony and had succeeded in procuring a fine collection. Some plates will be sold entire while others will be broken to accommodate specialists. The catalogue is well worth careful study.

—Fred Michael vouches for the truth of the statement that a Chicago pawnbroker refused a loan of one dollar on a stamp collection, in which the United States department stamps were almost complete, including a fine unused copy of the ninety-cent Justice.

—P. M. Wolsieffer is preparing to hold the King auction sale at New York City; and it is probable that Mr. Wolsieffer will take occasion to call on stamp folk while away.

A MONSTER SALE.

These words fitly describe the great auction sale that is slated for the evenings of Jan. 30 and 31, when B. L. Drew & Co. will sell the entire stock of stamps of the Holton Stamp Co.

The catalogue value of the stamps to be sold is in the neighborhood of $100,000, and no reader can fail to notice the advertising in connection with this sale to be found in this issue of the WEEKLY.

The entire stock has been put into lots suitable for both collectors and dealers and the description accompanying each lot will enable one to bid intelligently upon anything that may be desired.

This company is closing up its business and the entire stock will be sold without reserve. A catalogue for reference purposes will be gladly mailed upon application by addressing B. L. Drew & Co.

EDITORIAL.

Much Interest Inspired—The report that the United States stamps may be overprinted under the provisions of the new contract with the post-office names, has attracted the attention of the newspapers throughout the country. The press in the large cities particularly has devoted many columns of news space to a discussion of the philatelic effect of the proposed innovation; this is a matter for gratification in the broader view that philately has developed so much importance publicly, that it easily enters into the vista of the newspaper editor. This presiding genius shows a growing tendency to recognize stamp collecting as deserving a place among the standard hobbies or recreations of the times. We believe that in the main, these newspaper statements have been more intelligent, in view of the somewhat complicated aspect of the subject, than any remarks on questions having philatelic import that have been considered in the general press in the past. The reporters have faithfully transcribed the views of some of the philatelists that they interviewed. In the course of one newspaper article, J. W. Scott's editorial, as it appeared in the Metropolitan Philatelist and which was commented upon in the WEEKLY, appears in its entirety. In another metropolitan daily, a most sensible resume of the philatelic possibilities of the new scheme is given. We quote from the article, commending its findings as sound and reasonable: "A man who has collected stamps for thirty-three years said, in speaking of the problem before him, that he will undoubtedly get each one of the stamps issued by the twenty-six important post-offices—that is, those with the name engraved upon them—and he thinks this will be the course followed by all collectors at first. He does not think much interest will be taken in the stamps with the printed names, at least not in the beginning. . . . Other collectors say that, as in the case of the precanceled stamps, there will be an association composed exclusively of collectors who gather presidential post-office varieties. Precanceled stamps, indeed, are similar to the contemplated issues. These are regular U. S. stamps surcharged with the name of the city in which they are issued."

Souvenir Issue—One of the most noticeable comments on the new plan, as proposed, is found in the Sierra Daily Times, a bright, breezy sheet published in Sonora, California, which says: "Sonora may be advertised next year with souvenir postage stamps. . . . As Sonora comes under the head of presidential post-offices, this city will have a stamp of its own." Sonora has a population just over the 2,000 required for distinction and the newspaper quoted was inspired in so happily referring to the prospective stamps as a souvenir issue. The enterprise that turns a general plan to individual account so neatly should be appreciated. If the plan is adopted and each city has stamps of its own, there will be no further demand for special or commemorative stamps, if the thought of the paper just named is accepted generally.

Oversea Opinion—Abroad the news of the anticipated wholesale overprinting elicits various opinions, but the disposition is to treat the question with a seriousness that somehow seems to lack edge in this country, so far as the expressions of collectors show. Recently, Major Evans devoted his leader in the Monthly Journal to the subject; and among his observations on the "coming flood," we find the following: "It is not for us to express an opinion as to whether this very drastic remedy is, or is not, out of all proportion to the evil with which it is intended to cope; neither is it our intention to abuse the United States authorities for doing what they have a perfect right to do, or to suggest that the varieties thus produced are unworthy of the attention of philatelists; we wish merely to point out the results, as far as collectors are concerned. There will be no logical reason for excluding any of the contemplated series from specialist collections and specialist catalogues; practical reasons may easily be found. The stamps with the names of the offices engraved upon them may almost be regarded as upon a similar footing to the British, French and German colonials in uniform designs with the names of the various colonies inserted." Etc. . We say that it is a wholesome sign of the times, when it is asked, not, Is it philatelic? but, Is it practical? Such an opinion may not accord with the highest sentiment of the stamp collector but its operation in fact would conserve the strength of the hobby.

Uncertainty—It is not always safe to predict how collectors will meet a philatelic contingency or how literally they will reduce theory to practice. One cannot but admit that the plate-letters on the one penny red (and other stamps) of Great Britain have solid claims for inviting collecting regard and support; yet they are but rarely plated, perhaps we are safe in saying, even in Great Britain, itself. Here are examples of real differences existent on the plates that are ignored generally, when theoretically, they should not be. Perhaps, a similar condition will be created in regard to the overprinted names. We believe that many collectors are postponing the decision as to their course and are giving the possible inundation little anticipatory thought; they will await the appearance of the real stamps before they will render judgment and attempt to cope with the situation.

A Possibility—We hinted some weeks ago that a reader in Washington who perhaps is in a position to speak with some authority, said that it was by no means assured that the measures under notice would be adopted. The same reader when asked recently if he had any reason to revise or amend his former remarks, writes to say that his opinion is stronger now than before that the system as outlined will not be adopted actually. He adds that objections to and weaknesses in the plan are multiplying and that the department's intention may be wholly dissolved by the discouragements that have been brought to bear on the scheme.

A Bright Bit—We are told that in the course of the play, "The Man on the Box," the dramatization of Harold McGrath's novel of the same name, Henry E. Dixey, the leading man, interpolates the lines: "I love her more than my collection of postage stamps," and that the general titter that follows the assertion, shows that the audience in good part must have an appreciation of the potency of philately's enchantment.

We Recognize the Sentiment—A newspaper article tells "How to Make Unique Souvenir Post Cards with Stamps." Bits of stamps are arranged artistically to represent various sorts of harmonious combinations, on the cards, and the effect may be emphasized by a few deft touches of gold paint or water-color. The article which is illustrated, closes with the following sentence that proves the writer to have a strong philatelic instinct, even though it may be undeveloped and undisciplined as yet: "There is a peculiar sentiment about postage stamps that inspires the maker or receiver of the cards with more than ordinary interest, and a certain value is realized that is not manifest in any other post card novelty."

Enough for All—A large "find" of Luxemburg stamps, issues of 1877-95 made by the postal authorities of the Grand Duchy, has been sold by the postal authorities to a speculator for the sum, approximately, of $30,000. The extent of the hoarding may be realized from this amount. Prices of the stamps represented in the parcel naturally will be affected to some degree.

TWO PHILIPPINES COVERS.

We have been shown by Mr. Siddall two interesting covers issued under the revolutionary government of the Philippines. One of these covers has a 2c "Correos" stamp with the lined background as described and illustrated in our issue of Oct. 13, also the 8c "Certificado" also described and illustrated in this same article. The envelope has all the ear-marks of having passed through the posts and makes a very interesting cover.

The other specimen submitted is of questionable character. A frank, the production evidently of a rubber stamp, has been applied to the envelope, but whether before presented for mailing or not would be difficult to determine. The shape is much the same as a regular stamp would be, the words "REPUB FILIPINAS" being placed at the top in a curved label, while under it is the name of the province which is undecipherable. In the center of the stamp are the rays seen on the most of the revolutionary stamps. The frank is printed in blue. We are indebted to Mr. Siddall for the privilege of inspecting these covers.

BARGAINS FOR 1907.

We do not publish a dozen bargain prices on as many stamps, as "leaders" to tempt business our way, and then sell others at fancy figures, but prefer to make every price a bargain price and every day bargain day.

Stamps on approval at 60% discount from Scott tells the story. Common, scarce or rare—60%—U. S. or foreign, postage or revenue.

If you have not yet bought of us, it's time we were acquainted. Reference please. [13

CATALOGUE

OF THE STOCK OF

THE HOLTON STAMP COMPANY

TO BE SOLD AT AUCTION

...BY...

B. L. DREW & CO.,

7 WATER ST. (ROOM 503), BOSTON, MASS.

JANUARY 30 & 31, 1907

ELKS' HALL, 24 HAYWARD PLACE

BOSTON

TERMS OF SALE

As is well-known, it is the intention of the Holton Stamp Company to retire from business and dissolve their corporation. This they cannot do if they have any stamps on their hands; therefore, as it is impossible for them to take anything back from us, we cannot extend to our clients their usual return privileges. In view of this fact, we have used extra care in the descriptions, and the Holton Stamp Company have done the same in preparing the lots. It is our honest opinion that we have NEVER issued a catalogue more free from errors, or more just in descriptions than this. Still, every lot is sold without recourse, and NO lot will be taken back under any circumstances whatever.

We advise bidders, who can, to come on to this sale in person, or to employ some friend or dealer to examine lots for them and execute their commissions. WE will execute any bids sent us, but only with the understanding that no lots shall be returned, as above stated.

Dealers who let this chance pass, are asleep to their opportunities. Never before has the occasion arisen where they can buy so much, or such fine stock, at their own price, or so many chances to get practical control of certain items.

The sale also offers opportunities to collectors, who have not been overlooked.

THE ENTIRE SALE WILL BE ON EXHIBITION at the office of the Holton Stamp Company, 62 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass., from January 15th until they are sold.

Lots purchased at the sale will be delivered at their office, also. Our own office will be closed on January 30th and 31st and February 1st in order that we may give our undivided attention to this sale.

All lots bought are to be taken up and paid for within three days. Parties known to us or who may be well recommended may have their goods forwarded for immediate remittance. Unknown parties may send cash deposit of 5% of their bids and pay accounts before goods are shipped.

Bidders by mail should bear in mind the large number of lots and their importance, and send their bids early. The labor of examining the bids will be great, and in case of two or more bids on any one lot at the same price being received, the first bid received will have precedence.

The Right is Reserved to withdraw any lot offered. All lots will be forwarded by registered mail or express at the buyer's expense, unless otherwise ordered, and at the buyer's risk.

B. L. DREW & CO. .....1907.

GENTLEMEN:—Please buy for me at your auction sale to occur Wednesday and Thursday Evenings, January 30 and 31, 1907, the lots I enumerate below.

I annex the highest price I will pay for each lot, it being understood that you will buy for me as much below such limit as possible. Any lots you may secure for me I will take up and pay for within three days, in accordance with the terms of sale.

The following are in finest possible condition.

On lots No. 770 to 834 inclusive the highest bidder on the first lot has the option of taking all or as many as he elects of the remaining lots of the same stamp at his bid in numerical order. The balance unsold to be then put up and sold with the same privilege for the remaining lots of the same kind. Consequently THESE lots will be sold at so much per stamp, not per lot. Mail bidders should state the number of lots they will take.

WARNING.

Fake O. B. Philippine stamps are on the market. If asked a high price, you are probably offered a fake. Your only protection is in the price. I offer practically every kind ever legitimately used at less or not to exceed the price of the ordinary unsurcharged stamp, and will send selections on approval to A. P. A. or I. P. V. members on receipt of request, and to others on cash deposit. Have the new issue, too. No price-lists, and no unused stamps supplied. [39

UNITED STATES REVENUE SOCIETY.

A NEW SOCIETY ORGANIZED FOR THE PROMOTION OF THE INTERESTS OF U. S. REVENUES.

Collectors of, and lovers of the study of United States revenue stamps will be pleased to learn that there is in process of formation an United States Revenue Stamp Collector's Society. There is a crying need of such an association from many points of view. Our revenues today have a very uncertain value. We have no complete official or recognized authority that prices all our revenues. Collectors of United States revenues are scattered all over the United States with practically no guide, no bonds to hold them in unison, and no method by which they may be kept in touch with each other.

This is not so with collectors of postage stamps. They have their standard catalog which maintains a standard price, they have societies without number, both local and national. In the way of literature, they have newspapers, magazines and hand books, correspondent clubs and the like.

As one collector puts it,—"we don't want this society confounded with the dozen school-boy affairs started and killed in a single season." We want real collectors. If you are interested in United States revenues and mean business, send your name to the temporary secretary, asking him to consider you for charter membership.

Among the objects of this society are the following: To place and maintain a true value on these stamps. To promote the collection of these most interesting issues of our country. To bring revenue stamp collectors in closer touch with each other. To organize an Exchange Department for the benefit of its members. Many of us have duplicates which we would like to exchange or sell. Then, there are many stamps which we do not possess which we would like to obtain. Some of us no doubt, have stamps in our album which we would like to replace with a better specimen. All this may be accomplished through the Exchange. Another hope of the promoters is,—in the future to issue a collector's catalog listing all U. S. revenues, with their true value stated.

Some of you collect the general issues only, others, match and medicine; some collect tax paids such as cigar, tobacco, snuff, beer and cigarettes, others lock seals, tin foils, inspection stamps, &c. There is room for you all in this society. "U. S. Revenue" will cover all revenue stamps issued by the United States Government. It is a hope of the promoters that a department for each class may be established.

We use the name found at the head of this article because it appeals to us as the best of the various ones suggested. The matter of name can be settled in accordance with the plan herein outlined. Thanks to Dr. Davis a splendid work has been done in arousing an interest in a national federation of U. S. revenue collectors. No less than forty applications for membership have been received, the appended list showing the results of Dr. Davis' campaign and applications being received almost daily:

W. S. Aldrich, New York, N. Y.

John Wilson, Wapakoneta, Ohio.

The above will be considered charter members of the society upon remittance of dues for the coming year. Any objection filed against an applicant will result in withdrawal of application pending investigation by governing board. Any U. S. revenue collector desiring to join as a charter member, should apply at once to Dr. H. A. Davis, 1622 Welton St., Denver, Col.

To effect a temporary organization it has been necessary for some one to assume the lead and work out a provisional set of rules. Sec. Davis has received voluminous correspondence and out of the mass of matter certain lines of action have been decided upon.

No less than a dozen names have been suggested, the two most popular being the United States Revenue Stamp Collectors' Association and the United States Revenue Society. The committee believes that a short name is best if it expresses the scope of the society's work. Here then is a brief synopsis of rules:

Object—To unite the collectors of U. S. revenues in one body for mutual co-operation.

Membership—Any collector of U. S. revenues over 21 years of age eligible, after name has been posted one month without objection.

Officers—President, two vice presidents, secretary, treasurer, (elective), constituting a Board of Governors; Supt. of Sales and Attorney (both appointive).

Committees—Expert (to pass upon forgeries, discoveries and unlisted varieties), Literature, Publicity and Obituary.

Dues—$1 per year. No initiation fee.

Meetings—Annually in connection with A. P. A. convention.

Under these provisional rules you are invited to send $1 to Secretary Davis, vote upon the society name preferred and also vote for the five elective officers: President, 1st Vice President, 2nd Vice President, Secretary and Treasurer. A plurality vote will elect in the absence of constitutional provisions.

No canvass for officers has been made. It is hoped that any elected will be glad to serve until next July. Otherwise forward declination to Secretary Davis. Vote for any you please from the above list, but here are a few suggestions in alphabetical order:

President—Geo. J. Carter, N. Y., C. H. Eagle, N. Y., J. A. Steinmetz, Pa.

1st Vice President—The same nominees.

2nd Vice President—W. S. Aldrich, Max Isenstein, F. S. Smith, all N. Y.

Secretary—Dr. Holland A. Davis, Col.

Treasurer—W. T. Kimball, Mass.

Polls will be closed Jan. 21.

The Governing Board should immediately draft a set of rules governing the sales department and appoint a committee to report a constitution at the Denver convention. The Governing Board can in the meantime legislate for immediate needs.

The rules under which the new society will be organized are based on the letters received from interested collectors, but are in no sense of anything but a provisional nature.

Let your dues and your ballot on name and officers be sent immediately to Dr. H. A. Davis, 1622 Welton St., Denver, Col., to whom we are indebted for much of the above matter.

We Wish You All a Happy New Year!

THE FINEST KNOWN COPY OF THE "MILBURY."

FROM THE COLLECTION OF FRANK J. DUTCHER, ESQ.

We intended doing this by sending you a Souvenir Post Card like cut above, but the Postmaster General has decided that they cannot be mailed. However, we have a few left which had not been addressed, and if any of MEKEEL'S readers would like one of them, we would be pleased to mail them one, enclosed in an envelope, upon application.

The Milbury is one of the rarest of the Postmasters' Provisionals, and this is the finest copy we have ever seen. It was found by a young lady bookkeeper in Worcester among the papers of her uncle, to whom it was addressed, and was sold by us about ten years ago.

QUERIES AND COMMENT.

Edited by C. E. SEVERN.

Our readers are cordially invited to ask the editor for any information desired concerning stamp collecting. Should a personal reply be desired kindly enclose postage. This department is for the beginner as well as the advanced collector. Address, C. E. SEVERN, 820 Oxford Bdg., Chicago Ill.

F. H. M.:—This correspondent writes: "Can you give me any information in regard to the following stamp that I found lately? It is the 1 cent blue, type III of 1857–60 issue. When soaking it off of the original envelope, I was surprised to find that after the stamp came off there was another thickness of thin hard paper on the envelope that was perforated all around in the same manner as the stamp. Please inform me if this stamp was printed on double paper. There is another stamp, the 4-cent black and green proprietary stamp, 1871–75 issue, that I found in the same condition. Any information will be thankfully received." So-called double paper is found, occasionally, in United States issues, but we believe that such paper always is merely two thicknesses of the paper on which the stamp is printed, by reason of the blank margin outside the stamp pane of the sheet having been doubled under, perhaps through having been caught by the gum in some manner, thereby making, to all appearances, a double paper variety. This theory would not account for the existence of a second stamp square that differed in the character of the paper; but, from our correspondent's description, it does not necessarily follow that the thickness of paper adhering to the envelope is unlike the paper of the stamp. It was not until 1870 that double paper was really adopted by the government, although experiments with a view to checking s amp cleaning were made before that time. The grill impression was the first preventive utilized, but various suggestions illustrated by samples embodying the innovations were submitted to the notice of the postoffice officials. Examples of these precautionary measures are shown as essays of the stamps of 1861, but not of any issues before that period, we believe. Any variety, such as described by our correspondent, could scarcely be advanced as a real double paper variety; it was not until the 1870 issue that double paper was employed by the government. As an explanatory note, it should be added that the 6-cent and 24-cent, 1870, while not catalogued as on double paper, have been proved to have been issued. The revenue stamp mentioned may be included under the category of these remarks.

A. P.:—It takes an expert eye that has ranged on a wide variety of stamp printings to distinguish between the New Zealand stamp, No. 2 in the catalogue, London print, two pence blue, and No. 19, two pence blue, printed at Auckland, New Zealand. As you say the descriptions of differences that you find recorded are "too indefinite to be of any practical use," but we cannot advance any test that is readily to be grasped because the differences that do exist are not pronounced. Gibbons' says that the two stamps "can only be distinguished by the fineness of the impression and by the colour." The London impression is one that shows forth admirably, as the printing was done by Messrs. Perkins, Bacon & Co., while the printing at Auckland was not so effectively produced. The color of the two pence London print is of exceptional richness, and has more body to it, seemingly, than that of the colonial printing; yet to try to lodge in the mind of the collector the difference in the two stamps is almost impossible, as the marks of distinction are intangible and elusive. Comparison makes the differences clear, but the London print, two pence blue, is a scarce stamp, and not to be had always at the first beck.

H.:—Your inquiry: "British Guiana is a foreign country, situated in South America, yet why does the United States consider or class that country as a domestic money order office in sending money orders to that place?" was referred to a post-office head who says, in explanation, that by special postal convention entered into by this country and British Guiana the arrangement was made. As further examples of similar postal procedure, the postal parcels conventions that the United States and various other countries have ratified may be cited; the results are beneficial to both parties of the contract. That postal union countries may make these business pacts is shown by New Zealand's adoption of the rate of one penny (two cents) a half ounce for letters to this country, as mentioned in this paper recently, but in this instance the rate has not been granted by this country to New Zealand.

Subscriber:—This reader says: "I have in my collection a copy of the 1 centavo stamp of Colombian Republic, 1901, surcharged with three lines on the lower part of the surcharge instead of two. The end of the plate with which the surcharge was made evidently was used on the stamp in question. Can you give me any information on the subject?" The cause of the peculiarity on the stamp as attributed by you to the impression of the end of the form holding the surcharge in place for printing the rows of "S's" is correctly given, no doubt. The control marks on these issues show different variations, due to the haste and perhaps carelessness in the preparation of the stamps and application of the overprint. A minor variety, such as described, carries not the usual weight, or affords the same satisfaction as one in a country of more stable issues.

T. R. B.:—The proofs of the private die proprietary stamps of the civil war period came into circulation in the various ways that are open in such cases. We know of no irregularity in connection with their distribution. It is known that proofs exist of some stamps that were not actually printed, although the dies were ready for delivery. The failure in business of the firm, or the omission of the necessary payment to the government, accounted for such cases.

E. D. D.:—Your stamp is a fiscal or revenue stamp of France. Foreign revenue and telegraph stamps are interesting, and many are very handsome. Spaces for these are not provided in our albums, neither are they listed in the catalogues, but if they appeal to the collector there is no reason why he should not preserve such stamps in a blank album of some sort, regarding the specimen as a sort of side collection. A few dealers make a specialty of revenues and telegraph stamps of all countries; and they have adequate stocks of the stamps, while other dealers could send out little parcels of the stamps in question, which accumulate in the course of business, although they make no effort to carry a representative line of them.

All collectors in Boston and vicinity are cordially invited to attend the open exchange night and Auction of the Boston Stamp Exchange at Elks' Hall, Hayward Place, Boston. Tuesday evening, Jan. 8th. Auction at 8 o'clock. See last week's issue for catalogue. From 7 to 8 o'clock and after the sale there will be an open meeting for the sale and exchange of stamps. Stamps may be brought and displayed by owners in any shape they desire, and collectors put themselves under no obligation by participating.
We want collectors, members of local societies and especially those not members of such to come and meet each other, and have a good social time.
A snap auction of lots and stamps of too small value to advertise will be offered and offer bargains to less advanced collectors.
We plan to hold such meetings twice monthly if sufficient interest is shown to make it practical.
Remember the date and help us make the opening night a success by your presence.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES.

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Any information regarding new issues will be gratefully received and acknowledged. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. The figures in parentheses refer to the previous number of the WEEKLY in which the same country was noticed

UNITED STATES (835).—The Precanceled Stamp Club reports the following new precancels:

Florence Sta., Northampton, Mass., between lines, set 1902, 1 to 13c.

Holyoke, Mass, between double lines, set 1902, 1 to 15c, also 13c inverted.

BRAZIL (835).—We have been shown the 50c in the new set by Hermann Focke, in used condition.

Prof. M. Loewy sends eight varieties of the new set in unused condition, which gives a better opportunity to observe and appreciate their beauty. We now chronicle the set as far as seen.

Adhesives.

10r slate, Aristides Lobo.
20r purple, Benjamin Constant.
50r dark green, Alvares Cabral.
100r carmine, Wandenholk.
200r blue, Deodoro da Fonseca.
300r olive gray, Floriano.
400r olive, Prudente.
500r violet black, Campos Salles.
700r orange brown, Rodriques Alves.
2000r green, head of Liberty.

L'Echo reports that 1000r and 5000r stamps are also to be issued. Also that a full set of officials is to be issued, all in the same design and colors, with portrait of Alfonso Penna.

L'Echo chronicles a new set of postage due stamps, inscribed "Taxa Devida," with the figure value in the centre. There is to be also a plentiful supply of envelopes, letter cards, post cards and news bands. We chronicle the officials, and the postage due stamps as far as the colors are known, leaving the 20r, 500r, 1000r and 2000r for a later issue.

The Monthly Journal reports that the 1000r stamp of the old issue has been seen on watermarked paper.

CANADA (835).—Charles Bailey has also sent us a copy of the new type of precancelled stamp for use on third class matter, noted in No. 835.

CYPRUS (801).—A new value is reported by the foreign papers.

Adhesive.

10pa yellow and green.

DANISH WEST INDIES (787).—Gibbons' Weekly reports that the Colonial office at Copenhagen has destroyed by fire all remaining stock of Danish West Indian stamps, envelopes, post cards and letter cards, including the surcharges of 1905. The stock of stamps now on hand only includes the current set. New stamps with portrait of King Frederick VIII are in preparation.

DOMINICAN REPUBLIC (834).—J. E. Dennett has shown us a copy of the "Un Centavo" on 10c unpaid, in which the "D" of "Dominicana" is missing. This is a variety of Scott's No. 280.

ECUADOR (834).—Hermann Focke sends us a pair of the 5c fiscal stamps of 1901-02, surcharged with "Correos—Un Centavo," in an oval, same as Scott's No. 231. This stamp was chronicled in No. 822 on the authority of L'Echo.

EGYPT (835).—Ewen reports having seen the 2m postage due stamp on chalky paper.

FRENCH CHINA (834).—The new surcharges chronicled in No. 834, appear to have been very badly done, and in some cases inverted. Ewen says that the following have been seen with inverted surcharge:

Canton, 1c, 25c, 1f.
Hoi-hao, 1c, 2c.
Kouang-Tcheou-Wan, 5c, 20c.
Mong-tseu, 5c, 20c.
Pak-hoi, 1c, 25c.
Tchong-King, 1c, 2c.
Yunnan-Fou, 10c, 40c.

Ewen also says that a few stray sheets of the 1892 set were surcharged, in addition to the 75c and 5fr stamps noted in No. 834. These include the following:

Canton, 4c, 50c.
Hoi-hao, 30c.
Mong-tseu, 50c.
Tchong-King, 50c.
Yunnan-Fou, 30c.

Careful students will note that in the chronicle in No. 834, the line "stamps of 1893," should be eliminated.

GIBRALTAR (830).—Ewen says the new 1d carmine on white was to be issued Jan. 1, 1907, but that the 2½d blue on white paper is not be expected for several months.

HUNGARY (766).—The 1f, 2f, 3f, 5f, 10f, 20f, 25f, 30f, 60f and 1kr postage adhesives, and 2f newspaper stamps have now appeared with the new 15 perforation.

ITALIAN CRETE.—The complete set of postage stamps and the express letter stamp have been surcharged "La Canea," for use in Crete.

PANAMA (833).—Hermann Focke writes us regarding the statement in No. 833 (under "Canal Zone"), to the effect that new 2c stamps would not appear without the surcharge "Canal Zone," as there was no use for the denomination in Panama, and as he sends in the same communication a cover having one of the stamps without surcharge, we must say that his argument appears to be well founded. He says:

"It has been reported in various stamp papers that the new 2c carmine and black stamp of Panama had not been or would not be issued without the surcharge 'Canal Zone'. That this is erroneous is proven by the enclosed cover from Panama, which has a used specimen of the 2c without surcharge, together with the new 8c and 10c of the new issue."

SWITZERLAND (833).—G. C. CUENOD reports having seen the 2c, 3c and 5c stamps with the new watermark.

Regular meetings 3rd Tuesday in each month at Elks' Hall, Hayward Pl., at 8 P. M.

BOSTON, Dec. 31st, 1906.

DEAR SIR:

The one hundred and sixty-second regular meeting of the Society will be held in Elks' Hall, 24 Hayward Place, Boston, on Tuesday evening, January 15th, at 8 o'clock precisely.

Order of Business.

1. Reading of Minutes.
2. Reports of Officers.
3. Reports of Committees.
4. Communications.
5. Election of Candidates.
6. Unfinished Business.
7. New Business.
8. Entertainment.

Entertainment.

Exhibition, your ten finest covers. (Adhesives on covers, not stamped envelopes)

The desire of the Committee is for covers having some peculiar interest or beauty, or specimens in fine condition, rather than high catalog value.

The Committee recommends that the ten covers be mounted on one or two sheets of cardboard.

December Meeting.

The one hundred and sixty-first regular meeting of the Society was held in Elks' Hall, Hayward Place, Boston, on Tuesday evening, December 18th with President Howes in the chair, and 34 members and guests present.

Reading of the records of the November meeting was dispensed with.

The 1907 Entertainment Committee reported as follows:

BOSTON, MASS., Dec. 17, 1906.
BOSTON PHILATELIC SOCIETY,
Boston, Mass.

The Entertainment Committee for 1907 begs leave to submit the following report:

Because of changes in the make-up of the Committee as well as in the chairmanship, the Committee has been unable to get the complete program for the year in shape to present at this meeting, but wishes to present at this time the program which has been decided on for the January and February meetings. The Committee hopes to have the complete printed programs in shape to present at the time of sending out notices for the January meeting.

January 1907.

EXHIBITION—Subject: "Your ten (10) finest covers" (adhesives on covers, not envelopes). A large number of the members should enter exhibits and the desire of the committee is for covers having some peculiar interest, or beauty or specimens in fine condition, rather than high catalog value. The Committee recommends that the ten covers be mounted on one sheet or on two sheets of cardboard.

February.

Refreshments.
Entertainment.

COMPETITION. Subject—Class A: Twenty most attractive stamps (adhesives) cataloguing not over $1.00 each.

Class B: Twenty most attractive envelopes (entire or cut square).

Class C: Twenty most attractive posal cards.

In each of the last two classes, twenty different dies or designs must be shown.

If four or more exhibits are entered in any class three ribbons may be awarded; if three exhibits, two ribbons; if two exhibits, one ribbon.

Respectfully submitted,
CHARLES K. B. NEVIN, Chn.,
V. M. BERTHOLD,
FERNALD HUTCHINS.

The report of the 1906 Entertainment Committee (printed elsewhere) was presented and accepted.

Library Committee reports these additions to the library:—

From Mr. J. S. Rich, 43 of Drew's Auction Catalogs; 1907 Standard Catalog from N. E. Stamp Co.; Check list of Canal Zone Stamps from J M. Bartels Co.

Application for membership from Mr. Chas. K. Davis, Cincinnati, Ohio, proposed by Mr. F. D. Goodhue, was received, and will lay over until the January meeting.

These resignations were presented and accepted:—

Mr. J. M. Andreini, New York.
Mr. P. F. Bruner, New York.
Mr. Julius Herzog, New York.
Mr. F. A. Foster, Boston.

Letter from Mr. H. A. Davis, Denver, Colo., relative to the formation of a U. S. Revenue Society was read by the Secretary and no action taken by the meeting.

The following gentlemen were elected to membership:—

No. 463. Mr. Wm. E. Ault, Jeffersonville, Ind.

No. 464. Mr. Henry M. Wichman, Springfield, Mass.

No. 465. Mr. John N. Morse, Boston, Mass.

It was voted to place $75.00 at the disposal of the Entertainment Committee to provide for the Annual Jollification in February.

The Chair appointed the following a Committee to audit the Treasurer's books, Mr. W. L. Aldrich and Mr. F. P. Brown.

$25.00 was voted to the Library Committee for its uses during 1907.

A donation of counterfeits was received from Mr. H. F. King for the Society's counterfeit collection, and a vote of thanks was given Mr. King in appreciation of his gift.

Nominations for officers for 1907 were made as follows:—

For President, Mr. C. A. Howes; for Vice President, Mr. Willard O. Wylie; Secretary, Mr. E. de Z. Kelley; International Secretary, Mr. J. M. Bartels; Treasurer, Mr. L. L. Green; Supt. Sales, Mr. A. W. Dunning; Supt. Auctions, Mr. J. H. Lyons; Supt. Stamp Bourse, Mr. C. F. Rothfuchs, who declined the nomination; Governing Board, Messrs. W. E. Coburn, W. L. Aldrich, C. F. Rothfuchs, W. G. Bail, C. H. Fowle; Library Committee, Chairman, Mr. E. M. Carpenter, Mr. C. K. B. Nevin.

Mr. Batchelder gave notice that at the next meeting he will propose an amendment to the statutes providing for the appointment of a Superintendent of Stamp Bourse, also an amendment to constitute the International Secretary a member of the Governing Board.

No entries having been made for the competition Uncatalogued Varieties, this competition will be held at some date in the near future.

Mr. J. M. Bartels addressed the Society in an interesting and instructive manner on the subject of Counterfeits, illustrating his remarks by means of his splendid collection of counterfeits.

Adjournment was taken at 10.30 P. M.

EDW. DE Z. KELLEY,
Secretary.

BOSTON, Dec. 18, 1906.
BOSTON PHILATELIC SOCIETY,

Gentlemen:—Your Entertainment Committee for 1906 submit their final report as follows:—

Expenditures since last report.

Express,	$1.05
Postage,	1.00
Prizes,	12.00
	$14.05

Five competitive exhibits have been held, in one of which there were seven entries. It is to be regretted that there were no entries for the "Uncatalogued Varieties" competition. We recommend that our successors arrange another date for this competition at the earliest possible meeting of next season, and give more than usual publicity to the subject in our official organ.

Messrs. Luff, Howes and Bartels have favored us during the past season with instructive talks, and also by displaying portions of their collections. To these gentlemen our thanks are due; also to Messrs. Clarence Eagle of Brooklyn and Henry W. Wolsely of Chicago for kindly showing their collections "Not for Competion," neither gentleman being a member of our Society, and also to all the members of our Society who competed in the exhibitions of the past season.

We sincerely trust that next season our successors will have the full co-operation of every officer and member of the Society.

Respectfully submitted,
H. WESLEY LEGG,
FRANK P. BROWN,
F. APTHORP FOSTER,
Committee.

REVENUE PICTURE PUZZLE CONTEST.

Our pictorial contest was not as successful as we would like to have seen it. Forty-three entries only were received from the following collectors:

W. T. Kimball	C. B. Bishop
N. P. Bugbee	Geo. W. Bye
Howard H. Elliott	Erwin G. Ward
J. J. Seidel	A. C. Roussel
Gibson Weber	William Simpson
Walter L. Gates	R. J. Hummel
J. R. Hammerle	Geo. A. Field
W. C. Emery	Paul N. Dyrhman
Jos. A. Steinmetz	A. A. Hussman
H. S. Rotzell	H. P. Harris
Clark W. Brown	E. J. Smith
D. Pick	R. L. Banister
Wm. C. Stone	Ernest R. Aldrich
Chas. I. Altman	Clara E. Hunter
John Wilson	A. F. Henkels
Geo. Hetrich	Paul St. John
J. M. Brooks	J. N. T. Levick
Day Kimball	H. R. Southworth
Rees L. Jones	Thomas C. Keyes
Henry Jonas	Zeph. R. Forbes
Herman W. Boers	R. R. Thiele
Karl M. Sherman

The conditions of the contest called for at least fifty entries, but the measure of interest shown was such that it was finally decided to make the awards.

The correct list of answers to the picture shown on page 387 is as follows:

No. 1.	(3159)	Henry A. Clark.
2.	(3244)	Pierce Match Co.
3.	(3165)	Crown Match Co.
4.	(3170)	E. P. Dunham.
5.	(3455)	Melte and Kanne.
6.	(3452)	Mercado and Seully.
7.		Jock & Wildner.
8.	(3552)	X. Bazin.
9.	(3582)	Caterson, Brotz & Co.
10.	(3455)	Melte and Kanne.
11.	(3545)	Thos. E. Wilson, M. D.

This contest was made possible through the generosity of Geo. J. Carter, the well known revenue dealer of Brooklyn. Mr Carter presented the WEEKLY with two of his albums and a third prize was also added by the WEEKLY to add to the interest. We are very grateful to this public spirited champion of revenues for his co-operation.

The prize winners are as follows:

First Prize, WM. T. KIMBALL.
Second Prize, N. P. BUGBEE.
Third Prize, C. B. BISHOP.

Mr. Kimball's entry was received closely upon the mailing of the issue containing the puzzle. The entries of the other two prize winners were received in a morning mail with nine other replies and the only way that we could solve the difficulty was to award the prizes to the first two letters opened containing correct solutions. The postoffice department is very strict in regard to lottery methods and the WEEKLY could not advertise any method of awarding the prizes in which the element of chance might figure. While the method resorted to may seem to be "flavored" with chance it cannot be held as objectionable in the award of the prizes. We regret that subscribers at a distance were placed upon a rather unequal footing, but could find no way to satisfactorily solve this problem.

The entry of Dr. Holland A. Davis of Denver, Col., was a scholarly production, neatly typewritten and a model in every way. A close second was the entry of Franklin S. Smith of New York City. The entry of J. N. T. Levick also of New York City was accompanied with some interesting observations in which the writer declared that he was "not fishing for a prize but seeking simply glory." We very much regret that Mr. Levick was one of the losers but have no doubt he will take it gracefully. Miss Amy L. Swift sent in a solution in verse, but we do not have sufficient space at our disposal to publish it.

N. E. BRANCH OF A. P. A. FORMED.

On Tuesday evening, Dec. 18, a very successful meeting was held of collectors residing in and near Boston, resulting in the organizing of what will be known as the N. E. Branch of the American Philatelic Association. The call was signed by two score members. Mr. Batchelder called the meeting to order and Mr. Kelley served as secretary. After discussion it was voted to organize and a set of rules adopted. At the meeting to be held Jan. 15, officers will be elected. It is expected that this latest branch of our national body will take a lively interest in all that pertains to the welfare of the parent organization.

NEW APPLICATIONS.

As soon as your name has been published as an applicant you will probably have unsolicited selections of stamps sent you on approval. As a great many collectors object to this practice the Association desires to break the practice up. Please aid us and help protect yourself and others against further imposition, by holding such selections without purchasing any, until sufficient funds have been sent by the dealer to return it to him by registered mail. Also please report the names of such dealers to the Secretary of the Association.

STAMP COLLECTORS.

MILWAUKEE, WIS., Dec. 23, 1906.

Are you a member of the American Philatelic Association? If not, and you make a pretence of being a philatelist, write at once for application blank and "Booklet" showing some of the benefits of membership. Annual dues $1.20. Every member is required to take one share of stock, $1.00 (non-assessable). Total cost to join in Jan'y $1.70 (fiscal year Sept. to Sept.)

In the WEEKLY of Dec. 8th, I offered to supply members with an electrotype seal of this Association for 15c. Same to be used on letter-heads and envelopes in connection with name, address, etc., of member. The object being to give the Association as much publicity as possible so as to bring it to the attention of collectors. Several members have headed the suggestion and have ordered a seal, but not as many as expected. If the price named seems excessive, or there is any other objection, I will furnish them free to members with the understanding that they will be used on stationery in the manner outlined.

This is the principal association of philatelists in America and we want all to know it!

NOTES.

In looking over a lot of the current domestic cards, I came across a specimen without any periods after the two words "Postmark" and "Only." Can you think of a more economical way of increasing your collection?

After I had ordered the new issues of Curacao, my correspondent informed me that it will be impossible for him to forward the cards except at letter rates. A complaint to the Post Office Dept. brought this reply: "The Universal Postal Convention, which governs the exchange of mails between the U. S. and Curacao, provides that cards bearing the title 'carte postale' (postal card) are not admitted to the mails at the postage rate applicable to prints! Consequently, the postal officials of Curacao are warranted in refusing to receive for mailing to this country at the postage rate applicable to prints a package containing a number of postal cards—used or unused.

N. M. BROOKS, Supt. Foreign Mails."

This is not the only trouble a Purchasing Agent has to encounter. In endeavoring to send a money order to Hayti, the local Post Office refused to issue it and on investigation I found out that it is impossible to procure same as there is no money order exchange between the United States and Hayti.

A STAMP BOURSE.

The attention of our readers is called to the advertisement in our Trade Column of the Boston Stamp Exchange. An auction sale will be held under the auspices of the Exchange, Tuesday evening, Jan. 8, in Elks' Hall, Hayward Pl., Boston, to which all collectors are invited. An opportunity will be given before and after the sale for an open exchange, which will be permitted without expense to those participating. It is the intent of the promoters of this enterprise to establish a stamp bourse where good fellowship will prevail and where collectors may be made to feel perfectly at ease in disposing of their duplicates without expense to any participant. The project is a worthy one and deserving of support.

SOME AMERICAN GEMS.

Our readers have from time to time been made acquainted with the wealth of riches in the collection of Charles Lathrop Pack of Lakewood, N. J., but of late some valuable additions have been made. We hope in the near future to illustrate a portion of this fine collection so justly honored at the recent London Exhibition. Among other gems the following British North American are in the Pack collection:—

MILAN EXHIBITION, 1906.

The Highest Possible Award at the above Exhibition was received by THE WEST-END PHILATELIST (Edited by Bertram W. H. Poole). Published by D. Field. "The West End Philatelist" is published on the 15th of each month and forms the brighest and daintiest of the journals issued for Stamp Collectors.

Each number is full of original matter, written in an interesting style, that should appeal to all philatelists. There are articles on the stamps of various countries, and a serial paper in which the collector is told all about papers, watermarks, and perforations; how stamps are made, and the thousand and one other things every collector ought to know if he wishes to collect on intelligent lines.

It Is Well Illustrated.

Subscribers reap many advantages in being able to purchase really good stamps at bargain prices. Send for particulars.

QUERIES AND COMMENT.

Edited by C. E. SEVERN.

C. L. C.:—The question takes this form: "I have a 10-cent 1847 on the original cover. About how much does that increase the value of the stamp over one that is not on the original cover?" The 10-cent 1847 is worth little more on the cover than off of it. While the desirability of having this stamp on the cover would appeal to some collectors, others would not be influenced in the least by it. In cases where the cover with its postal markings serves a purpose in authenticating a specimen, in a way such as United States locals are strengthened by their original covers, it is a necessary adjunct, according to some radical collectors, but a stamp such as the 10-cent 1847 is of so open a character that the cover is not needed to set it off to advantage. No rule could be established for estimating the monetary weight of the cover, in connection with the stamp, as circumstances alter cases in a hap-hazard way. Perhaps, a dealer would add 25 cents to the price of a 10-cent 1847, on cover, in comparison with the specimen off of it; and then again he might not.

S. E. Y.:—The following description of postal conditions prevailing during the civil war accounts for the existence of your cover bearing a three-cent United States and a Confederate ten-cent stamp. The first quotation is extracted from the report of the postmaster-general of the United States for the year 1863: "By reason of the suspension of regular postal communication with sections of the country under insurrectionary control, a considerable number of letters, amounting in the aggregate to 23,314, found their way, by various channels, to the dead letter office. Of this number 3,312 were foreign and returned to the countries where they originated. Those originating in the loyal states were turned over to the military authorities, and, after examination, most of them sent by flag-of-truce to their destination." As opportune to the subject of the interchange of flag-of-truce, soldiers' and prisoners' letters between the two sections during the period of hostilities, we introduce the following information: "Letters sent from the northern states to prisoners or others within the Confederate lines were not permitted to exceed in length one page of a letter sheet, and were allowed to relate merely to personal and domestic matters, and had to be signed by the writer's name in full. It was compulsory to send letters with five cents in coin enclosed, if addressed to Richmond, and ten cents if beyond that point. Such letters were required to be sent enclosed to the Commanding General of the Department of Virginia, at Fortress Monroe, marked on the outside, 'For Flag of Truce,' and left unsealed. If not directed according to these regulations they were returned to the dead letter office." Letters sent by southern soldiers in federal prisons, and vice versa, were forwarded after their contents had been certified to and marked officially. The letters that come under the class described possess no inconsiderable sentimental value, but it is not easy to estimate it on a monetary basis.

R. T.:—Probably, the reason why the 1898-99 issue of the Philippines is not priced used in the catalogue, is because sufficient data is not available for equitable pricing in that condition. Theodore Siddall, writing in the WEEKLY some time ago, said: "I will add that although I have seen many high values of the 1898-99 Spanish Philippine stamps in canceled condition, I have never seen a copy of anything higher than the 40 centavos with a postal cancellation, though many of them with the usual telegraph cancellation may have been used on letters."

A.:—There is no difference between the Pacific Steam Navigation Co.'s stamps and those of the first issue of Peru, in the cases of the one and two real on bluish paper, according to the best cataloguers. The stamps of the Pacific Steam Navigation Company were borrowed by the Peruvian authorities from the navigation company and were used pending the printing of the stamps of Peru's first distinctive issue. The cancellations that make the used stamps either Peruvian or Pacific Steam Navigation Co.'s issues were described in the WEEKLY for October 13th, 1906.

A correspondent writes:—"I had just been reading with interest your remarks on Railroad Business envelopes when the enclosed was found in the mail. Later in the day, I happened to be in the office of the railroad and was told that this was the current form of envelope. From this, it will be seen that these letters are still being handled by connecting lines." The envelope bears the formula that was described when the subject of these envelopes was first mentioned in these columns recently. According to the notice of the envelopes in question interline handling of the envelopes is permitted, although we do not doubt the correctness of the information that came to us from a man well versed in railroading affairs that the government some time ago prohibited the carrying of railroad business correspondence on any other than the contracting or principal road.

J. W. K.—This reader says: "I have a United States postage stamp regular 1898 issue, 3-cent purple, surcharged I. R. in black, with the additional printing in black, Dr. K. & Co. 7-5-98. The catalogue lists no such stamp, which I took from a bottle of Swamp Root. Will you please publish what you know of this stamp and its value. "When the revenue tax became operative on July 1, 1898, the governmentally printed special revenue stamps were not available in some localities; and the Dr. Kilmer Company, Binghamton, New York, not wishing to delay consignments of their proprietary wares ready for shipment, adopted the expedient of using the one, two and three-cent stamps, current postage at the time, surcharged as described, to schedule the payment of the revenue tax. While the consent of the government was not secured in its highest official sense, for this procedure, yet a tacit recognition of the validity of the course could be argued from the fact that the authorities did not demand the recall of the stamps, which consequently, are provisional issues with some claim for catalogue recognition, even though the stamps in question are ignored in the list. The use of these individual stamps was stopped as soon as the regular stamps were obtainable by Dr. Kilmer and Company, which was some time along in July, 1898. A price on the 3-cent provisional could be placed at from 50 to 75 cents. The stamps may be found with a variety of abbreviated dates.

E. W. S.:—Your Corrientes stamp is a reprint as the following explanation from E. D. Bacon's excellent work on "Reprints" will show: "Reprints of the stamps of this country have been made since the year 1883, when the plates were sold to a private speculator. The reprints are found on all the various colored papers employed for the original stamps, and also on other fancy-coloured papers which were never used for postal purposes. The reprint of the first issue one real is, so far as the label inscribed 'un real m. c.' is concerned, a forgery, as the lettering differs in type from that on the original stamps."

R. R. T.:—We should say that the "average collector" is the one who follows catalogue lines, approximately, without accepting all its refinements as necessary varieties for his collection. He seeks the major varieties as the most desirable stamps, according to his inclinations, even though he does not wholly ignore the subordinate specimens. In this connection, we take the liberty of quoting an English editor who describes six collecting degrees as follows: 1. Extreme simplicity. 2. Simplicity. 3. Modern general collecting. 4. Advanced general collecting. 5. Limited specialism. 6. Specializing. The compiler, in discussing the divisional arrangement, makes the deduction based on a knowledge of philatelic human nature: "It seems to us that in this scale a collector ought to be able to find everything he wants. But the real truth of the matter is that 99 out of 100 collectors only want the catalogue simplified by the exclusion of the particular stamps they are not interested in."

E. C.:—From an article on the stamps of China, 1878-1905, appearing in Stanley Gibbons' Monthly Journal, we find in the December issue, just received, an answer to your question: How long were the first postage due stamps of China in use? The stamps were used from March 16th, 1904, to November 10th, 1904, pending the arrival of the regular or subsequent postage due stamps.

XMAS EMBLEMS ON POSTAGE STAMPS.

Working under the direction of the National Stamp Committee, Mr. Burroughs supplied late in December, a very excellent article to the great dailies of the country. It appeared far and near as readers of the WEEKLY will testify. Our mail has brought us many clippings and our readers may be interested in the way in which this story was treated by some of the papers.

The Chicago Inter-Ocean Dec. 23 had the article occupy the full width of the sheet. A five column cut accompanying it showing a post man loaded down with Christmas matter and surrounded by envelopes upon which were the various stamps selected as appropriate for the Christmas season. The whole effect is a very striking one.

Paul Zimmerman sends us the Houston Post of the same date containing this article in double column form and illustrated with six cuts.

A double header appears in the Sioux City Journal, Messrs. Burroughs and Stillman both securing a hearing under the title "The Cross on Postage Stamps." The Journal has the Montserrat stamp inverted while underneath is the inscription "Clinging to the Cross."

That a paper of the standing of the New York Commercial should use this story is a great tribute to the interest taken in philately. Monday, Dec. 24, there appeared upon the editorial page a three column wide article adorned with cuts, an advertisement of philately the value of which cannot be estimated.

The Montgomery (Ala.) Advertiser, the Savannah (Ga.) Morning News, the Newark (N. J.) Sunday Call, the Reading (Pa.) Eagle, and the Providence (R. I.) Tribune all used this story in their issues of Sunday, Dec. 23, and in each instance from six to eleven stamps were illustrated.

While the Boston Herald published this article in its issue of Dec. 23, no cuts are noted. The value of such an article in this paper is, however, appreciated and the insertion of philatelic matter in a publication of the standing of the Herald is a praiseworthy achievement.

This article appeared in no less than thirty of our big dailies and the matter used will be published and republished by papers depending upon the metropolitan press for reprint matter for months to come.

COMMUNICATION.

SOMERVILLE, MASS., Jan. 2, '07.

TO THE EDITOR:

I note that complaint has been made that "L. A. Prevost of 87 Hudson St., Springfield, Mass.," has been sending out selections of stamps on approval unsolicited. I am the guilty party and the complainant has evidently made a mistake in the cities mentioned, and stated Springfield when it should have been Somerville. In defense of myself, I wish to state that since I have seen your notice that the officials of the society wished this practice stopped, I have done as they requested and sent no stamps out unsolicited. There were four names that I used at the time, and they are still holding the selections sent. Which of them made the complaint, I know not. Perhaps all of them did.

I sent all the parties a stamped envelope for reply and if they wish registration fee sent, I wish they would say so, using that stamped envelope for the postage on the notification. After this matter is straightened out, you will have no more complaint pertaining to me, as I would not intentionally break any rule or law the Association might make. I hope you will give a portion at least of this explanation, a place in your esteemed paper. I deplore the fact that a mistake in naming the cities, has taken place, thereby casting a shadow upon an entirely innocent party, who bore a similar name.

L. A. PREVOST.

(This explanation by Mr. Prevost is a very gratifying one and we are pleased to insert it in the WEEKLY. We note that Mr. Prevost will refrain from sending out any further unsolicited approval selections and venture to suggest that if he will write the parties to whom selections have been sent apologizing for the liberty taken, the return of the property will speedily follow.—EDITOR.)

20,000 Varieties

Absolute necessity compelled me to break up the fine $25,000 collection mentioned in my advertisements last season, so many demands being made for selections. This collection, with another nearly as good, has been broken up and mounted, ready to send out, according to countries, in approval books holding 100 stamps each, giving a selection of 20 000 varieties from Abyssinia to Zululand complete. Prices are marked according to Scott's catalogue, and except in rare cases 50% discount is allowed. Most dealers allow 10% or not more than 25% disct. For the grade of stamps offered by me you can't possibly find their equal at the price. Try me with a want list. Don't forget the reference.

OUR REVIEW.

We have received Part I of the catalogue issued by Gebrüder Senf of Leipzig, Germany, which bears the date "1907," and is devoted to adhesive postage stamps only. This standard German catalogue makes no particular pretensions to beauty, but is replete with usefulness. It has increased in size about 50 pages, due to new issues and discoveries, but is otherwise a counterpart of last year's issue in appearance. The helps given in the first part of the catalogue are numerous, including the names of countries where changes have been made in the lists or rewriting has taken place. The Introduction explains the plans upon which the lists have been compiled, and the various means and signs employed to denote certain characteristics in the briefest way. This is followed by an explanation of the various special points connected with certain groups of countries, like the British Colonial dies, the Dutch Colonial Postage Due dies, and perforations, etc. A rather necessary table for many is the comparative list of names of countries which differ materially between English and German, or French and German. An alphabetical table of German technical philatelic terms with their French, English and Spanish equivalents will also be to the non-German collector's advantage.

The general arrangement of the catalogue is absolutely alphabetical, i. e., every state, colony or town is under its own heading, placed alphabetically, with no grouping save in two cases—the foreign post-offices under "Levant," and the French Consular offices in China under the latter name. We think this plan has some advantages over the grouping of colonies after the mother country, though we also realize some conveniences of the latter. Every title, however, has beneath it the geographical grand division to which it belongs, and in the case of a colony an initial representing the parent country.

Of the lists themselves we must say that they are very clear and easy of reference, and are enlightened by a great quantity of explanatory notes. The cuts are reduced to about ¼ size, and in many cases are not particularly clear; still, a majority serve their purpose well enough, of giving the general appearance or type of the stamp. This is supplemented as a rule by a short description of the design, which might be omitted if the cuts were larger and clearer.

The numbering we think is the only proper way, such as is followed by Scott. The principal types only are given full numbers, while varieties of shade, type, surcharge, etc., are sub-lettered. Perforation varieties are not always given more than a reference in a note, but where two or more are listed in a set, e. g., in Austria, the prices are in vertical columns at the right of the straight set list, and form sub-varieties under lettered headings. This is a proper way of simplifying the lists of perforations, to our mind, by not giving them full catalogue rank. Of the prices we do not feel qualified to judge, save that they seem to run fairly even with other catalogues, though we note that many "single CA's" in the British Colonies are pretty cheap, if current market prices here are a criterion. The work can be obtained of Gebrüder Senf, Leipzig, Germany, for M4 (96 cents) post free.

STARTING THE NEW YEAR RIGHT.

We are very pleased to announce that the two local philatelic societies in Denver and Washington have voted to make the WEEKLY their Official Journal, the new relationship to begin with the first issue in the New Year. This is certainly beginning the New Year right. We want to express our appreciation of the patronage that has been extended us and beg to assure the philatelists of these two cities that we will serve them to the best of our ability.

Sec. Davis of the Denver Club assures us that his city is extremely enthusiastic over the possibilities in connection with the coming convention of the A. P. A. to be held in that city. The WEEKLY will be very glad to lend its support as far as possible in thoroughly advertising the event.

Sec. Engle of the Washington Society will no doubt keep us fully posted concerning what transpires in Washington, a city whose philatelic happenings are always of interest to the great body of stamp collectors the country over. We shall try to merit the confidence that is reposed in us in the selection of our paper to represent officially these two societies.

STAMP GIFT TO HELENA.

Postmaster General Sends Collection of U. S. Stamps to Italy's Queen.

ROME, Jan. 7.—Henry White, the retiring American Ambassador, has presented to Queen Helena a complete collection of United States postage stamps, sent to her by the Postmaster General at Washington, with the approval of President Roosevelt. The authorities at Washington were informed by the American delegates to the last Postal Congress, held here last year, that the Queen had expressed a desire to have a collection of United States stamps and this resulted in the step just taken by the Postmaster General.

The Queen thanked the Ambassador most warmly and assured him that she highly appreciated the courtesy and kindness of the Washington officials.—New York Times Jan. 8.

EDITORIAL.

Hail, Philately—A royal triumph has been gained by philately. The stamp papers now arriving from England teem with editorial felicitations because of the recognition by King Edward of philately, through his gracious grant of permission for the use of the appellation royal by the Philatelic Society, London, which henceforth will be known as the Royal Philatelic Society, London. The bestowal of this honorable prerogative naturally has aroused the liveliest satisfaction in Great Britain, where the lasting significance of the compliment to philately is best understood; but philatelists everywhere will rejoice over the crowning of philately as a pursuit tacitly favored by the monarch of a mighty kingdom. Small wonder it is that philatelists who have labored for the elevation of philately to a position commensurate with its merits, to the plane occupied by other pursuits esteemed as established lines of intellectual endeavor and as worthy the serious attention and thought of the subtantially minded, are now congratulating themselves over the honor done philately.

Sponsors—It is known that the Philatelic Society, London, has been fortunate in having had the support of royalty for years; and this patronage is still extended it in a more marked manner than ever. His late Royal Highness, the Duke of Coburg, presided at the meetings; and His Royal Highness, the Prince of Wales, is now president of the society. The First Vice-President of the Royal Philatelic Society, London, is the Earl of Crawford, who is one of the most advanced and scholarly philatelists of the times; he is known by name, at least, to many American collectors by reason of his admirable collection of the stamps of the United States, which was exhibited at the Collectors' Club, New York, some time ago. This collection is described by a competent critic as being beyond comparison, and as having by reason of its completeness and historical system of arrangement, "opened the eyes of modern philatelists to the extreme scientific possibilities of stamp collecting." Lord Crawford has a similarly admirable collection of the issues of Great Britain; and he has many other philatelic treasures, we believe. It is gratefully acknowledged by the London Philatelist that the assistance of the Prince of Wales and Lord Crawford in procuring the honor was invaluable.

An Advance—To conform to the increased prestige and higher position of the Royal Philatelic Society, London, and to extend and popularize its scope of endeavor, alterations are proposed in the statutes of the society. Among the changes, as anticipated, "subject to the approval of the Board of Trade," are several that are so radically progressive that attention may well be called to them; and it is a source of deep satisfaction to find that the younger collectors are provided for under the prospective statutes: "Associates.—Persons between the ages of sixteen and twenty-one are to be eligible for election as Associates without payment of entrance fee and with an annual subscription of ten shillings and six pence. These Associates are to have the right to attend ordinary meetings of the Society and all privileges of an ordinary member (including the receipt of the Society's journal), except the right of voting and of receiving such publications as are supplied either gratuitously or at reduced rates to ordinary members. The Associates are to have the right to become full members on attaining their majority." "Titles of Members.—The first three hundred and fifty members of the Society are to be called 'Fellows' and to have the right to place the letters F. R. P. S. L. after their names, subsequent elections to the title taking place as vacancies occur from among the ordinary members."

By Imperial Right—It is needless to say that the royal action spoken of will have an effect that will be highly beneficial to philately in Great Britain and colonies; and indirectly, on stamp collecting the world over. In brief, the recognition that has been accorded the London society is tantamount to a personal extention of favor from the highest court that at once places philately in a commanding position and assures to it a permanency that could be established, perhaps in no other way. It takes on an accretion of dignity and interest through the kingly will.

Disproportionate—We have referred recently to the disposition of newspaper writers to exploit the sensational, sinister side of philately in print, with the result that readers of such accounts may gather distorted ideas concerning our hobby. Indeed, even a superficial reading of some of the journals prepared for stamp collectors themselves may cause one to magnify the dross adhering to the seamy side of philately. It is but natural that the healthy philatelic tree is not wholly free from fungus adhesions which, however, do not retard its growth in the slightest. The fact that attention in the philatelic press is given to the unlovely side of stamp collecting is an evidence of the close scrutiny that is brought to bear on the events of the day in the philatelic world; and what seems to be a somewhat noticeable volume of false pretense and downright fraud, in reality is a trivial proportion in comparison with the aggregate of philatelic transaction. The protective idea is always present in the mind of the philatelic editor and he, in his wish to guard readers against the machinations of the irresponsible, gives accounts in detail, to counteract their influence. However, when the newspaper writer gives undue prominence to statements, oftentimes grossly exaggerated, in his articles, the duty of the well-informed philatelic reader is to neutralize their effect by sending courteous and concise corrections of the mis-statements to the editor of the newspaper in which the article appeared; and in this manner, a hearing is often given to the testimony in rebuttal.

Sale at Auction—An official sale of British Guiana remainders is impending, the Crown Agents for the Colonies having instructed a London auction firm to offer the entire lot of remainders of the eight-cent, 1890-91, lilac and black, now withdrawn from circulation postally. The stamps are to be sold at auction in February at a reserve price of face value. The method of procedure is a business-like one and the stamp in question is one whose sale in this manner will not visit disappointment or hardship on those who bought it heretofore, at the market price.

Absorption—The second sale of the d'Etiolles' stock has swollen the total for the two sales already held to almost $40,000. It has been announced that instead of six sales as already planned, there will be no fewer than nine. Success of a pronounced order has attended the two sales and the indications are that the coming auctions will be of kindred result. The dispersion of this great stock is one of the events of philately and the elasticity of the stamp market in absorbing the huge number of stamps thrown upon it at really strong prices is an earnest of its latent capacity.

Old Question Revived—There is a new agitation for a simplified catalogue; and while the idea of such a catalogue is always one that gains popularity, we cannot say that when in the past, catalogues on simplified lines were published, they met with the solid favor that the expectant promoters anticipated. The bigger catalogue is often the choice of the partizan of simplification in collecting, even though he adheres to his ideals in actual collecting.

DEATH OF F. M. THOMAS.

We regret to announce the death of F. M Thomas who up to within four weeks was an advertiser in the WEEKLY under the firm name of Thomas Stamp Co. He died on board the steamship Kaiserin Auguste Victoria, Dec. 16, being buried at sea the following day. This came as a great shock to Mrs. Thomas who is well known by the former patrons of the Thomas Stamp Co. in New York City. Mrs. Thomas sends us the sad tidings from Munchen, Bavaria, informing us that she will return to New York in February. The many friends of Mr. Thomas will share in the grief of the widow and this expression of sympathy will be voiced by scores of dealers and collectors who will read these lines.

WANT LISTS

Send me a want list with a deposit of about one-quarter of the cat. value of stamps asked for if unknown to me, and I will send you what I can at lowest possible prices.

You get the stamps on approval, the deposit being in no sense payment in advance, as it will be returned if no stamps bought. At present I can supply nearly all U. S. Postage, Department and Revs. at half cat. or less. Also good stock of Hawaii, Canada, Newfoundland, Fiji, New So. Wales and all other Australians but lists may be had of any country. Try it and see if it does not beat buying off general approval sheets.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centres. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—We wish to express our thanks to Messrs. Theodore Siddall and N. C. Comfort for specimens of the new 20c Philippine special delivery stamp.

—A secret service agent in San Francisco seized 32,000 stamps, and the lithographic stones from which they were printed, the property of the Johnston-Dienstag Co. a few days since. The stamps were used on envelopes in which were enclosed advertising circulars, a man in uniform being employed in distributing the same. The stamps were seized by the authorities upon the ground that they resembled United States stamps, a contention not supported in an examination of the design in which a bird that might be either a sea-gull or an eagle played a prominent part. We are indebted to Edward Howard, Fred Timacus, Doscher & Co., and S. S. Moore for newspaper clippings in relation to the above.

—The "Zoo" story published in November by the National Stamp Committee was used in the "Book of the Royal Blue" for December. This is a popular monthly magazine issued in the interests of the B. & O. R. R.

—The catalogue of Wolsieffer's sale No. 75 just at hand lists a nice line of stamps, general in character, including a particularly good line of British Colonials. Date of the sale Jan. 12, at Chicago. Mr. Wolsieffer will sell the collection of Francis King in New York at the Collectors Club on Tuesday and Wednesday, Feb. 5 and 6.

—The Canal Zone Check List issued by J. M. Bartels Co. is supplied at 15c each and not free as stated by the WEEKLY. We are under the impression that no price was given on the list, hence our supposition that it was supplied upon request.

—The Montreal Family Herald and Weekly Star used in its issue of Dec. 12, the "Rare Stamp" article issued by the Stamp Committee in October. It shows that stamp matter is appreciated by the general press and particularly so as in reprinting this article the Star also took the trouble to have made some eight cuts showing the great rarities.

—The Daily Oregon Statesman for Sunday, Dec. 23, reprinted the "Zoo" story from some paper without giving credit. This was the story sent out by the National Stamp Committee in November.

—Hugo Kuenstler sends us no less than five clippings from New York papers dealing with stamps and stamp matters.

—If this paragraph reaches the eye of Edgar Gardiner whose former address was either General Delivery or Idaho Hotel, Seattle, Washington, will he please send his present address to this office and greatly oblige?

—The catalogue of Sale Number 15 Western Stamp Co., Omaha, Neb., is at hand. A general line of U. S. and foreign is offered.

—The first number of the Chicago Collectors' Monthly has been received; it is devoted to stamps and allied lines and makes a presentable appearance. The publishers are Boehm and Lindquist, who are active in philatelic circles in Chicago.

—"Collecting Good Way to Teach Children History and Geography" is the title of a Washington despatch published in the Dec. 30 issue of the Detroit News-Tribune. The article is inspired by the National Stamp Committee and was written by F. J. Stillman The same article appeared in the Evansville (Ind.) Courier under the heading "Postage Stamps Show the Growth of Nations."

—At the meeting of the Chicago Philatelic Society held January 3rd, the installation of the officers for the year, 1907, was made. The reports of the retiring officers showed that the past year has been one of substantial progress. The date of the annual banquet was announced as January 24th, the dinner to be given in the Green Room of the Boston Oyster House. Various standing committees were appointed. At the next meeting of the society, January 17th, the advertised auction sale will be held.

—The "Zoo" article in the "Book of the Royal Blue" is reaching the eye of numerous philatelists. The Tiffin Stamp Co. sends us a copy of this magazine also a local paper containing a stamp clipping and better still a check for $5 00 for the work of the National Stamp Committee. This is tangible evidence of appreciation and there are several other dealers who should do likewise.

—Stamp clippings are acknowledged with thanks from Herman W. Boers, Royal G. Clark, Wm. A. Hubbard, R. H. Nichols, Jr.

—Wm. L. Hamilton, Jr, sends us a clipping from the New York Sun of Jan. 6. It is a column article dealing with stamps "Inverted Therefore Prized." It is an article that will splendidly aid the publicity work of the National Stamp Committee.

—A descriptive catalogue of British colonial stamps has been received from the Colonial Stamp Company, Chicago; it consists of forty pages, upon which the stamps are explicitly described.

—R. L. Doak, New Bedford, Ohio, secretary of the Southern Philatelic Association, is making efforts to revive the old time interest in this organization.

—According to the Vertrauliches Korresponden-Blatt of Kiel, Germany, the philatelic society of that city, numbering some 80 members, has a collection of counterfeit stamps, which is much used by the members for study. The society lends it to other societies for the same purpose. Herr K. Herzner of Kitzeberg bei Kiel, is the custodian, but the whole society seems to be united in the effort to make it as complete and useful as possible. Have we anything like it in our country? The Boston society has the nucleus of such a collection.

—The Evanston, Ill., Press of December 29th, contained the following notice of the WEEKLY and one of its contributors:

Philatelic literature has been enriched and enlivened by Abbey Durkee's story entitled "The Philateli Christmas and Its Surprises," appearing in the Christmas number of MEKEEL'S WEEKLY STAMP NEWS of Boston. The incident, sentiment and philatelic interest are pleasantly entertaining. The story is told in a graceful and genial style. The STAMP NEWS is the official organ of the American Philatelic Association. Abbey Durkee is the nom de plume of Mrs. Jennie T. Warner of Evanston, who has written several charming short stories.

—The inscription on the current U. S. postal card is to be changed. The portrait of McKinley will be retained, though it may be slightly altered or re-engraved.

—In England medicine stamps are beginning to receive more attention just now. For particulars see Morley's Phil. Jour. On this side of the ocean there are probably few collectors, who ever as much as saw one of the British medicine stamps. There is a pretty long list of them though.

ROYAL PHILATELIC SOCIETY.

This is the new name by which the London Philatelic Society will in the future be known. It has pleased His Majesty, King Edward VII of England, to command that in the future the London Society will be known as the Royal Philatelic Society. It will be incorporated under Royal Charter and members will now sign F. R. P. S. to their names. This is certainly an event of great importance to philately.

The Royal Philatelic Society has as president the Prince of Wales, as vice president the Earl of Crawford, and among its members are the Earl of De Grey, the Earl of Ranfurley, the Earl of Kintore and the Earl of Sondes. Among well known Americans who are now Fellows of the Royal Philatelic Society are W. H. Crocker and Henry J Crocker of San Francisco, Henry Duveen of New York, P. F. Bruner of New York, and E. R. Ackerman of Plainfield, N. J No doubt other Americans are on the membership list, but we are unable to give a complete list of the American philatelists who are members of this body.

We are obliged to Mr. Power, manager of Stanley Gibbons' New York branch, for the above information. Full particulars are now at hand in English papers which are naturally very much elated, as well they may be, over the distinguished consideration that has thus been shown our hobby.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES.

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Any information regarding new issues will be gratefully received and acknowledged. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. The figures in parentheses refer to the previous number of the WEEKLY in which the same country was noticed

UNITED STATES (836).—John A. Solomon writes that he has noticed that many precancels were used during the Holidays. He also reports the following new precancels:

Elgin, Ill., 1c 1902, inverted.
Kansas City, Mo., 4c 1902, new type.
Bellows Falls, Vermont, 3c 1902, down.

The Precanceled Club reports the following new precancels:

Northampton, Mass., in circle, set now complete, 1 to 15 cents 1902.

Re the local stamp noted in No 829, and the prediction there made regarding their probable suppression by the Postal Authorities, E. W. Smith sends us a clipping from a recent number of the San Francisco Chronicle:

"The strictness of Uncle Sam's laws in regard to invading the postal field is responsible for the seizure yesterday by Secret Service Agent Harry Moffitt of 32,000 stamps and the lithographic stones from which they were printed, all the property of the Johnston-Dienstag Company of 2170 Post street. The stamps were used on envelopes in which were inclosed advertising circulars distributed by the offending company for clients. A man in uniform was employed in distributing.

"The Postmaster-General decided that the stamps resembled United States postage stamps. A casual look at them does not support this contention, for they are buff-colored and on them are the words: 'Johnston-Dienstag Company, special service, San Francisco.' A bird that might be either a sea-gull or an eagle is part of the general design. But in support of the Postmaster-General's view, is the fact that nearly seventy-five letters bearing these stamps have been dropped into letter boxes, having been delivered at the consignees' old addresses, then picked up and remailed by the new tenants."

BRAZIL (836).—Hermann Focke has shown us the 1000r stamp of the new set, the design being the head of Liberty, the same as the 2000r stamp. The 5000r stamp is now the only one of the set that has not been seen.

Adhesive.

1000r scarlet.

As noted in No. 836, stationery has been issued to complete the new set as follows:

Envelope.

200r Prussian blue, embossed design.

Post Cards.

40x40r vermilion.
50r dark green.
100r carmine.

BRUNEI.—It is apparent that the remainder of the Labuan stamps are to be used for this new colony, the following being issued, with the name Brunei printed in red at the top of stamp, on the Crown type stamps of Labuan.

Adhesives.

1c black and violet.
2c on 3c black and brown.
3c black and brown.
8c black and vermilion.
10c brown and slate.

CANADA (836).—G. Perry also sends us a note regarding the new Toronto precancel.

ELOBEY, ANNOBON Y CORISCO (745).—Madrid Filatelico reports some new surcharges on the 1905 issue, the overprint being "1906—[ornament]—25 cents," within a rectangular frame.

Provisional Adhesives.

10c on 1c red, black surcharge.
15c on 2c violet, red surcharge.
25c on 3c black, red surcharge.
50c on 4c red, black surcharge.

A new set of stamps was issued Jan. 1, comprising 16 values, the design being the same as the 1905 set, but in different colors and presumably dated "1907."

Adhesives.

1c dark violet.
2c black.
3c red.
4c light green.
5c green.
10c violet.
15c rose.
25c orange.
50c blue.
75c brick red.
1p dark sepia.
2p carmine.
3p black brown.
4p bronze green.
5p dark rose.
10p red.

EGYPT (836).—Sudan.—Ewen reports having seen the 1m official with inverted surcharge, and also spaced 14mm between the words "Army" and "Service". Of the latter several sheets were printed, but the space proved to wide too avoid either the inscriptions, and consequently the space was reduced.

FERNANDO POO (745).—A new set has also been issued for this colony, of the same type as the 1905 set, but dated 1907.

Adhesives.

1c dark violet.
2c black.
3c red.
4c light green.
5c green.
10c violet.
15c rose.

HAYTI (834).—Several cards and a letter card are just reported by Mr. Schachne. All have the oblong rectangular stamp with Pres't Alexis and date as on the 2c adhesive. The 1c is of the gourde class and headed "Service Interieur," while the 2c is the piastre class and has the "U. P. U." heading.

The only imprint on the letter card is "Carte Lettre" in an ornamental label about 80x20mm, at the left of the stamp. All the last issue had the "U. P. U." headline, but that is now changed to conform more nearly with the facts. Another change is the dropping of the 3c value.

JAMAICA (830).—Ewen reports two novelties from this colony, the 6d yellow and 1sh brown Queen's Head stamps on C A multiple paper.

JAPAN (835).—The ½s, 2s, 3s, 5s and 20s have been issued with the new perforation, 13 to 14.

LAGOS (829).—Ewen reports that the 2sh 6d and 5sh stamps have been issued on chalky multiple paper. This completes the set.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS (830).—Ewen reports the 50c green and carmine on chalky multiple paper.

NEW ZEALAND (835).—According to the Australian Philatelist, the 5sh vermilion, and the 3sh, 10sh and 20sh postal fiscals have been issued perforated 14. A new railway newspaper stamp has also been brought into use perforated 14. The 1d postage stamps are now perforated by a rotary comb machine, so that it is to be hoped there will be no more compound perforations. Departmental stamps are to be issued shortly, either overprinted "O. S." or surcharged "Defence," "Public Trusts," "Labor," etc.

REGARDING CATALOGS

MAJOR E. B. EVANS,

Editor of "Stanley Gibbons' Monthly Journal."

in a recent issue of that publication,

SAYS:

"Our own personal opinion, expressed already in these pages, is that what is really wanted is a classified catalogue, distinguishing plainly the principal from the minor varieties, but at the same time including the latter, so that the collector who has advanced beyond the beginner stage may know what to look for and what varieties are best worth preserving. For in our experience, collectors of all classes are anxious to ascertain the relative rarity and value of minor varieties, even though they may not collect them; they may be very glad of a simplified catalogue for collecting by, but they will want a catalogue of quite a different sort for purposes of pricing their duplicates, and the catalogue to suit them best will be one that combines the simplified and the specialized in one."

From this opinion, it will be seen that, while English collectors are without such a catalogue, Americans are more fortunate, and the nearest approach to

UNITED STATES REVENUE SOCIETY.

Indications are very bright that the new society will be well-born. A large number of applications for membership has been received and much enthusiasm manifested. Sec. Davis reports that no less than 57 names have thus far been registered with him. We urge all interested to read carefully the prospectus in last week's paper. Then send $1.00 annual dues with choice of name and selection of elective officers to Dr. Davis whose address is 1622 Welton St., Denver, Col. Any collector of United States revenues whose age is 21 or over, may apply for charter membership. To save time and correspondence enclose the dues stated above and follow the instructions as given last week. These additional applications are herewith acknowledged:

G. W. Pepper, Elmwood, R. I.
John V. Yegge, De Witt, Ia.
H. S. Rotzell, Philadelphia, Pa.
Roscoe Duncan, Seaton, Ill.
Chas. A. Thomas, Charlevoix, Mich.
Chas. I. Altman, Des Moines, Ia.
Chas. Beamish, Philadelphia, Pa.
Wm. R. Frick, Milton, Pa.
B. S. Colburn, Detroit, Mich.
H. S. Adair, Columbus, O.
C. R. Homan, Quincy, Ill.

Should objection be filed against any proposed member the application will be held over for review by the newly chosen executive. This precaution is necessary to safeguard the interests of the new society. The polls will be closed Jan. 21, and the result made public as soon after as possible through the columns of the WEEKLY.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—The Philocartist News—by the way, a name that grates on the nerves—of Stillwater, Oklahoma, shows good vitality. It is now in its second year, has swallowed other papers and is now about to devour the Philatelic Advertiser of Ithaca, N. Y., thereby entering more definitely into the philatelic field. Like its western friend, the Philatelic West, it is affected with a disease commonly called printer's errors, which however is in reality a lack of good proof-reading and a sickly disposition of the lino-type to place the right letters in a wrong place and the wrong letters in the right place. Otherwise the little paper looks well and occasionally has a word or two worth remembering. Enforced by the resources of the Philatelic Advertiser it may be expected to improve and thereby fasten its grip on success.

—Philately seems to be gradually expanding beyond the limits of its name. A number of philatelic papers, one of which is the Stamp Collector of Birmingham, recently treated the old postal paid-stamps and proved that these form an interesting subject for study. We had these paid-stamps here in America too, before the introduction of postage stamps, and it would no doubt be welcomed, by some at least, if somebody would make their study his specialty and give the result to his philatelic brethren.

—Stanley Gibbons states that the London Society's work on the West Indies sold for $20 and that on the North American Colonies for $27 50, very high prices indeed for comparatively small books The work on Africa, part III, is held at $10.00. Happy is the man who can get all the Society's publications as a member.

—The Australian Philatelist enters in its second number of the present volume into a study of perforations of the stamps of Victoria and finds that five varieties may be distinguished measuring from 11½ to 13½. This will not of course interest the purists. But any collector who has Victorian stamps in quantity may do well to examine them according to the information given. It may be worth something to pick the rarer varieties out of the general lot and to keep them separately.

—The specialist called the general purist collector a crank, and the general purist called the specialist a crank. The philistine, who happened to hear their quarrel, said: "Why, gentlemen, what's the use of getting heated? Both of you are right, perfectly right!" Since then they keep on calling each other hard names, each claiming he is right and actually believing it too!

NEW APPLICATIONS.

As soon as your name has been published as an applicant you will probably have unsolicited selections of stamps sent you on approval. As a great many collectors object to this practice the Association desires to break the practice up. Please aid us and help protect yourself and others against further imposition, by holding such selections without purchasing any, until sufficient funds have been sent by the dealer to return it to him by registered mail. Also please report the names of such dealers to the Secretary of the Association.

A. F. HENKELS, Sec'y.

St. Louis Stamp Collectors' Society.

H. A. DIAMANT, Pres.; OTTO PATZSCHKE, Vice Pres.; CHESTER MYERS, Sec., 300 So. 3rd; F. R. CORNWALL, Treas.; Governing Board: above officers with W. A. SISSON, C. GRANDPIERRE, DR. J. W. HIGSON, H. H. KRING, MESSRS. BOISSELIER and SLACK.

The forty-seventh regular meeting was held Thursday, December 27, regular time and place, President Diamant presiding and seven members present. F. Wilson of Dunedin, N. Z., was elected to membership. A vote of thanks was extended Geo. Ward Linn, publisher of the Columbian Philatelist for a complete file of the numbers of that journal donated to the society library. The annual reports of the treasurer and secretary were read and approved.

Election of officers for the coming year resulted as follows: President, F. R. Cornwall; Vice President, J. H. Humes; Treasurer, Dr. Paul Baer; Secretary, Chester Myers; Exch. Mgr. and Librarian, S. B. Hopkins; Governing Board, Above officers and Wallace Delafield, Jr., Dr. J. W. Higson, F. Millhouse, G. Schellhorn. All were elected unanimously.

A new system of exchange was announced by Mr. Hopkins, Mgr. Exch. Dept., the feature of which will be a preliminary credit given by Exch. Supt. on each book as soon as received for circulation, removal of stamps to the amount of such credit being guaranteed. A commission of 10% will be charged.

The question of A. P. A. Convention in St. Louis in 1908 was again brought forward and discussed at length. As a result of this discussion the following members were appointed to draw up an outline plan for entertaining the visitors:—Messrs. Diamant, Hopkins, Myers. A determined effort will be made to bring this Convention to St. Louis in 1908 and with that end in mind the views, opinions and above all the hearty support of all members are earnestly requested.

CHESTER MYERS, Sec'y.

ANNUAL REPORT OF SECRETARY.

The second eventful year of the life of the St. Louis Stamp Collectors' Society—more successful even than its highly prosperous predecessor—is at a close. A brief statement of the work accomplished may not be unwelcome. First as to membership: January 1906, 29 members; new members 1906, 15; total 44; dropped, 1; resigned 2; total 3; net membership January 1907, 41. No comment is necessary; this splendid showing speaks for itself. Many out of town collectors have shown their interest in this Society and its work by applying for membership, applications coming from as far as Australia. The high average attendance has been maintained at the meetings, the record being 19 members present at banquet Oct. 16th. Of this first annual banquet it need only be said that it was a success through and through, out and out.

The official organs remain unchanged, MEKEEL'S WEEKLY STAMP NEWS and the Philatelic West. The work of the Exchange Department will be taken up in detail by the able manager, Mr. S. B. Hopkins. Again this year as last, the endeavors of the National Stamp Committee were substantially endorsed by a contribution of $5.00.

During the year a circulating library was established and donations from various sources are received regularly. A local branch of the American Philatelic Association was organized, finding a number of members on the roll of this Society and with its aid an earnest effort will be made to secure the A. P. A. annual convention in 1908.

The entertainments for the year were numerous and successful consisting of amusing and instructive prize contests and exhibitions; discussions; "true stamp tales" by each member; general discussions of current topics and informal auctions. Meetings were held in the comfortable rooms of the Manufacturers Association, to whom many thanks for the favor are due.

The officers for the year as elected were: H. A. Diamant, President; Otto Patzschke, Vice President; F. R Cornwall, Treasurer; T. C. Mann, Secretary; Governing Board, above officers and C. Grandpierre, Dr. J. W. Higson, H. H. Kring, Chester Myers, W. A. Sisson. The removal of Mr. Mann to Pine Bluff, Ark., necessitated a change in Secretary and Governing Board. Mr. Myers being elected Secretary and Messrs. Boisselier and Slack, members Governing Board. The offices of Exch. Supt. and Librarian were admirably filled by Mr. S. B. Hopkins.

Thanks are due individually and collectively to each and every member for their splendid support of the Society's work and unceasing efforts for its welfare and advancement.

Thus has St. Louis come philatelically "To the Front."

CHESTER MYERS, Sec'y.

Special Notice!

We have prepared a list of nearly every stamp we have for sale together with the prices at which we offer them, both used and unused. We have however priced nothing unless we had at least two copies. The prices will be found to be very attractive and no collector who wants to save money can afford to be without our free price list. The list contains over stamps together with the prices at which we offer them.

15,000 Different

READ WHAT PEOPLE SAY.

MR. SCOTT SAYS:—
"That pricelist was the most complete and satisfactory of any that I have ever received of a dealer's stock. I think you can dispute the title 'The people with the goods' with any one."

MR. ENGLE SAYS:—
"About a year ago you filled a want list so nicely that I enclose you another."

MR. WARD SAYS:—
"Please send two more of your fine 150 page pricelists as I want to give them to some friends. They are the best pricelists I have seen for a long time. Expect orders."

MR. BROWN SAYS:—
"I must congratulate you on your stock."

And many others too numerous to mention.

Our 150 page pricelist pricing 15,000 varieties will be sent free on application. [39

The 222nd monthly meeting of the Twin City Philatelic Society was held Thursday evening, Dec. 27, at 422 6th Ave. Roll call showed 10 members present. The application of John Arnodt of 4772 Scioto St., was received and under the rules of the Society was referred to the Executive Committee. Mr. Doeblin offered a stamp catalogued at $1.50 as a prize to the person who could guess right the identity of a stamp which he had partially concealed. The prize was won by Mr. Kleinknecht. As no new business was on hand the Society adjourned at 10 P. M.

A "REAL" HAPPENING.

BY H. T. DIMICK.

About a year ago I lived next door to a lad who was quite a stamp man in his way. One morning he paid me a short visit and as he left I made him a present of several common Mexican stamps.

About a half hour later he came rushing back to see me greatly excited about something.

"What is the matter?" I asked him.

"Those stamps you gave me aint no good," he replied, holding one of them up.

"Why, what's the matter with them?" I asked.

"Don't you see what's the matter?" he replied, "they've all got 'un real' on em?"

KING DECREES THAT STAMP COLLECTORS ARE SCIENTISTS.

MANY AMERICANS RECEIVE TITLE OF "FELLOWS OF ROYAL PHILATELIC SOCIETY."

LONDON, Jan. 11.—(Special Correspondence.)—By royal proclamation recently issued King Edward has definitely established the status of stamp collectors as scientists and of stamp collecting as a science. He has commanded that the name of the London Philatelic Society be changed to the Royal Philatelic Society, that it be incorporated under Royal Charter, and has conferred upon its members the title of Fellows of the Royal Philatelic Society.

This recognition is as important to scientists generally as it is gratifying to stamp collectors the whole world over, who have faithfully pursued their researches along most interesting and instructive lines, uncomplainingly shouldering the titles of "faddists," "hobbyists," and even of "cranks," that unsympathetic persons unacquainted with the value of their work have generously bestowed upon them.

The king's action is of interest to America not only because of the great popularity of philately there, but because the new Royal Society has a number of members in that land.

Edward VII is not a member of the Philatelic Society but the Prince of Wales is its president and has one of the finest collections of stamps in the world. He became interested in stamps when a boy and has made a thorough study of the subject. He is not a figurehead in the society but an active, eager worker, and his interest is further attested by several able and valuable papers he has read before the organization. The basis of his collection was laid when he was making his world-round voyages in the navy, but he has made wonderful and valuable additions to it since. Three years ago this month he secured his greatest rarity—the 2 pence Post Office Mauritius stamp. He bought this at auction and paid for the precious bit of paper $7,500. His collection is particularly strong in stamps of the British Empire. Philately credits him with being largely instrumental in influencing the king, his father, in distinguishing the cause as a scientific one.

The Prince of Wales' work for collectors has been ably seconded by the vice-president of the society, the Right Hon-

PRINCE OF WALES,
President Royal Philatelic Society.

orable James Ludovic Lindsay, Earl of Crawford and Balcarres, the richness of whose collection of the stamps of the United States is unsurpassed by that of any collector in the world.

The science of stamp collecting is a product of the 19th century for the very good reason that postage stamps were not used before the middle of that century. The London Society was one of its first great stimulating factors, having been organized in April, 1869, and having devoted all its efforts in the succeeding years to the advancement of the cause. It has had successively as presidents Sir Daniel Cooper, Judge Philbrick, the Duke of Saxe-Coburg Gotha (elected when the Duke of Edinburg), the Earl of Kingston and the present Prince of Wales (elected when the Duke of York).

IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT.

Owing to the information contained in a recent auction catalogue and advertisement relative to the stock of entire U. S. Envelopes, i.e. 4 cents green on blue and buff, and 30c black on colored papers, we beg to announce to the trade and our clientele in general as follows: It is now for the first time shown by this statement that there were 1000 each of the 30c envelopes Nos. 1527, 1531, 1538 and 1545, commonly known as "Syndicate Envelopes."

It is also shown for the first time that 5,000 each of the 4c envelopes Nos. 1524 and 1529 were issued, and are practically all still in existence, as none seem to have ever been used for postage.

We have always believed that the price asked for the above mentioned envelopes was out of all proportion to their relative scarcity, and acting on our conviction we reduced the price from the first Edition of our Catalogue in 1897 to the third in 1904

30c from $6.00 to $3.10
4c " 25.00 to 5.40

Had we known the facts of the existence of the enormous quantity of the 4c and 30c, we would have done what we are doing now, and quoted these envelopes at the price which reflects their honest VALUE in our opinion.

We now offer these "Syndicate Envelopes" at the following prices:

30c black on a. manila at 50c (S. 1545 cat. $4.00)
30c black on manila at 50c (S. 1538 cat. 3.50)
4c green on blue at 25c (S. 1529 cat. 6.00)
4c green on o. buff at 25c (S. 1524 cat. 6.00)

This announcement is solely in the interests of our clientele.

J. M. BARTELS CO.,
OLD SOUTH BUILDING, - BOSTON, MASS.

The extent of interest in philately in Great Britain is evidenced by the commercial importance of collecting here. It might be cited, for instance, that there is one concern of stamp dealers in this city of London whose capitalization is $650,000. There are some immense concerns in America too with representatives throughout the world ever in search of additions to their valued stores of stamp specimens.

The Royal Philatelic Society has many members in the United States and Canada, and these include some of the best known and wealthiest collectors of those countries.

Among these is H. J. Duveen, of New York, who has the finest general collection of postage stamps in the United States.

Another American F. R. P. S. is G. H. Worthington, of Cleveland, whose collection is second in value only to that of Mr. Duveen.

Another is H. J. Crocker of San Francisco, whose collection of Hawaiian stamps has won the highest honors in International Exhibitions of recent years.

Still another is C. A. Howes, of Boston, whose collections of Korean and Chinese treaty port stamps are the finest in the world.

The finest collection of French stamps ever gotten together has been made possible by the energy of M. H. Lombard, of Boston, a member of the Royal Philatelic Society. It was awarded a medal at an exhibition at Paris.

Senator E. R. Ackerman, of New Jersey, a F. R. P. S., has the finest known collection of the stamps of Norway and Sweden.

Among the other members of the Royal Philatelic Society who live in America are:

New York—J. M. Andreini, P. F. Bruner, H. Clotz, C. B. Corwin, Gordon Ireland, W. Thorne, J. O. Hobby.
Portland—F. O. Conant.
Flemington, N. J.—H. E. Deats.
Chicago—Alexander Holland.
Cleveland—C. L. Pack.
Springfield, Mass.—W. C. Stone.
Washington, D. C.—George L. Toppan.
Wisconsin—N. H. Withee.

QUERIES AND COMMENT.

Edited by C. E. SEVERN.

Our readers are cordially invited to ask the editor for any information desired concerning stamp collecting. Should a personal reply be desired kindly enclose postage. This department is for the beginner as well as the advanced collector. Address, C. E. SEVERN, 820 Oxford Bdg., Chicago Ill.

William E. Ault, Jeffersonville, Indiana, writes: "In reference to your reply to J. T., in the issue of Dec. 22nd, the 'Official French Catalogue' illustrates a type of surcharge for this issue (Scott Nos. 23 to 27 Madagascar), which differs materially from the catalogue illustration, and while the former cannot be said to have a straight neck to the 5, yet it is nearly so, and could be called such in comparison to the latter. From this, it seems there may be several types of this overprint, but a foot-note at the end of this issue tells us that 'numerous counterfeits exist.' The following comprised the number of stamps issued with this surcharge: Scott No. 23, 500; No. 24, 900; No. 25, 900; No. 26, 600 and No. 27, 1,000. I trust that this information may be of some interest to your correspondent."

Subscriber:—This inquirer asks: "Will you kindly inform me if there is any way of bringing out the grill on an old United States issue, so that it may be measured more accurately?" We do not know of any method by which the grill impressed faintly can be coaxed to show forth plainly. Perhaps, this statement should be qualified a bit by saying that any way that would be effective would scarcely be advisable to attempt. Almost any process that would have a tendency to make the grill distinct, would act detrimetically to the appearance of the specimen, we should say. On one occasion, we saw a bit of candle wax rubbed over a faintly grilled surface with the result that the embossed square presented an oily surface, distinctive from the rest of the paper by reason of its darker shade. Immersion in benzine sometimes is helpful in making a weak grill more visible.

F. C. L.:—This correspondent sends for inspection an interesting piece of revenue stamped paper of the post-Revolutionary period; the date shown on the document is 1802. On the parchment are two colorless, raised impressions; one is circular, slightly over an inch in diameter, showing the American eagle, perched on a shield; below is "ten cents" in capitals. The second impression is square; its central design is a circular band enclosing the thirteen stars representing the colonies. Above is "Com. Rev. U. S.;" below "X Cents." The antiquarian significance of these revenue impressions perhaps are best appreciated by philatelists.

Absolute necessity compelled me to break up the fine $25,000 collection mentioned in my advertisements last season, so many demands being made for selections. This collection, with another nearly as good, has been broken up and mounted, ready to send out according to countries, in approval books holding 100 stamps each, giving a selection of 20 000 varieties from Abyssinia to Zululand complete. Prices are marked according to Scott's catalogue, and except in rare cases 50% discount is allowed. Most dealers allow 10% or not more than 25% disct. For the grade of stamps offered by me you can't possibly find their equal at the price. Try me with a want list. Don't forget the reference.

H. R. S.:—Our correspondent says: "I have a green half-penny, Queen's head, Great Britain, postmarked Dublin, and in the ring, just opposite, are the words, 'Too Late.' I did not know that they had a too late stamp; what is it and why is it? (2) I have a stamp like Colombian Republic, catalogue number 392, except that it is on grayish paper. It is postmarked three straight bars at top, and a number, 18, is all I can see of what probably is a part of the obliterating date. Is it a really, truly stamp, or only an April Fool? I did not see it on the cover." The purpose of the "Too Late" impression, noticed by our correspondent is to record the information that the letter on which the words are impressed was received after the closing of the mail, despatched from a port, by steamer, abroad. (2) We can find no mention of the 50c, unpaid letter, 1865 Colombian, on any paper except yellow. If your stamp is a genuine specimen, the original color of the paper of the stamp must have become changed chemically in some way, altering it to gray.

POSTAGE STAMPS.

Many friends look at my stamps and say, "Oh, it's merely a fad." Sometimes I show my collection to my schoolmates, and they remark that they would not give ten cents for all the stamps I could produce. I do not think that stamp collecting is merely a fad, but if is, it is the most helpful and interesting one that I know of.

It helps a boy going to school immensely, and some of the adults would be startled to know of the many important benefits derived from it.

There is born in man a desire to own, and a boy especially is proud of the many trivial things he owns. No matter how small the collection, he is as proud as the president when he points out his collection to his friends and says, "These are mine."

It is a good deal better for a boy to invest his pennies in stamps than in candy, and I am yet to be convinced that stamp collecting is not the best indoor sport that a boy can indulge in.—Written by CHESTER BOOTH, 818 Camp St., Indianapolis, Ind.; age 12 years, McCoy School, 8 A Grade.

[The foregoing essay was awarded the prize of a ten-dollar "Golden Genie" packet offered by E. L. Warner to the youthful philatelist who sent the best written composition on the subject of postage stamps, under the provisions of the contest, as announced in the WEEKLY of November 10th, 1906.]

THE DEATH OF MR. THOMAS.

Supplementing our notice last week of the death of F. M. Thomas, of the Thomas Stamp Co., we have received from A. Krassa of New York a letter giving further particulars concerning his career. Mr. Krassa was intimately associated with Mr. Thomas. We take the liberty of quoting from his letter:

"Mr. Thomas received notice from the owners of the building where his office was located in N. Y. City to move within sixty days on account of rebuilding operations. He became very much discouraged, and made up his mind to sell out his business and visit his sister in Germany, whom he had not seen for twenty-five years, yet to whom he had always been very much attached. It was planned that she should come to this country this spring and visit him, but under the circumstances he made up his mind to surprise her for Christmas. (Mrs. Thomas' letter informing me of the death is dated December 25, Christmas day.)

"In the excitement of settling his affairs, disposing of his business and his household effects, and attending to all the details incidental to his departure, he contracted a bad cold and was quite sick, when, Dec. 13, he went on board the ship Auguste Victoria. I am informed by Mrs. Thomas that her husband died three days later, on Dec. 16, and was buried at sea the next morning. He had not spoken to his wife after I had bade him good-bye in the steamer's cabin. Mr. Thomas leaves besides his widow, two children, a boy of ten and a girl of thirteen. He was much beloved by all his associates and friends everywhere, having had the rare gift of making friends wherever he went.

"He had been in business for many years in New Orleans, whence he came to New York, making a success of his stamp business through hard work and close application to the details of the same. The stamp trade has lost a good man. As a father and husband he could not have been kinder and more devoted to his family, and it is a terrible misfortune for his stricken widow. Mrs. Thomas will come back to the U. S. about the 15th of next month."

EDITORIAL.

Helping Philately—We have dwelt at times in the past upon the substantial service that the philatelic commoner may render philately by refuting libelous remarks, not inspired by malice but by a lack of authentic information on philatelic subjects, in print, or by correcting published mis-statements concerning the hobby, by addressing letters to the newspapers in which the accounts appeared. Individual efforts of this nature are a welcome re-enforcement of the work that is being done by the National Stamp Committee; and this division of endeavor may become a very important one, measured by results. This repetition of the propriety of the stamp collector entering into the movement for the dissemination of reliable philatelic information is impelled by the appearance of a letter written by Albert Durkee, Chicago, in answer to an article on stamp collecting, by no means complimentary to philatelists in its findings, that appeared in "Marion Harland's" department in the widely circulated Chicago Daily News, and which was commented upon in the WEEKLY. Mr. Durkee's letter certainly reflects the courage of his convictions that philately is an ideal hobby, as may be judged from his opening paragraph: "Canceled postage stamps are collected by thousands of men, women and children throughout the wide world as a pastime, and to gratify the insatiable hunger and thirst after what is best translated by the French word 'divertisement.' When once a person is the least interested in this diversion he becomes infatuated with it, and it will never cease to be extremely interesting so long as he lives. It is captivating, instructive, highly respectable and beneficial to all who engage in it, especially for young people. By its wholesome entrancement, they may avoid many wicked and evil pastimes which would otherwise engage their attention and ruin them, body and soul." From Mr. Durkee's closing paragraph we take the lines: "I have been a collector and small dealer in stamps for twenty five years, and I cannot too highly recommend collecting to all people as a diversion that has no equal as a general nerve-soother, brain-tonic and delightful pastime." The following comment on the letter, from which we have quoted, is supplied by "Marion Harland" herself: "A new and pleasing light is cast upon the popular craze by this well-written letter and by other correspondents who tell of collecting stamps to be sold for the support of foreign missionaries. One says that she sends her stamps to the missionary direct. That our seemingly worthless canceled stamps should help Christianize the world imparts dignity to a pastime."

Patience and Persistence Needed—The foregoing item illustrates at once the operation of a method that may be employed in setting philately right, and the fact that it is not easy to place the hobby in its proper perspective in the view of the outsider. While the references to missionary work through stamps are justifiable, yet the impression to be conveyed is that primarily stamp collecting is not an adjunct to missionary work, but that it is an orderly pursuit, possessing scientific aspects that provides entertainment, instructive and recreative, to thousands of followers who are so confirmed in their belief in its inherent and acquired qualities that they are glad to proclaim their identity with the hobby. Patience and constant iteration are necessary to place philately in its proper colors before the minds that are full of other thoughts or that are not ordinarily receptive of the philatelic idea.

Rich Old Rarities—A London dealer who advertises the largest stock of European stamps in the world points his claim with the statement that he has for sale, twenty-seven pieces of the first issue of Moldavia; twelve Tuscany, 3 lire and nine pieces of the blue Naples, arms type. While these statistics of stamp possession are impressive to those who are well-informed regarding the increasing scarcity of the stamps named which have always been rare, yet, we take it, that others will be surprised that the largest stock of European stamps in a firm's vaults does not yield more than the number named. Those who are aware of the difficulty of securing these old standard rarities even at a generous outlay find the figures significant; and they will become so to the newer generation of collectors as they advance to a pinnacle that will allow them to survey the heights of philately.

Buy, Not Beg Them—A correspondent of a newspaper says that it is an arduous task to count a million stamps, and that at the rate of sixty a minute it would require nearly twenty-seven days of ten hours each to count them. He writes to show that the one who starts to gather one million stamps for the alleged offer of one hundred dollars "by the government" or "somebody" imposes a task upon himself whose execution entails work worth over one hundred dollars. The stamp dealer is ready to sell a million stamps to any one who must have them, and who is disposed to consider quantity instead of quality; and the million stamp enthusiast will find that it is cheaper to buy the stamps at one fell

ONLY 1087 LOTS

CATALOGUE VALUE $111,847.30

There are lots in this sale suitable for all classes of buyers, both collectors and dealers,—large lots and a few small ones. But there will certainly be bargains for all and it will pay you to be present.

We predict a big boom in U. S. Envelopes as the result of this sale as we are closing out the only large holding of U. S. Envelopes and prices are bound to advance.

After lot No. 823 in our sale the following note appears:—

(Few people realize that only 500 each of the 90c envelopes Nos. 1528 and 1532 were made and in comparison with many high priced stamps are easily worth $50 00 each; 1000 each of 30c envelopes Nos. 1527, 1531, 1538 and 1545 were made, 500 of each being in a small size and 500 of each being in a large size, and are worth $25.00 each; 5000 each of 4c envelopes Nos. 1524 and 1529 were made and are worth at least $7.50 each. The entire remaining stock of all above envelopes is in this sale.)

See MEKEEL'S WEEKLY for Jan. 5, 1907 for our complete catalogue or else send to us for a catalogue if you wish to place bids. This is truly a chance of a lifetime. Come to buy! Come out of curiosity!! Come anyway!!!

Still a Catalogue — That the large stamp catalogues enter prominently into the philatelic lives of readers is evident to us from the letters of criticism that are received occasionally regarding this or that feature of the volumes. That such letters are usually couched in terms adversely critical is natural, as it is to be inferred that expressions of approbation would be sent to the publishers of the catalogues themselves. In an interesting communication just at hand from a reader, a phase of one of the leading catalogues is regarded from an angle that is not an ordinary one. The writer says: "One of the catalogue publishing firms points out that the prices quoted in its catalogue are based upon actual stock and not upon imagination. I scarcely think that this is the correct stand. If a dealer quotes prices for the goods he has in stock, he simply publishes a price-list of what he has to sell and not a catalogue. A catalogue should give, so far as possible, the prices based upon the world's supply and demand, and not upon the stock of a single dealer. Suppose that this dealer has five copies of a certain stamp in stock, and also has a strong demand for them; he may consider them rather scarce, and consequently, the stamp, in his opinion, should be worth, say, twenty-five dollars each. Another dealer may have ten or fifteen copies of the same stamp in stock, and may be willing to sell them at fifteen dollars each, if the catalogue had not placed the price at twenty-five dollars. It seems to me that no firm can base catalogue prices upon its stock unless the firm controled the world's supply, and I think that no single dealer is powerful enough to reach that end."

A Matter of Choice—A stamp catalogue is a list of the stamps of the countries of the world, and when the items are priced it becomes a priced catalogue. Of course, the equity and judgment observed in pricing the stamps are an important factor that has everything to do with the value of the book. Even an arbitrary rule would not dismiss a work as being out of the catalogue class, because the stamps might not be adjusted according to the realities of the general stamp market. There are cataloguers who price stamps according to estimates of the available stocks of the world, qualified by supply and demand; others, price stamps in relation to their own stocks. Either method is adopted only after consideration by the cataloguer who, necessarily, must be a person of sound and ripe judgment, and long experienced in philately as a worker among stamps. Perhaps, any catalogue is not an absolutely true reflection of all values in all cases, but when sincerity and no jugglery of figures to serve selfish ends enter into the question, the catalogue is worthy of consideration, and any distinctive plan in pricing that embodies it may add to the user's information.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centres. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—The J. M. Bartels Co. has added another room to their offices in the Old South Building. Increased business brings with it the necessity of increased facilities for handling the same.

—We are indebted to Edwin B. Hill for no less than five stamp clippings from the New York Sun of recent dates. One of these is the famous "Zoo" story by Mr. Burroughs illustrated by cuts of some half dozen stamps.

—At the meeting of the Chicago Branch One, American Philatelic Association, held January 10th, Eugene Doeblin, Pittsburg, Pa., whose loyalty to and long association with the society are common knowledge, was nominated as President to head the Chicago ticket of American Philatelic Association officers for 1907. Nominees will be named for further offices at subsequent meetings. The Chicago Branch, in nominating Mr. Doeblin for the highest office, conformed to the sentiment that existed last year, when Mr. Doeblin's name was omitted on the list of nominees.

—We are indebted to Wm. L. Hamilton, Jr., for the first "Bird" story clipping. It is taken from the Sunday Call of Newark, N J. Will our readers kindly send us this story wherever found in order that we may keep a record of its use by the press?

—We are lacking several numbers desired for the completion of some 1906 files. Will any of our readers who are willing to favor us kindly postal card name and address when we will indicate our wants, and be very grateful for the co-operation extended?

—At the Wendell Phillips high-school, Chicago, on January 8th, the Chicago Philatelic Society stereopticon lecture on stamps was given before different classes during the day by Mr. Hand of the school. On January 11th, the lecture was delivered by Dr. Storke at the Oak Park, Ill, Y. M. C. A., the event having been advertised by really creditable posters by a home artist, showing enlarged stamps, at different points of vantage. Tickets, each bearing a foreign stamp, were sold at stores and by the members of the philatelic club, to the number of about four hundred.

—J. M. Bartels recently addressed the boys of the Boston Y. M. C. A. giving them a stamp talk that was much appreciated.

—Chas. R. Trowbridge sends us a clipping from the Baltimore Sun, "Bogus Postage Stamps" suggesting that it may emanate from the National Stamp Committee. We hasten to assure our readers that articles of this kind are not put into circulation in the publicity campaign inaugurated by this committee.

—In the Chicago American for January 11th, McGill, the cartoonist, well-known as the creator of the "Hall-Room Boys," had the usual series of six pictures depicting the final embarrassment of the Hall-Room Boys, which in this instance was occasioned by the pretensions of the boys having been shattered by their lack of philatelic knowledge. The stamp collecting theme has full play in the cartoons. Several of our subscribers have favored us with clippings of the above.

—"Along the line of missionary work I have this year presented a catalogue to the local High School library and also subscribed for a copy of MEKEEL'S WEEKLY for the reading table." — REV. G. W. WELSH, Columbiana, Ohio. All of which we can certainly commend as good "missionary work."

—Charles L. Pond, Denver, was a recent visitor in Chicago, where his accounts of proceedings in the coming convention city were received with interest.

—"Several times the subject of a suitable badge to be worn by members of the American Philatelic Association has been discussed in the columns of the WEEKLY. Why would not the seal of the Association reproduced in a small gold badge, pin or button, be not only suitable, but 'just the right thing.' To my mind none of the designs heretofore submitted can compare with the Association seal for simplicity and beauty. We surely ought to have something of the sort, and trust you will consider my suggestion worthy of a second thought."—PAUL M. ELSDEN, A. P. A. 2158.

—From the Secretary of the Chicago Philatelic Society, P. M. Wolsieffer, a vest-pocket reminder of all the meetings, with dates, has been received; and on the reverse of the card are the words of the song of the society.

SPREAD THE INFORMATION!

The National Stamp Committee urges you to use in the local press the Burroughs letter on page one. Reprints gladly furnished. Write the secretary at once. It is a bright, attractive, newsy article and will make stamp collectors. Special mention in the WEEKLY for assistance rendered in placing this letter.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES.

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Any information regarding new issues will be gratefully received and acknowledged. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. The figures in parentheses refer to the previous number of the WEEKLY in which the same country was noticed

AUSTRIAN CRETE (829). — The North Shore Stamp Co. has shown us the 10c on 10h carmine, noted in No. 829, though the specimen shown has the shiny bars. Evidently they are printed both on stamps with and without shiny bars.

CANADA (837). — C. W. Cruickshank has shown us a copy of ½c Queen's Head, figures, with the new Toronto precancel surcharge "For third class matter only."

CURACAO (828).—The new gulden values have been shown us by the North Shore Stamp Co., the design being the same as the same values of Dutch Indies, Scott's A10 under the latter country. The colors are dull and the paper has a yellowish tint. They were chronicled in No. 828.

ECUADOR (836).—Hermann Focke sends us a cover with another provisional from this country, the surcharge being the same as those noted in No. 836, like Scott's No. 231, but "Un Sucre" light blue fiscal of "1901-1902" is used. The surcharge is in black.

Provisional Adhesive.

"Tres Centavos" on Un Sucre light blue.

Mr. Focke says that most of the New Year's congratulations were franked with 3c, and some with 2c, which leads him to believe that this value may be added to the new series of stamps predicted for this year.

MAURITIUS (810).—The 2c and 4c values have been shown us on chalky paper, by the North Shore Stamp Co., the 4c being on blue paper.

NATAL (828).—The North Shore Stamp Co. has shown us the 1sh gray blue and carmine on ordinary multiple paper.

NEW ZEALAND (837).—The new Exhibition commemorative set has been shown us by J. M. Bartels. There are four stamps in the set which were designed by L. J. Steel of Auckland, and engraved by W. R. Bock of Wellington. The stamps were available from the opening day of the Exhibition, Nov. 1, 1906, and during the tenure of the Exhibition which is being held at Christchurch.

The following description is from the Stamp Collector's Fortnightly:

"The half-penny stamp is called 'The Arawa,' and is a representation of the Maori canoe Arawa approaching the shores of New Zealand. So fine is the work that the individual figures of the natives on board the canoe (which is driving before the wind under a rude mat sail) can be seen gesticulating with joy at their near approach to the coast, represented by low lying hills in the background. Underneath the general design is printed in small type 'Commemorating season of 1906,' which indeed, appears on each stamp.

"The penny stamp is labelled Maori art. It represents Maoris engaged in carving the prow of a war canoe on the marae before the carved meeting-house. The palisade surrounding the pa at the rear, with other embellishments racy of the Maori, makes the design thoroughly characteristic.

"The threepenny stamp, printed in two colours, is especially well designed and gains much by the art of the engraver. It represents the landing of Captain Cook at Poverty Bay. On the one hand is the sea and Cook's vessel at anchor, and reflected against the waters of the bay are Cook and his English followers, and on the other is a knot of Maoris in their native clothing, with the chief advancing towards the great navigator. The little scene is perfectly drawn, and strikingly clear to the least particular.

"'The Annexation of New Zealand' is the subject matter of the design of the sixpenny stamp, which is also printed in two colours. The design represents the raising of the flagpole at Kororareka (Bay of Islands) on which the English standard is about to be hoisted."

NORTH BORNEO (821).—Ewen reports having seen the $5 in a deep violet instead of dull violet.

ROUMANIA (834).—We have been shown the 25b and 50b in the upright series with portrait of King Charles, and the 25b in the oblong series, error of color. The latter has been previously chronicled.

Ewen says the pictorial sets were engraved by Bradbury, Wilkinson & Co., Ltd., London, while the charity stamps and exhibition stamps were produced locally.

SALVADOR (833).—Hugo Zimmermann informs us that the new 6c postage stamp has been issued, the design being the same as the 1906 set, the color being the same as the 24c. The 5c ultramarine has changed its color to Prussian blue, the same as the 100c official. The whole set of the postage stamps is now out as they will elect a new president in Salvador, or may have already done so, there will likely be another flood of surcharges.

SARAWAK

A Complete History of Its Postage Stamps. By Bertram W. H. Poole. Published by D. Field (Fully Illustrated.)

I have recently published this volume dealing with the interesting and but little understood postal issues of Sarawak. It gives a very full description of all the minor varieties and types of the early issues, details the methods by means of which the stamps were produced, and tells all about the different styles of perforation and the various settings of the surcharges. It treats of a subject that has never been properly written up before and thus this volume is indispensable to collectors of Sarawak stamps and should also be in the possession of every active philatelist. You possibly have, quite unknowingly, some of the scarce types of Sarawak stamps and if you purchase a copy of this book you will learn how to identify them.

The regular monthly meeting was held Jan. 1st in room 448 Old South Building. Meeting was called to order by the President, H. W. Legg, at 8.20 P. M., nine members being present. Voted to dispense with reading of Secretary's report. Treasurer reported a balance of $16.69 on hand Jan. 1st. The following officers for 1907 were unanimously elected:—President, H. W. Legg; Vice President, Willis D. King; Secretary, Catano Fratus; Treasurer, A. P. Brown; Governing Board, Wm. G. Bail, Edwin F. Sawyer and Chas. H. Stone. The President appointed E. F. Sawyer and C. Fratus members of the Entertainment Committee.

There were several entries for the prizes offered in the competitive exhibition, but as there unfortunately appeared to have been some misunderstanding regarding date of meeting it was voted that the exhibition be postponed until the Febry. meeting and that the Secretary send out notices to that effect. The exhibits sent in were very fine both as regards condition and mounting and it is earnestly hoped that there will be a lively competition at the next meeting. Meeting adjourned at 10 P. M. after which there was an informal talk on stamp matters These talks which take place at every meeting are very instructive and form an interesting feature.

PROVIDENCE. R I., Jan. 11, 1907.

The regular monthly meeting was held in Room 6, Y. M. C. A. Bldg. Pres. Perry presiding. Minutes of previous meeting read and approved. John A. Solomon proposed for membership Wm. C. Polk. Mr. Polk's application was referred to the Executive Committee. The Executive Committee reported favorably on the applications last month of G. W. Pepper and B. A. Webber and they were duly elected members of the Society.

The Chair appointed the following on the Nominating Committee for Officers for 1907: Dr. S. A. Welch, O. L. Patt, Jr., and W. H. Congdon. For Banquet Committee F. M. Mason was appointed. A spirited auction sale ended the programme for the evening. Our Annual Banquet will be held on the evening of the 8th of February. The Banquet Committee will notify time and place later. Adjourned.

The forty-eighth regular meeting of this Society was held Tuesday, January 8. In the absence of President Cornwall, Vice President Humes occupied the chair with ten present. The early part of the evening was given over to informal discussions and interchange of ideas and stamps. As usual Canal Zones and Single CA's received a large share of attention.

Exchange Manager Hopkins reported Circuits No. 7 and No. 8 closed and all accounts settled; Circuit No. 9 closed and now solicits stamps from all members for the tenth. The success of this feature of our society, as well as that of all others, depends primarily upon the interest and support of the members individually and collectively and as this department operated under new system chronicled in last report, will be of incalculable benefit as a means of disposing of accumulations of duplicates, it is expected that the capacity will be severely taxed. Members are therefore urged to take immediate steps toward avoiding this congestion, so far as possible, by entering their books promptly—thus insuring the best service to the greatest number.

Messrs. T. C. Mann and L. T. Brodstone, two of our out-of-town members, were recent visitors. Thanks of the Society are due F. Millhouse for contributions to the library. The informal auction closed the evening.

"That pricelist was the most complete and satisfactory of any that I have ever received of a dealer's stock. I think you can dispute the title 'The people with the goods' with any one."

MR. ENGLE SAYS:—
"About a year ago you filled a want list so nicely that I enclose you another."

MR. WARD SAYS:—
"Please send two more of your fine 150 page pricelists as I want to give them to some friends. They are the best pricelists I have seen for a long time. Expect orders."

MR. BROWN SAYS:—
"I must congratulate you on your stock."

And many others too numerous to mention.

UNSOLICITED APPROVAL SELECTIONS

The president desires to thank those members and others who have sent in information desired concerning L. A. Prevost who has been sending unsolicited selections to applicants and others. I am in receipt of information giving his correct address which is not Springfield, Mass., and I have also been informed of two other addresses or firm names used by him in his business.

I am desirous of ascertaining whether any of his printed matter or his correspondence actually gives the impression that he was once from 963 Summer St., Springfield, Mass., as some of the complaints sent in seem to imply. If you have any such matter kindly send to the undersigned.

Fraternally yours,
WM. C. STONE, Pres.

As soon as your name has been published as an applicant you will probably have unsolicited selections of stamps sent you on approval. As a great many collectors object to this practice the Association desires to break the practice up. Please aid us and help protect yourself and others against further imposition, by holding such selections without purchasing any, until sufficient funds have been sent by the dealer to return it to him by registered mail. Also please report the names of such dealers to the Secretary of the Association.

BRANCH No. 18.

The regular monthly meeting of the Philadelphia Philatelic Society, Branch No. 18, A. P. A., was held on the evening of Jan. 2nd, at the Penna. Museum and School of Industrial Art, Pres. Hasseltine in the chair.

The evening was given over to Dr. Geo. Hetrich, of Birdsboro, Pa.; who exhibited his grand collection of Revenue stamps of the U. S. Dr. Hetrich's greatest pride is his collection of Match and Medicine stamps, which is practically complete in all the scarcer varieties, he also has all the high values of the 1st, 2nd, and 3rd issues, U. S. Revs.; as well as the 50c and $1.00 and $5.00 Proprietary, in superb condition. Taking it all in all it was a treat that is seldom afforded to the moderate collector.

The good doctor gave an instructive talk of his experiences as a collector, how he had become interested in M. and M. stamps by unearthing a large quantity of these stamps in an old drug store years ago. He gave much good advice to the young collector, from his rich store of knowledge, gained by experience in his chosen field. Dr. Hetrich was tendered a vote of thanks at the close of his able address.

DENVER, COLO., January 2d, 1907.

The 14th regular monthly meeting was called to order at 8.30 by President Nast. Minutes of the previous meeting were approved as read by the Secretary. The resignation of O. T. Hartman was received, and action on same was deferred until next regular meeting. Mr. Nast's talk on the 4c S. H. Howe private die Revenue was very instructive. Mr. Nast went into the subject of this "so called fake" at length, and gave reasons why it should be considered a legitimate issue.

Most of the evening was given over to the inspection and study of a superb U. S. Collection, property of A. K. McDaniel. Stamps were donated to the Club by our New York member, F. W. Reid, and our Parker, Colo., representative, Louis Rojot. Meeting adj. 10.30.

NOTICE TO MEMBERS.

Executive Board:—C. A. HOWES, Pres.; WILLARD O. WYLIE, Sec.; E. M. CARPENTER, Treas.; J.M. BARTELS, F. PUTNEY, JR., JOHN N. LUFF, HENRY N. MUDGE. Address Room 508 Kast Bdg., Boston, Mass.

The secretary is pleased to report that the good work is going on with a remarkable degree of success. Stamp matter is appearing frequently in the daily press, and philately is receiving more attention than has ever before been accorded it. I am situated where I can see these results better than any one else, receiving press clippings from two of the largest bureaus in the country. Dealers and collectors generally, especially the former, should show a larger interest in this movement than has been manifested.

Many dealers have thus far refrained from contributing anything to the funds, and it would be a great misfortune for the work that has been launched to be discontinued in mid-winter because of lack of funds. If you have not already subscribed please let us hear from you at once.

January 2, 1907.

Present 20.

New Members: Siegfried Rosenthal, 544 East 86th Street, New York City; Henry Voltz, 65 Nichols Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y. After the old officers read their yearly reports, the new officers were installed. Much credit was given to all past officers for having, through hard work, made this the most popular Society of New York.

Professor Morris Loewy was elected an honorary member for services tendered to philately in general, and the New York Society in particular. Attention is called to our Entertainment and Ball on February 6, 1907, where Prof. Loewy will play a prominent part. His art is too well known to require description. Other novel acts will be presented, prominent among which will be "The Piper of Hamlin" A good time is assured to all. January 16th, is the date of the next exchange meeting.

THE YEAR 1906 IN PHILATELY.

BOSTON, Jan. 1, 1907.

Fellow Members of the Boston Philatelic Society:

My predecessor introduced the custom of an annual report from the President, and our Secretary has asked to be excused from reviewing the past year, which has previously been done in his report, because of the extent of his duties. It therefore seems to devolve upon me not only to follow precedent but to supply the deficiency.

Without doubt the most important occurrence of the year was the International Philatelic Exhibition opened in London on May 23rd. This proved the greatest ever held and has doubtless wrought untold good to the cause of philately, not only in public estimation but in its scientific aspects. Over two and a half million dollars worth of stamps are said to have been on exhibition, and the character and arrangement of exhibits, as well as the standard of judging, have marked a great advance over all previous work in that line. Five American collectors were honored with awards: Mr. Henry J. Crocker the gold championship cup for his Hawaiians; Mr. George L. Pack a gold medal for Canada; Hon. E. R. Ackerman a bronze medal for Norway; Mr. Alex. Holland a bronze medal for Hayti; and Mr. C. A. Howes a bronze medal for Korea.

In this connection it is pleasing to note that the Premier Society has just been granted the privilege of styling itself the "Royal Philatelic Society," thus putting it on a plane with the other scientific societies whose standing and patronage justified the prefix "Royal" to their titles.

Philatelic exhibitions have also been held with success in Milan, Italy, and Buenos Ayres, Argentina, the past year.

Of importance to the world at large was the Congress of the Universal Postal Union held in Rome in March. This session took a long step forward in advancing the limit of weight for a single rate from 15 grams to 20 grams, and reducing the rate, after the first payment of 5 cents, to 3 cents for each succeeding unit. Equally important was the provision for the sale of coupons, good for exchange in any other country, for payment of return postage. These benefits will become operative on October 1, 1907.

France has finally reduced her domestic rate from 15 centimes (3 cents) to 10 centimes (2 cents) after years of agitation, the change taking place on April 16th.

C. A. HOWES, Pres. B. P. S.

In Denmark, we had scarcely become acquainted with the features of King Christian IX, appearing for the first time on her postage stamps, when the close of his long life was announced on January 29th. Up to the present time the portrait of King Frederick has not taken its place.

Unfortunately the so-called "bookkeeping period," which has been the bugbear for the long looked for Commonwealth of Australia issue, has passed without any further progress in the direction of a single set. Plenty of progress in State varieties has been made, nevertheless.

Two countries have made their exit this year, Labuan having been annexed to the Straits Settlements and Lagos having been joined to Southern Nigeria under the latter name. But several more have made their philatelic début: Brunei,

HOLTON STAMP COMPANY
62 Devonshire Street, - BOSTON, MASS.

Maldive Islands, Mauritania, Mohéli and Upper Senegal with Niger, the last three being French colonies and the first two British.

Beautiful new sets have been issued by Bosnia, Hayti and Liberia; while the commemorative habit has been responsible for a Nelson centenary and a discovery tercentenary by Barbados, a Pan-American Congress recognition by Brazil, and an Olympian Games celebration by Greece. While the occasional breaking forth into joy by a postal department may be condoned, yet a systematic ebullition such as Roumania has exhibited the past year can only be condemned in no uncertain tones. Four sets of so-called "Charity" stamps and three sets of commemoratives, numbering in all forty-seven varieties, beside the regular issue and a few left-overs from the last jubilee set, can have but one meaning—the "bleeding" of the philatelist. Let him who runs, read.

The placing on the market of the Somaliland official remainders and the surplus stock of the British Guiana 8-cent of 1890, is a phase of government dealing which merits discussion.

Competitions for new designs have been held in Switzerland and Norway the past year, and the results are expected to appear soon.

On September 18th the Swedish Philatelic Society celebrated its twentieth anniversary in an appropriate manner.

It is with regret that we have to record the deaths of four prominent philatelists: Dr. C. W. Viner, one of the pioneers of collecting as well as writing and editing, and Robert Ehrenbach, both in England; in America we have lost Wm. E. Loy of San Francisco, and Col. R. C. H. Brock of Philadelphia.

Of publications issued during the year, the most important is naturally Part III of the series on British African Colonies by the London Philatelic Society; Stamps of the United States and of Siam, by Fred J. Melville; Die Varieties of the Nesbitt Series of U. S. Envelopes, by V. M. Berthold; Stamps of the Canal Zone, by Geo. L. Toppan; Sarawak and Seychelles, by B. W. H. Poole; the Official Stamps of Great Britain, by I. J. Bernstein; the Work of the Firm of De La Rue, by E. W. Wetherell; the Philatelic Index, by W. A R. Jex Long; and Fifty Years of Philately, the history of the firm of Stanley Gibbons, Ltd.

An interesting philatelic play, entitled "The Lady Forger," was written by that versatile Englishman, Fred J. Melville, and successfully presented by the Junior Philatelic Society at the Bijou Theatre, London, on February 17th.

In our own country, the most important event was the Annual Convention of the American Philatelic Association, which met in our city upon invitation of the Boston Philatelic Society on August 14th-16th. That it was the most successful and enjoyable occasion yet held by the national body is conceded, and it is unnecessary for me to review it in detail. Of national importance to all was the dire calamity that befell San Francisco, in which philatelists suffered with the rest. I believe none that we know of lost their lives, and the destruction of philatelic treasures, while great, was not so bad as it might have been.

A National Fiscal Society has been proposed, and the movement bids fair to assume definite form very soon.

On December 18th our local philatelists organized a New England Branch of the American Philatelic Association, this being a resuscitation of the former Boston Branch.

Mr. Fred J. Melville, President of the Junior Philatelic Society of London, visited us last April and was entertained by philatelists here and in other cities, and by a special reception tendered him by our Society, which was a most successful affair.

Our Post Office Department has decided to issue two commemorative stamps for the Jamestown Exhibition this year, and has also given us a mauvais quart d'heure, as the French would say, by proposing to engrave the names of the 26 largest cities upon the current stamps, a set for each, and to surcharge the names of nearly 6,000 more, for purposes of identification — the old discarded scheme of Mexico. But it seems likely to be indefinitely postponed, from present indications. A Congressional investigation, however, has been looking into rates and methods which obtain in the Post Office Department, and some changes in these may yet occur. Among suggestions from the Department itself are: the abolishing of the "penalty envelope" and the return to official stamps; the issue of books of stamps in other denominations than 2 cents; and the introduction of the automatic stamp vending machine.

The Philippines have given us the long awaited set which has fully met our expectations. The use of the stamps for

20,000 Varieties

Absolute necessity compelled me to break up the fine $25,000 collection mentioned in my advertisements last season, so many demands being made for selections. This collection, with another nearly as good, has been broken up and mounted, ready to send out, according to countries, in approval books holding 100 stamps each, giving a selection of 20,000 varieties from Abyssinia to Zululand complete. Prices are marked according to Scott's catalogue, and except in rare cases 50% discount is allowed. Most dealers allow 10% or not more than 25% disct. For the grade of stamps offered by me you can't possibly find their equal at the price. Try me with a want list. Don't forget the reference.

39 NEWCASTLE ROAD, BRIGHTON, MASS.

telegrams, and their surcharging for official business in almost any manner to suit individual tastes, have introduced new aspects into the case, as well as their use in the proposed Postal Savings Bank scheme.

Revenue collectors have been pleased at the issue of Consular Fee stamps by the State Department for use abroad.

The National Stamp Committee deserves special mention for its success in the attempt to spread the gospel of philately by means of the newspaper press of the country. I believe they are doing a great work which will redound to the benefit of the hobby in every way, though the results may not be direct or startling.

Our own Society is in a flourishing condition, as the reports of your Officers in their respective departments will show. The two special meetings held, as receptions to the American Philatelic Association and to Mr. Melville, have already been alluded to. Our regular meetings have been full of interest, and the program for next year augurs well for their continuance. Notices of our meetings have been sent the leading Boston daily papers each month by the Secretary, but they have apparently lost their interest in us and now send no representatives to our meetings. I would suggest that the Chair be authorized to appoint a committee of one to be a Press Committee, whose duty it shall be to draw up a brief report of each meeting and see to its delivery at the newspaper offices on the evening of each meeting.

The Chair would also suggest the appointment of a committee of three to arrange for a stamp exhibition, to be held in this city the coming year, following the recommendations of the committee which recently reported on this subject.

The Chair also recommends that a standing committee of three be appointed, to be called the Committee on Permanent Quarters, who shall devise means looking toward the acquisition of a permanent room for the Society, which shall be open at any time to its members. I am aware that this proposition has been looked into by committees before, without result, but our Society is growing in importance and numbers and deserves a better housing than we have at present. It will at least do no harm to keep the subject agitated, and I trust that before another year we may see something accomplished in this direction.

Respectfully submitted,
CLIFTON A. HOWES, President.

(The annual report of the President of the B. P. S. is published by special arrangement as are the other reports of this Society, soon to be used in the WEEKLY. This is for the information of other societies that may desire a similar privilege.)

NEW HONORS FOR SEN. ACKERMAN.

One of our American philatelists who will be able to write F. R. P. S. after his name, indicating membership in the Royal Philatelic Society, is State Senator E. A. Ackerman of Plainfield, N. J., who has worked his way up from office boy to the presidency of one of the largest cement companies in the world. Mr. Ackerman has a superb collection, his stamps of Norway and Sweden being among the finest of these countries that can be shown, having secured several medals at exhibitions held here and abroad. The Senator is so much of an enthusiast that his "den" is said to be papered with uncancelled stamps of a South American republic. We are pleased to be able to give the readers of the WEEKLY a picture of Mr. Ackerman.

FURTHER NOTES ON THE TWO-CENT ENVELOPES OF 1903.

BY L. G. BARRETT.

It is always regretable when errors occur; and I am sorry to state that some crept in unawares into my descriptions of these die varieties as published last July. To begin with, a few of the varieties were found to have been duplicated by later ones, which either from poorer impressions or other causes were not recognized at the time as having been seen before. In this list I am giving all the changes made since the list of July 14, 21, 28, together with the descriptions of the later varieties as well as those assigned to vacant numbers.

Some retouches have also been found on new sizes, namely sizes 1 and 4, thus leaving size 10 as the only one not affected so far. The corrected list of sizes with the types on same is as follows: —

Size 1, Types 42, 54.
" 2, " 32, 42, 63.
" 3, " 17, 20, 38, 42, 43.
" 4, " 16.
" 5, " Re-engraved, 2, 2a, 2b, 2c, 4, 4a, 5, 6, 6a, 7, 9, 10, 13, 15, 16, 18, 19, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 32, 33, 35, 36, 36a, 37, 39, 44, 46, 47, 49, 50, 53, 54, 55, 56, 57, 59, 60, 61, 62, 63, 64, 65, 66, 69, 70, 72, 73, 74, 75, 76, 77, 78, 79, 80.
" 7, " 8, 11, 45.
" 8, " 2a, 42, 48, 52.
" 9, " 3.
" 10, (None as yet.)
" 11, Type 51.
" 13, " 1, 6, 12, 14, 19, 19a, 20, 27, 30, 31, 37, 39, 40, 41, 43, 46, 49, 57, 58, 67, 68, 71.
" 14, " 34, 50.
Wrapper, " 11, 13, 45.

The types which were found to be the same as earlier numbers were as follows:

Type 58 was same as Type 35.
" 66 " " 46.
" 69 " " 56.
" 70 " " 21.

In each case the earlier number was retained for the Type, which consequently left Nos. 58, 66, 69, 70 vacant, and these have been filled with new varieties as found, so that the correct descriptions of these new types is as follows:

Type 58. (Size 13 on W, BU, BL.)
(a) The inscription in upper ribbon is close to upper line of ribbon.
(b) Both 9's in 1799 are low down.
(c) The right half of left swallow-tail is broader than left half.
(d) The first shade-line at left end of lower ribbon extends up into upper line of ribbon.
(e) The shade-lines in right swallow-tail are low down in points of swallow tail.
Earliest date seen, Oct. 24, 1906.

Type 66. (Size 5 on W.)
(a) The A of STATES leans toward the second T; the top not coming directly under the 6th tooth as in most Types.
(b) Left end of upper ribbon slants down, and right end slants up.
(c) C of CENTS leans towards the E.
(d) The first S of STATES is close to lower line of upper ribbon, and first T leans towards the A.
Earliest date seen, Nov. 12, 1906.

Type 69. (Size 5 on W, BU.)
(a) TW of TWO are tall, being nearly full width of ribbon.
(b) N of UNITED very close to outer line of upper ribbon.
(c) The three shade-lines at left end of lower ribbon are long and lean to the left.
(d) E of STATES close to final S.
(e) The points of left swallow-tail are widely separated.
(f) The lower lobe at left end of lower ribbon is nearly triangular in form.
Earliest date seen, Oct. 15, 1906.

Type 70. (Size 5 on W.)
(a) G of POSTAGE close to A.
(b) The seventh tooth down at left is a spurred tooth.
(c) The top of large numeral 2 in upper right corner slants down towards the ball.
(d) Lower lobe at right is of good size and slants up.
(e) Lower lobe at left is nearly circular.
Earliest date seen, Oct. 3, 1906.

Continuing now from Type 70, the new varieties are as follows: —

Type 71. (Size 13 on W.)
(a) A of STATES small and close to first T.
(b) C of CENTS leans towards the E, and N is high up.
(c) I of WASHINGTON is low down.
(d) 1 of 1799 above level of other figures.
(e) Shade-lines very indistinct everywhere.
Earliest date seen, Oct. 24, 1906.

Type 72. (Size 5 on BL.)
(a) The A and first N of WASHINGTON are high up and I is vertical.
(b) The A's in STATES and POSTAGE are tall.
(c) There is a spurred tooth at left of lower ribbon, and there is a large blunt tooth under the space between S of CENTS and right shade-lines.
(d) The shade-lines at both ends of lower ribbon are very fine and close together.
Earliest date seen, Nov. 10, 1906.

Type 73. (Size 5 on W, A.)
(a) The lobes at left end of lower ribbon are nearly circular in form and have only a short connecting line.
(b) The 7 of 1799 has a short upward spur at top and the 9's show faulty engraving.
(c) The tooth under the space between the C and E of CENTS has a short line extending diagonally upward to the left from its point.
(d) Large teeth in lower right corner.
Earliest date seen, Oct. 18, 1906.

Type 74. (Size 5 on W, A.)
(a) The I of WASHINGTON is tall as in Type 8.
(b) There is a double-pointed tooth over right large numeral 2.
(c) 17 of 1799 is high
(d) The first shade-line at left end of lower ribbon leans sharply to the left while the 2nd and 3rd ones are vertical.
(e) The right end of upper ribbon slants downward.
(f) The N of CENTS is shorter than the other letters.
Earliest date seen, Dec. 4, 1906.

Type 75. (Size 5 on W.)
(a) The lower lobe at left end of lower ribbon is large and horizontal while the upper one is very thin and slants upward.
(b) The first fold of upper ribbon at left is very small.
(c) The reverse folds of upper ribbon at right are about equal as in Type 1.
(d) The left half of right swallow-tail is longer than the right half.
(e) The shade-lines at right end of lower ribbon slant outward, the outer one running into the end line of ribbon.
Earliest date seen, Nov. 24, 1906.

Type 76. (Size 5 on W.)
(a) Both T's in STATES drop down below the other letters, the stem of the first T nearly touching lower line of ribbon.
(b) U of UNITED leans back towards the end l ne of ribbon and the I leans back towards the N.
(c) Both ends of upper ribbon slant downward.
(d) The shade-lines at left end of lower ribbon are short and slant diagonally outward.
(e) The line indicating the second fold of the upper ribbon at the right is above the curve of the second fold and almost on a line with the back of the E of POSTAGE, curving down to meet the fold instead of being tangent to it as is usually the case. (This is difficult to describe, but when once seen cannot be mistaken.)
Earliest date seen, Dec. 4, 1906.

Type 77. (Size 5 on W.)
(a) E of POSTAGE very large, the base touching lower line of ribbon.
(b) A of STATES high and close to first T.
(c) Final 9 of 1799 is high.
(d) The tooth under the space between the words TWO and CENTS is doubly barbed like an arrow-head.
(e) The lower lobe at left is of good size and horizontal.
(f) The shade-lines in right swallow-tail are high up at point of division in left half, and low down in right half.
Earliest date seen, Nov. 10, 1906.

Type 78. (Size 5 on W.)
(a) Lower lobe at left slants upward more than in any other variety with the exception of Type 24 and has a long stem connecting it with the end of ribbon.
(b) The right half of left swallow-tail ends in a double point, extending directly downward.
(c) Lower lobe at right end of lower ribbon is short and horizontal.
(d) Right half of right swallow-tail terminates in a straight line pointing directly downward.
(e) First shade-line at left end of lower ribbon extends full width of ribbon, apparently running into both top and bottom lines of the ribbon.
Earliest date seen, Oct. 15, 1906.

Type 79. (Size 5 on W.)
(a) I in WASHINGTON high up.
(b) N of CENTS small and far from T; C leans back.
(c) There is a doubly-barbed tooth under C of CENTS.
(d) There is but one line of shading in the fold of upper ribbon at right of U of UNITED.
(e) Lower lobe at right end of lower ribbon is high up and horizontal.
(f) E of POSTAGE tips down sharply.
Earliest date seen, Nov. 13, 1906.

Type 80. (Size 5 on W.)
(a) Left end of upper ribbon slants up towards nose of bust and reverse folds at right of U slant to the left.
(b) First S of STATES and G of POSTAGE are close to upper line of ribbon.
(c) 3 of 1732 has a double lower curve.
(d) T of TWO is tall.
(e) The 1 and 7 of 1799 are large and the 1 is high up.
(f) The shade-lines at left end of lower ribbon are straight and vertical and nearly the full width of ribbon, the outer two running into lower line of ribbon.
Earliest date seen, Dec. 6, 1906.

Besides the above new varieties, there have appeared certain impressions of some of the earlier types which leads to the belief that a second retouching has been resorted to. This is quite noticeable in the varieties which have been numbered 2c, 4a and 19a, where most of the finer lines have been omitted entirely, other lines altered, and the bust of Washington so changed as to be ludicrous.

The following descriptions will assist in identifying them: —

Type 2c. (Second Retouch. Size 5 on W, A, BU, BL.)
(a) The bust of Washington has no eyebrow in profile, nose and forehead being continuous; nose is sharp and slightly upturned; mouth open.
(b) There is a diagonal line extending from the point of fourth tooth down at right, to the outer line of upper ribbon to the right of G of POSTAGE
(c) The A of STATES does not extend into lower line of ribbon, but A of POSTAGE does.
(d) There are no shade-lines in first fold of upper ribbon to the right of U of UNITED.
(e) The tooth at the left of upper lobe at left end of lower ribbon sets in towards the lobe; also the two teeth below W of TWO are up above the line of the others.

Type 4a. (Second Retouch. Size 5 on W.)
(a) The first tooth down at left is large and far from second tooth; second and third teeth are close, similar to a large double-pointed tooth, and the fourth, fifth and sixth teeth are small.
(b) C of CENTS is not closed as in Type 4.
(c) The nose of Washington is extremely straight and sharply pointed, and the queue projects below the lower line of bust.
(d) There are but two rather fine shade-lines at either end of lower ribbon.
(e) All the letters of UNITED are much thinner than in Type 4, especially the N.
(f) The tooth in lower left corner is entirely separated from its neighbors.
Earliest date seen, Nov. 12, 1906.

Type 19a. (Second Retouch. Size 13 on W, A.)
(a) The seventh tooth down at left is entirely missing.
(b) The tooth in lower left corner, formerly spurred, is now normal.
(c) First stroke of W of TWO is very thin.
Earliest date seen, Nov. 28, 1906.

Since the former list was published the following types have been found on other papers or sizes than those listed: —

The "spurred 7" variety of the original die now comes on BL as well as W and A.

The "Re-engraved" type comes in a form similar to 36a, with the cross-bar of A of WASHINGTON missing, otherwise normal; found on W and A.

Type 2 on BU; 2a, Size 5 on A; 6, Size 13 on A; 11 on WR; 13 on BL; 16. Size 5 on BL and Size 4 on W; 21 on BL; 23 on BU and BL; 24 on BL; 30, Size 5 on A; 32, Size 2 on W and BL; 35 on A; 36a on W, A and BL; 37, Size 5 on BU; 38 on A and BL; 39, Size 5 on W and BL; 42, Size 1 on W, Size 3 on W, and Size 8 on A; 43, Size 3 on BL; 45, Size 7 on BL; 46, Size 5 on BU; 47 on BU and BL; 48 on A; 49 Size 5 on A and BU, Size 13 on A and BU; 50, Size 5 on BU, Size 14 on W; 52 on A; 54, Size 1 on W; 55 on BU; 56 on BL; 58, Size 13 on W. NOTES ON MATCH AND MEDICINE.

By E. S. PHELPS.

N. Y. Match Co., 5c blue—Always a scarce stamp within my recollection and found only when some good sized collection has been offered. The stamp generally comes in good condition and it is well worth catalogue price.

Pierce Match Co.—This variety is considered by some who are fortunate enough to possess one, the most beautiful of Match stamps, the design is certainly original and striking. The designer possibly got his ideas from the first issue of San Salvador. The stamp is unfortunately generally found poorly centered, but one may consider himself very lucky who has the stamp in any condition. I have never seen the stamp except in advanced collections, and it is my opinion that not more than an even dozen is known.

V. R. Powell Wrapper—These wrappers with full margins are excessively rare although the wrapper cut down, as it most often occurs, used to turn up occasionally some years ago, but the supply has been completely absorbed. The stamp is found on thick white paper, but whether this was a wrapper or an adhesive seems to be a mooted question, as the whole wrapper on this paper is unknown.

Richardson 1c and 3c red—These stamps used to be fairly common but now they are hard to find. They generally come poorly centered. The one cent stamp was used as a check stamp and is known by the pen cancellation.

Ryder, Crouse & Welch—These stamps when catalogued 25c were hard to obtain. Although a large number was issued they seem to have been lost. They are generally found in fine condition, and not infrequently with o. g.

San Francisco Match—One of the most beautiful of Match stamps, and the demand far exceeds the supply.

S. C. B. C. 1c black—This issue like the R. C. & W. seems to have been almost completely lost as only a comparatively few copies are to be found. They are quite often o. g. and nearly always in fine condition, indicating remainders. At the present catalogue price the stamp is a bargain.

Wise & Co.—A stamp that was always rare, and few seem to have been saved. The price given in the catalogue is much too low to indicate its true scarcity. I have records of but nine having been offered at auction since the Sterling sale in 1888. How many of these were different stamps I cannot say.

Ziseman, Griesheim & Co., green—Back in the late '70's I can remember that the Scott Co. used to advertise to buy this stamp for $10 00, and it seems strange to me that the stamp isn't worth any more today, as they never turn up except in some specialist's collection. I have records of but seven ever being sold at auction and undoubtedly some of them were the same stamps. This stamp and the preceding are scarcer than the Brown & Durling black and the Gorman black, which are priced much higher.

Although nearly all the blue Match and some of the Medicine stamps are listed as occurring in ultramarine color, yet I have only seen a comparative few in the real shade. The others occur in a pale milk blue, which is a very distinct shade from the original but not a true ultramarine. It would be a source of general interest among the Match and Medicine collectors if some individual who had the time and inclination, would endeavor to determine in a systematic way, just how many some of the rarest varieties could be brought to light at the present day. This information, I think, could be obtained without any great expense or labor by correspondence among the foremost collectors of the day.

EDITORIAL.

Golden Days—We wonder if collectors generally are appreciative or even realize the scope of the great philatelic revival that is spreading throughout the country. Unless one chances to be in a position that affords a comprehensive view of present day philatelic conditions, one cannot measure fairly the volume of exceptional interest that prevails. There has been a genial conspiracy to advance philately, fostered by the National Stamp Committee and individual collectors, and the good times nationally, coupled with the desire of the people to attend to any line of thought or endeavor that conduces to mental improvement. Already, philately has received substantial benefit and assurances are unmistakable that the progress will be maintained, if not accelerated, at least for some time to come. Indeed, these are pleasant days to be associated with philately. Aside from the sentimental satisfaction in seeing the seal of high and general approval placed on stamp collecting, it is to be reasoned, if one is inclined to be material, that philately becomes the more solidified and permanent through additions of interest and activity as typified by new adherents. An augmented demand for stamps in connection with a diminishing supply of all obsolete issues means that stamp prices are affected with the consequence of increased assets represented in the stamps. Probably, it was never to be said so truthfully, as now, that investment in any good stamps today, is wise from the view-point of possible profits.

Good Old Issues—There has been no sudden, sensational advances in the prices of the obsolete issues recently, if several instances are not considered, notwithstanding that there is a strong improvement in the numerical strength of collectors and a stimulated interest in stamps. Many new collectors are attracted by the freshness and sightliness of new issues, and they find the pursuit of novelties so engaging that they are content to allow them to monopolize their collecting efforts; in time, however, their range of vision will become more embracive and include the sterling old stamps. If any certainty may attach to predictions supported by logical premise, the old issues must increase in value, not so slowly and surely as in the past, but with much more noticeable movement. The obsolete issue is the old reliable of philately that may be depended upon to give better reports of its value in the stamp market as the months go by.

Slight Reaction—The following letter has been received, practically in the form as given: "Some time ago, I think that I read in the WEEKLY that condition exactions or qualifications had become so acute that it was to be expected that a reaction would soon be experienced that would reduce the critical demands to a more equitable basis. Has there been any change in the standard today, as compared with that which obtained at the time you wrote, say, some years ago? In my opinion, condition is more of a sine qua non than ever." we have presented the remarks so that they retain their original meaning; and to consider the last sentence of our correspondent first, we say that the condition question is no more refined now than it was a few years ago when some condition enthusiasts collected on the principle that the stamps had to be such that nothing better could be imagined. The mind cannot get beyond this last boundary. We believe that indications are not lacking to show that in one respect the condition demands are not keyed up to the extreme that they were once. We speak in regard to centering in the light that it is known that some collectors who were hyper-critical in the past as to exactitude of centering, now say that they allow of some license in this detail. Whether this slight loosening of demand has been encouraged by the difficulty of obtaining many specimens exactly centered, or not, we cannot say, but as a compromise proposition it is fair to assume that this consideration as well as a natural tendency, is to be recognized as having its influence.

A Question of Price—The condition question is in process of settlement in a natural way, without any resented interference or reformative attempts. The graduation of stamps into condition classes with prices that are based on the varying conditions is now generally done. Condition and price are now dovetailed together so nicely that the first factor influences the second. Condition is a commodity, in effect, that is paid for, and the man who wants "perfection" does not think himself discriminated against if he is charged for the "ultra" condition. We suspect that much of the adverse criticism that was heard some years ago about condition cranks was due to the fact that condition was not classified as it is now, and that the inference followed in the estimation of some of the stamp sellers that the collector wanted perfection at the price of the average commercial copy.

Death of Persia's Ruler—The newspapers, some weeks ago, chronicled the death of Muzaffer-ed-Din, the shah of Persia, at the age of fifty-three years. The decedent who succeeded his father on the throne May 1st, 1896, was much closer, in a sense, to the stamp collector than to the member of the general public, through his portrait on the Persian stamps, issues of 1898 and 1900. The shah was a popular sovereign, with comparatively liberal tendencies politically; he instituted reform measures upon his accession to the throne, and further, he was a man of erudition and broadened by travel. Among his hobbies, shooting and motoring are mentioned, and perhaps, philatelists notice that stamp collecting is not named in this connection. It has been published at different times in the past that "the shah of Persia is an ardent stamp collector and possesses one of the finest collections" and so on, in familiar strain. The shah's alleged fondness for stamps may be docketed with other stories of the kind,—interesting, if true.

Jamaica's Travail—The horrifying disaster at Kingston, Jamaica, draws the sympathetic attention of collectors, among all others, to the island; and philatelic thought will center on the stamps of the colony, whose postal issues are clean and on popularly conservative, if the expression is allowed, lines. The first issue with the distinctive pineapple watermark is regarded by many collectors as being very desirable property at prevailing prices, particularly in unused condition.

Birth of Premier Society—From the London Philatelist, we take the following account of the inception of the Royal Philatelic Society, London, the organization that was so signally honored recently by King Edward: "It was not until the years 1866-9 that there was any communion or fore-gathering of the kindred spirits. Towards the close of the year 1868, several gentlemen of good social position and attainments were accustomed to meet together to compare notes, the earliest records thereof pointing to those held at the house of the Rev. F. J. Stainforth, which were attended by Mr. F. A. (now judge) Philbrick, past President of the Philatelic Society, and other gentlemen, who subsequently also became members of that body. It was on the initiative of these two gentlemen that a meeting of a number of amateurs of the Philatelic Science was held on Saturday, 10 April, 1869, at 93 Great Russell Street, Bloomsbury, for the purpose of taking into consideration the expediency of forming a Philatelic Society." The first President of the society, which was destined to become one of the most influential factors in philately, was Sir Daniel Cooper, Bt.

Our business was established in 1861 but during the past five years we have advertised more extensively than all the other forty years put together. We regret that pressure of other business compels us to retire from the stamp business.

We wish to take this occasion to thank our thousands of customers for their patronage and support during the past five years.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centres. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—The National Museum at Washington has recently figured in the press in connection with the theft of some stamps, coins, gold dust and diamond crystals. One Edwin Letchmere has been arrested charged with the larceny of these exhibits. The stamps numbered 200 in number and the information at hand shows that British Central Africa was prominently represented. The valuation of the lot is fixed at close to $600.00. Letchmere maintains his innocence, but the police feel that they have the right man in custody.

—Elsewhere in the WEEKLY will be found an advertisement of the annual entertainment and ball to be given by the New York Stamp Society, Wednesday evening, Feb. 6. We are indebted to the society through Mr. Klein for complimentary tickets kindly sent us. The past year has been a year of marked progress with this enterprising local society, and there is every evidence that the good work of the past will be continued in the future.

—H. N. Mudge of Chicago has been added to the National Stamp Committee, it being the opinion of those interested that Chicago should have a representation in the campaign for philatelic publicity that is being so successfully waged.

—H. J. Crocker of San Francisco is off on a business trip to England.

—At the meeting of the Chicago Philatelic Society, held Jan. 16th, 1907, there was a record-breaking attendance, over forty having been present. The advertised auction sale of the society was held during the evening.

—The Boston Philatelic Society at its last meeting, voted without discussion to give $25 00 to the campaign work of the National Stamp Committee. This is a splendid tribute to the effort that the Committee is putting forth in the interest of philately.

—Mr. Massoth of the United Stamp Co. comments upon our remarks in connection with large variety packets, by calling attention to the fact that no less than five times during the past year has a packet of 10,000 varieties been offered by this firm in the WEEKLY, at prices ranging from $980.00 down to $750.00. Mr. Massoth is of the opinion that American dealers are just as wide-awake as the dealers of any other country, and feels that proper credit should be given to the enterprise of our own stamp merchants.

—At the auction sale held recently by the United Stamp Company, Chicago, nearly eight hundred lots were sold by the auctioneer, Dan Long, in the space of two and one-half hours. Each lot was a single stamp, many of which brought prices near catalogue.

—Newspaper clippings in relation to stamps are acknowledged with thanks from John A. Solomon (4), Stanley Barnett, George L. Baldwin, H. E. Deats, Joseph A. Steinmetz, W. S. Tripp, Walter S. Wilmot, W. W. Jewett and Miss Emily Coriell (4). Several of these clippings are in relation to "Curious Birds as Mail Carriers," the article just sent out by Mr. Burroughs in the interest of the National Stamp Committee.

—We have received number one of the Scott Stamp & Coin Co.'s Circular dated Jan. 15, 1907. This little leaflet will be issued monthly for a nominal price, and will be used to announce from month to month the special bargains that the firm has to offer.

—We have received from Morgenthau & Co. a very interesting catalog that needs to be seen and studied in order to be appreciated. The Morgenthau catalogs have a reputation of being exceedingly well written, and this coupled with the fact that the stamps described are an exceedingly interesting lot makes the catalog before us of unusual value. We cannot take the space to refer to all the interesting lots listed and would consider the collector fortunate who is able to secure a catalog. It would be $1.00 well expended to secure one priced. Puerto Principe, Canal Zone, Panama and Coamo stamps, the property of Wm. Thorne, are offered in this sale to be held Feb. 14.

—On January 25th, Ben G. Green, Chicago, sold at public auction, over 650 lots of coins, medals, etc.

—Emil J. Rall, A. P. A. 24, located at Bas Obispo, Canal Zone, will take up his residence at Cristobal the first of February. Mail addressed to him at either place will reach him.

—The Phil. Journal of Great Britain in its biographical sketch of Dr. Legrand, the inventor of measuring perforations, gives the following account of Dr. Legrand's philatelic library: "Since 1897 Dr. Legrand has occupied himself entirely in collecting all that has been published on stamps, profiting by the work of Messrs. Tiffany, De Bossedon, Frankel and Suppantschitsch and others. But he is not contented to collect journals only, like some, or catalogues, like others; he takes, with these, monographs, memoirs, circulars, price lists, proof impressions, re-impressions, everything concerning societies and exhibitions, auction catalogues, documents, odd articles in the general press, books of addresses, everything that concerns forged stamps, almanacs, annuals, poetry, music, photographs, in fact bibliography. It may readily be understood that such a mass of good, bad, and indifferent works as must be included in the above could be of no value without a very good system of arranging, storing and indexing. These difficulties are overcome by stitching the pamphlets together and keeping them in boxes in the form of volumes. The contents are then inscribed on labels, and thus anything can easily be found in reference to the catalogue which he has made." Dr. Legrand received the gold medal for his collection of philatelic literature at the Paris Philatelic Exhibition in 1900. Since then it has been considerably augmented.

—We have received a copy of the Denver, Col., Highland Chief containing a news item in regard to the Junior Stamp Club of that city. In addition to an auction sale and the usual exchange, an interesting address was made by Dr. Holland A. Davis. The club meets every two weeks, and we are pleased to note the activity evident in Denver philatelic circles.

—H. N. Mudge, Chicago, has been appointed a member of the National Stamp Committee whose headquarters are in Boston. Mr. Mudge has achieved a national reputation as a philatelist, who represents the best ideals of the hobby; and he is tireless as a worker for philately's welfare.

—The collection of Obliterations of Mr. Ferreal Welter received the gold medal at the exhibition of Milan. There are several European papers that devote a good deal of space to postmarks and obliterations, and their study may at times prove quite profitable, since the counterfeiter is quite active in forging them to the detriment of those that neglect this study. We have a few postmark collectors in our country, but the general interest seems lukewarm and our American papers are rather slow in encouraging this cousin to philately.

U. S. REVENUE SOCIETY.

To say that we are gratified at the success with which the new revenue society is meeting is expressing it mildly. While sixty of our subscribers have signified their willingness to become identified with this new organization Sec. Davis informs us that on Jan. 17 no less than 38 paid up charter applicants had been entered, and that they were being received at the rate of eight per day.

In accordance with advice received from Sec. Davis we have decided to keep the charter membership open until Feb. 1 so that all who desire may have the honor of being entered as charter members. Upon reading this notice make it your first business to send an application to Holland A. Davis, 1622 Welton St., Denver, Col. Remit $1.00 yearly dues and your choice for officers as given in the WEEKLY of Jan. 5, page 11.

The new society will start with at least sixty charter members, and will prove a valuable asset to American philately in the dignifying of those stamps in which every true American should take a large measure of pride.

QUERIES AND COMMENT.

Edited by C. E. SEVERN.

Our readers are cordially invited to ask the editor for any information desired concerning stamp collecting. Should a personal reply be desired kindly enclose postage. This department is for the beginner as well as the advanced collector. Address, C. E. SEVERN, 820 Oxford Bdg., Chicago Ill.

G. W. S.:—This reader says: "I have a five cent blue of the regular issue of Hayti, 1904, bearing the genuine postmark of Kingston, Jamaica. Kindly inform me how to account for this and what the stamp is to be considered." The unsupported evidence of the stamp alone in such a case proves nothing absolute as to the manner of its use. For instance, a Confederate States stamp may receive a modern cancellation merely by being placed on a letter alongside of the current U. S. stamp. We have not read of any explanation that would account for the use of a Haytian stamp in Jamaica, nor do we believe that through any postal arrangements between the two countries, the Haytian stamps have a postal validity in Jamaica. Perhaps, the letter sent from Hayti was received at Kingston bearing the stamp in question in uncanceled condition, whereupon the specimen was canceled by the clerk at Kingston, who is authorized to perform such an act.

A little dissertation on paper varieties in a recent number is responsible for calling forth the following clever letter from an esteemed correspondent: "I've just been reading your interesting comments in the issue dated December 29th, 1906, and your 'M. M.' paragraph has attracted my attention. Not so very long ago, I was altogether a tyro in stamp matters; now I am a little better and might say, convalescent. If I had read a few years ago that laid and ribbed papers had the same characteristics, it would, I am sure, have given me much trouble. My great sympathy for tyros, deep feeling and affection for beginners toiling in the Garden of Labels impels and compels me to request you to reconsider your fateful assertion, to wit, as aforesaid that: 'Laid paper and ribbed paper have the same characteristics.' Is it not a fact that laid paper is practically nothing but watermarked paper? And that when the lines come sufficiently far apart or are curved or wavy, the paper is described as watermarked lines, e. g., Bavaria, Hamburg, Tuscany? Is it not the same with quadrille, batonne, lozenges? If for some reason, laid lines or any form of watermark (an impressed design is not a watermark) cannot be distinguished benzine will almost invariably cause the sought-for appearance to show up if it is there, but the benzine bath will not cause ribbed lines to become visible. I am either right or grossly ignorant or entirely mistake your meaning,—notwithstanding, I will say that at the moment I am unable to think of one single point of resemblance between laid paper and ribbed paper except that they both are paper." The points made by our critic are well-established. We shall not yield to the impulse to take refuge under the context of "M. M.'s" letter for the erroneous impression that our remarks may have given. The statement that was made as to ribbed and laid paper having the same characteristics, under certain conditions, is based on the line from the helpful "Hints to Collectors" preface to the catalogue, under the sub-head, ribbed paper, in the "Paper" section: "Paper having very heavy laid lines may sometimes present the characteristics of ribbed paper." As our answer mislead the intelligent reader whose letter we quote almost in its entirety, we freely grant that it could not have been generally regarded as conveying the correct idea; and to remove any misunderstanding, we say, conforming to the arguments of our correspondent, that laid paper essentially is a watermarked paper, while ribbed paper is only surface treated, as generally viewed. We quote: "Ribbed paper presents rough parallel lines on both front and back, and is usually made by passing it through rolls which have fine corrugations cut upon them." Laid paper, we know, is due to the consecutive variations in the thicknesses of pulp; the differences are internal and not akin to those afforded in ribbed paper which are created on the surface. The remark that the two paper varieties in question present the same characteristics should be qualified to the extent that superficially only is a likeness to be found in some instances.

A. M.:—Toned paper has a surface, which may be a chemicalized coating, that presents a characteristic smoothness and allows of a strong printed impression. It necessarily does not need to be a paper that is coated, but may be "calendered," i. e, pressed in a calender in order to be made smooth, glossy or wavy. A calender, it should be added, is a machine of two or more cylinders, usually steam-heated, rotating practically in contact, for giving paper a smooth appearance.

ADVERTISING ACCOUNTS FOR SALE.

We intend to publish under this heading a list of the advertising accounts that we have been unable to collect. The list will be kept standing until settlements are effected.

Universal Stamp Co., Bayonne, N. J,	11.90
R. D. Vroman, Pittsburg, Pa.,	23.46
H. J. Kleinman, Phila, Pa.,	2.40
W. W. MacLaren, Cleveland, O.,	8.60

We will be pleased to sell the above accounts to the highest bidder. Correspondence solicited.

In consequence of the receipt of several inquiries recently in relation to paper varieties, we append the following description of the operation of a paper-making machine in manufacturing the product, which may throw a ray on a subject that is only obscurely understood by some collectors: "The pulp is mixed in the agitating-box, pumped into the regulating-box, and allowed to flow out of a gate or fountain, at the breast-roll, to an endless wire cloth or apron, carried by bands or deckles under the dandy-rolls, which determine the watermark and whether the paper is to be wove or laid. While on the wire apron the pulp is shaken to cross the fibers. A save-all box catches and preserves the drain-water, with accompanying size, coloring-material, etc. The couch rolls take the imperfectly formed paper-pulp to an endless wet felt apron, by which it is carried between the rolls, thence on the press-felt apron to the press-rolls. These rolls squeeze out most of the water, and the pulp, which may now be called paper, is ready for drying and calendering. The series of hot-drying cylinders is kept at a proper temperature by steam, and takes all the dampness out of the paper, which next passes to the calender-rolls, receiving a finish by pressure. It is then wound on the reels, or slit into narrower widths and wound, according to convenience." "Size" used in connection with paper is akin to "tone" and means a solution of gelatinous material, as glue, starch or resin, used to glaze the surface.

R. N. B.:—The Stamp Collectors' Annual for 1905, published by Charles Nissen & Co., London, contained an article, "Postal-Fiscals of the United Kingdom," which is replete with information concerning these stamps and their use, which we think would be useful to you, judging from your questions about these stamps. The article was written by Charles Nissen, who is known as a student of the stamps of Great Britain, and who began his reference list by quoting the parliamentary act, as promulgated by the Postmaster-General, that authorized the use of certain stamps in their dual capacity: "Use of 1d Adhesive Postage Stamps, and 1d Adhesive Receipt Stamps for either receipt or postage purposes. In future the Ordinary Adhesive Penny Receipt Stamp may be used as a Penny Postage Stamp, and the Adhesive Penny Postage Stamp as an Ordinary Receipt Stamp. It is understood that for the purpose of postage, the Receipt Stamps, in common with Postage Stamps, must have no printing or writing placed on their face by the public. June, 1881." It is related that the foregoing notice was not fully understood in its limitations or strictly adhered to by the public or the post-office; and that fiscals other than those provided for in the notice, were used postally. In 1882, a further act, dating from Jan. 1st, 1883, permitted that any stamp duties not amounting to over 2s 6d might be used for postage purposes. Thus, it is seen how all the varieties of postal-fiscals that are listed in the catalogue came into existence. By July, 1883, the sale of the fiscal stamps that had been employed in many cases for the payment of postage was discontinued.

F. L. M.:—This correspondent says: "Will you inform me as to whether the one-cent red, Baltimore carriers' stamp, 1851, was reprinted? I have a copy on which the rays under 'ove' and between the 'e' and 'r' of 'government' extend a short distance below the horseman's streamer. This variety is not listed. Please inform me as to its possible value." There are ten plate varieties of the stamp referred to, as it was printed in two vertical rows of five stamps each, differing from one another in various details; or, speaking technically, these ten varieties were in each pane, and ten panes composed the plate. The principal varieties are those given in the catalogue. From your description, we take it that your specimen is the normal variety that is illustrated in the catalogue, but which, not unnaturally, you do not regard as a duplicate production of your stamp, as in the illustration in the catalogue the two rays do not show plainly, jutting slightly beneath the horseman's streamer; on the stamp itself, however, the points of the two rays are to be seen as described by our correspondent. These horseman stamps have not been reprinted.

T. E. S.:—The printed statement that you quoted is not correct, as you will gather from the following data that we take from the Catalogue for Advanced Collectors: "Secret marks were added to the dies of the 24 and 90 cents, 1870 type, United States. On the former some of the lines were deepened in the first of the half circle of stars, counting from the right. On the 90 cent the star in the upper right corner was similarly treated. But no plates were made from these altered dies."

H. M. R.:—This subscriber writes: "In my collection, I have two stamps of Western Australia, and as I cannot find them in the catalogue, I ask you to help me locate them. One of them is type A1, perforated 11½ by 12, and without trace of watermark; value 6 pence, color, bronze or gray brown. The second stamp is also type A1, 2 pence, gray blue, perforated 14; it could easily be taken for No. 21, if it had any trace of watermark, which it has not. Both of the stamps are canceled and have been in my possession for about twenty-five years." Almost needless to say, there is no record of the specimens mentioned by our correspondent in any of the catalogues, even of the completest kind. We dislike to mention anything about counterfeits in connection with the two stamps described, but it would be fitting that our correspondent have them passed upon by a counterfeit detector, in view of the fact that all the stamps of Western Australia, with the exception of the 1864 issue, were issued in watermarked condition.

R. G. A.:—Some of the Canadian bill and law stamps have been catalogued in special lists of Canadian revenue stamps at good prices. There are always at least a few collectors of Canadian revenues to be found; and every now and then, there is quite a revival of interest in them. No recent single catalogue of the stamps in question has been published, we believe, but in former years, catalogues were issued somewhat frequently by different firms. Perhaps, United Stamp Company, address in advertising columns, may be able to supply you with a copy of Robie's catalogue of these stamps, which he published about eight years ago, with the wish to stimulate general interest in the revenue issues of Canada.

P. W. C.:—The two-cent, 1902, United States, regular issue, was never surcharged I. R. in violet. The war was a thing of the past at that time, and no excuse could be found for the creation of even a typewriter revenue surcharge, so late as 1902.

THE KANGAROO POSTMAN.

In the "back blocks" of Australia new arrivals are considered the legitimate butts of every joke that can be played on them.

Recently, writes a Sydney correspondent, a coach driver, backed up by his passengers, induced a young man newly arrived from England to believe that kangaroos were now used in that district as letter carriers.

"They meet the coach," he said, "and I give them their masters' letters, which they put in their pouches and carry home."

The "new chum" was incredulous, but just then a great kangaroo hopped on to the roadway right in front of them, and stood for a moment looking at the advancing coach. "Nothing for you to-day!" shouted the driver, and the animal, turning, disappeared in the shrub from which it had come.

The young Englishman is full of wonder at the strides made in so young a place as Australia.—Advocate, New Zealand.

—The Berliner Briefmarken-Zeitung contains a very thorough treatment of Panama stamps by Dr. Dominic von Biasini. The gentleman claims to have authentic information, and it may be well for collectors of Panama to compare his notes with any of their own.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES.

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Any information regarding new issues will be gratefully received and acknowledged. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. The figures in parentheses refer to the previous number of the WEEKLY in which the same country was noticed

UNITED STATES (837).—J. M. Bartels sends us a pair of the current 2c stamps, imperforate. He was fortunate enough to secure a sheet in that condition from a post office where a small supply was placed on sale in response to a requisition from a manufacturer of an automatic stamping machine.

BERMUDA (823).—Two values in the Dockyard type have appeared on ordinary multiple paper, according to Ewen, the ½d green and black and the 2½d brown and blue.

CANAL ZONE (833).—A correspondent in the Canal Zone sends us a pair of the last printing of the 1c on 20c, with wide space between the "C" and "A" of Canal. This is the 50th stamp in the sheet.

DENMARK (834).—Ewen reports that a "Julen" (Christmas) stamp was issued at the end of 1906. This has no postal value, but when affixed to a letter is allowed to be postmarked.

FRENCH CHINA (836).—We have been shown by Hermann Focke a copy of the new "Canton" surcharge, on the 20c Indo-Chine stamp of the Grasset type, on the original cover, postmarked "Canton, Chine, 7 Dec 06." The cover also bears one of the regular "Chine" surcharges on the 5c of the same series. Both stamps have of course the usual surcharge in Chinese characters.

GERMAN MOROCCO (828).—Ewen reports that the 25c has appeared on watermarked paper.

GRENADA (792).—Ewen reports that the 2c postage due stamp has appeared on ordinary multiple paper.

GUATEMALA (801).—Hermann Focke lays us under still further obligations by sending us a used pair of a new value in the current bi-colored set. This is a 12½c stamp, the necessity for which is explained by the fact that printed matter has to be franked at the rate of 12½c per 15 grams or one-half ounce. Mr. Focke says he would not be surprised if a 25c stamp should show up in the near future, as this value is certainly much used to frank inland letters, and the 1903 provisionals ought soon to be used up.

The design of the new 12½c stamp apparently represents the signing of some important document, and is inscribed "Proceres Independencia."

Adhesive.

12½c blue and black.

HONDURAS (833).—Hermann Focke sends us the first of a new series of stamps from this country, the first new set since that of 1903. The design is in fact practically the same as the issue of that year, except that the central portrait is changed, and the date is changed to 1907.

Adhesive.

10c brown.

INDIA (837).—The 1a King's Head stamp has now appeared inscribed "Postage and Revenue," instead of "Postage." Ewen states "on the best official authority that no other values will appear with 'Postage and Revenue.'"

NORWAY (824).—A charity label has been issued on the same lines as that of Denmark, recently noted. It has no postage value, but may be attached to letters, and is allowed to be postmarked. The label is oblong and bears a portrait of Queen Maud.

PARAGUAY (830).—Ewen chronicles a novelty from this country, the design being oblong, with a view of the Government Buildings in the centre, in black. The stamp is dated "Ano 1904," and is perforated 11½.

Adhesive.

1 peso pale rose and black.

ST. KITTS-NEVIS (823).—Ewen reports that the 3d orange and green has been issued on ordinary multiple paper.

SPANISH GUINEA (828).—Madrid Filatelico states that the 1c, 2c, 3c and 4c stamps of "Elobey" were overprinted "Guinea Continental—Correos—Assobla" in addition to those noted in No. 828. It would appear that there is some doubt as to the 25c, as the latter is not included in the list as now given by the above journal.

A new set has been issued for this colony, presumably of the same design as the other colonies, though of this fact there is as yet no positive assurance. All will be dated 1907.

SOUTH AUSTRALIA (835).—The Australian Philatelist reports that the 9d lake has appeared on Crown A paper. The 3d, 4d, 6d and 1sh were previously reported.

URUGUAY (835).—Hermann Focke has sent us a novelty from our southern neighbor, in the way of a new 5c stamp, evidently of local design and execution. The inscriptions read, "Republica Oriental" in a straight line at the top, "del Uruguay" in a curved line just below, while "5 centesimos 5" appears in another curved line below the central opening. The arms of the republic form the central figure, the frame being decidedly original and not unpleasing. The stamp is 21x26mm, and is perforated 11½.

Established 1869. IPSWICH, ENGLAND.

MILAN EXHIBITION, 1906.

The Highest Possible Award at the above Exhibition was received by THE WEST-END PHILATELIST (Edited by Bertram W. H. Poole). Published by D. Field. "The West End Philatelist" is published on the 15th of each month and forms the brighest and daintiest of the journals issued for Stamp Collectors.

Each number is full of original matter, written in an interesting style, that should appeal to all philatelists. There are articles on the stamps of various countries, and a serial paper in which the collector is told all about papers, watermarks, and perforations; how stamps are made, and the thousand and one other things every collector ought to know if he wishes to collect on intelligent lines.

It Is Well Illustrated.

Subscribers reap many advantages in being able to purchase really good stamps at bargain prices. Send for particulars.

DR. PERRY ON A TRIP SOUTH.

Emil J. Rall favors us with the Panama Daily Star and Herald of Jan. 10, from which we extract the following item in relation to our well known correspondent, Dr. J. C. Perry:

Dr. J. C. Perry, of the Public Health and Marine Hospital Service, has gone on a trip South, the object and details of which will no doubt, surprise many who think mosquitoes are the only enemies the Medical Department has to contend with. Dr. Perry has charge of the quarantine of the ports of La Boca, Cristobal and Colon. In the monthly reports of Colonel Gorgas there is each month long reference to the exact number of ships that have arrived and been inspected by the quarantine officers under Dr. Perry. But modern sanitary measures are successful in proportion as their application approximates the old war maxim that the most efficacious way in which to defeat an enemy is not to wait for him to come to you, but to hunt him up and destroy him wherever found.

According to an indirect application of this principle, Dr. Perry has gone to Guayaquil. From there he will visit all the ports of Peru as far as Callao and returning to Guayaquil he will next inspect all the ports of Ecuador and Columbia. These are the ports from which experience has shown that it is possible for the vessels that touch at La Boca to bring diseases that must be kept away from the cities of Panama and the men on the canal. At each of these places the doctor inspects not only the general sanitary condition of the town, but he examines the harbors. The port regulations and the provisions they make for the isolation of ships that may have a suspicious case of illness aboard, are carefully verified on the spot. The warehouses are subjected to a rigid inspection and what will be of more surprise is the fact, that at every port he visits where there is any shipment to the Isthmus, the doctor will visit and inspect the routes over which particular articles of commerce are brought into the port town. In other words, if Dr. Perry finds that hides or any other of the many commercial commodities that come to the Isthmus, reach the shipping port from places that are themselves unsanitary, his study for the health of the Isthmus will take him to the place of preparation of the objectionable article of trade, and within a very short time Colonel Gorgas will be requesting the necessary precautions demanded in the case.

OUR ENGLISH ADVERTISERS.

In reading the columns of this number, one cannot fail to notice the fact that a considerable amount of English advertising is being carried. It must be because across-the ocean dealers realize that American collectors are buyers. We can assign no other reason for the exchange of English money for advertising space in the WEEKLY. We accept the compliment and hope that the confidence shown this paper will not be misplaced.

The name of T. C. Appleton will be new to most of our readers. The four advertisements inserted are small, yet each one has a message. Appleton's Weekly published every Saturday is sent post free for cost of postage. The announcement in regard to new issues is also an attractive one.

The old and reliable house of Whitfield King & Co. at Ipswich, Eng., has been giving our readers a copy of the firm's latest catalog at such a figure as to indicate an intention to secure some American trade. We presume the effort has been successful, as no word of discontent or dissatisfaction with results has been received.

The column advertisements of F. R. Ginn are no new thing to WEEKLY readers. Mr. Ginn has been regularly represented in our columns for years, and has a reputation for reliability that many satisfied American customers will heartily endorse.

Two auction advertisers are herein represented. We refer to Bridger & Kay and Martin, Ray & Co.

Quite recently we announced that a contract had been written with L. S. Charlick of London. Mr. Charlick will be found in our columns regularly, using a two inch space every other week. He makes a specialty of wholesale lots, and his announcements should be attractive to small dealers.

What an array of good stamps is shown in the advertisement of M. Giwelb! The small space, however, taken by Mr. Giwelb cannot begin to indicate even the rarities to be found in the Giwelb stock. The best way to ascertain the riches that can be supplied by Mr. Giwelb, is to get into correspondence with him, he will soon satisfy any interested party.

The managing editor on his visit to London in connection with the special number issued a year ago, was charmed with the appointments in connection with the Peckitt place of business. It seemed an ideal store and ere we left we were convinced that Mr. Peckitt "had the goods". From the recent advertising of this firm we judge that even if many good things have been sold, still others have been acquired in the fine specialized collections that have been bought. One is advertised in this issue. Our readers in dealing with Mr. Peckitt may be assured of absolutely fair and courteous treatment.

George Calif & Co. enters our columns with this issue for the first time. This firm, however, has been in business for more than 30 years, having been established in 1876. This long record is an indication of business solidity and our readers need have no fear of patronizing this firm even though modest space is taken. We expect the patronage of this number will lead to larger things in the future.

We urge upon our subscribers who engage in across-the-ocean correspondence, that attention be paid to the matter of postage. Use a 2c post card and upon letters 5c postage for every half ounce.

A CORRECTION.

A bad mistake occurred in the Champion advertisement of last week. In the offers of unused Salvador the 1900 set surcharged "Franqueo Official" is described and priced correctly at $1.50. The following line should show a short set of three high values 24c, 50c and 100c, but three low values are also included which destroys the force of both offers. The price 80c is given correctly and by eliminating the three lower values the advertisement will be correct. We regret this error and trust that subscribers who are interested in this country, will take pains to look up these offers with corrections as noted.

Another Word, Mr. Advertiser!

¶ It is not so much a matter of what you pay, Mr. Advertiser, for space used as "what are the results." A quarter of a page may be obtained very reasonably in some publications with a nice display creditable to the print shop from which it emanated, but—how many collectors read the advertisement?

¶ MEKEEL'S has 6,000 paid-up subscribers, our subscription list is open for examination, and new subscribers are daily being added more than offsetting the number that fall by the wayside. We are out after 10,000 and the next 3 mos. means a tremendous campaign for new business.

¶ Writes C. F. Rothfuchs, the veteran dealer, "My Christmas and New Years Biggest $2 Gift" adv. which appeared Dec. 23, 1905, brought me six orders. My similar adv. which appeared Dec. 22, 1906, has up to this writing brought me nine orders an increase of 50 per cent. If the business increases the same ratio the rest of this year it will be on the order of the good old busy times of 1895-6, when dealers were as anxious to buy as sell."

BOSTON, Jan. 17, 1907.

The one hundred and sixty-second regular meeting of the Society was held in Elks' Hall, Boston, on Tuesday evening, January 15th.

Meeting called to order by President Howes at 8 P. M., with 43 members and visitors present.

The annual reports of the officers and committees were read and accepted, and will be printed in full in the Official Organ.

The resignations of Messrs. F. J. Nash, F. P. Richardson and R. B. Loring were received, and accepted with regrets.

Mrs. Charles K. Davis of Cincinnati was elected to membership.

Following notice given by him at the December meeting, Mr. Batchelder moved the adoption of the following amendments to the statutes:

That Article 3, Section 1, be amended by striking out the word "and" at the end of the third line, and inserting after "Superintendent of Auction; and a Superintendent of the Bourse," "the same individual may hold one or more of the three last named offices if elected thereto by the Society."

That Article 3, Section 2, be amended by striking out "all" after the word "Secretary," and substituting "International Secretary, Treasurer and four other members."

These amendments were adopted by a unanimous vote.

Mr J. H. Lyons was nominated for Supt. Auctions and Sales, and Mr. I. W. Risdon for Supt. Stamp Bourse. Nominations having been closed, the Secretary was instructed to cast one ballot for the nominees, and this having been done, the following were declared elected:—

President, Mr. C. A. Howes.
Vice President, Mr. W. O. Wylie.
Secretary, Mr. E. de Z. Kelley.
International Secretary, Mr. J. M. Bartels.
Treasurer, Mr. L. L. Green.
Supt. Auctions and Sales, Mr. J. H. Lyons.
Supt. Stamp Bourse, Mr. I. W. Risdon.
Governing Board, Messrs. W. E. Coburn, W.G. Bail, C. F. Rothfuchs, C. H. Fowle.
Library Committee, Mr. E. M. Carpenter (chairman), Mr. C. K. B. Nevin.

Application for membership was received from Mr. Henry Schuhmacher, Jr., of Roslindale, proposed by Mr. Williams.

$25.00 was voted for the work of the National Stamp Committee.

It was voted to discontinue the practice of sending out mail notices and reports of meetings, as all of these are but reprints of matter previously printed in the Official Organ, and the repetition serves no useful purpose.

Following recommendations contained in the reports of the President and Secretary it was voted that the President appoint the following Committees—Recruiting, Press, Exhibition and Permanent Quarters.

The following members were dropped for nonpayment of dues: Nos. 76, 96, 111, 156, 293, 317, 366. 391, 392, 412, 413.

The President proposed the following vote, which was unanimously adopted: "The Boston Philatelic Society at its Annual Meeting presents its greeting to The Philatelic Society, London, and desires to send its heartiest congratulations upon the honor conferred in having received the addition of the pregnant word 'Royal' to its title."

The program for the Annual Jollification in February was amended by the adoption of a vote authorizing the Entertainment Committee to arrange for an Entertainment along usual lines. As it is not possible to secure both halls for the third Tuesday in February, the Annual Jollification will be held on MONDAY evening, February 25th.

The Entertainment Committee provided an attractive program consisting of a number of Exhibits of rare and unusual original covers which very successfully started the season of 1907.

Adjourned at 10.30 P. M.

EDW. DE Z. KELLEY, Secretary.

THE STAMP BOURSE.

To All Members of the B. P. S.:—

At the last meeting the undersigned was elected Supt. of the Stamp Bourse, and as he desires that this Dept. shall make a better record the coming season than it did the last one, he bespeaks the cordial co-operation of all the members. If you have duplicates that you will sell at bargain prices write me at once for some Bourse sheets, or for any information desired. Out of town members are especially invited to participate.

I. W. RISDON, Supt.

NATIONAL STAMP COMMITTEE.

Executive Board:—C. A. HOWES, Pres.; WILLARD O. WYLIE, Sec.; E. M. CARPENTER, Treas.; J. M. BARTELS, F. PUTNEY, JR., JOHN N. LUFF, HENRY N. MUDGE. Address Room 508 Kast Bdg., Boston, Mass.

Four substantial contributions to our funds have been received during the past week carrying the total to a trifle over the $500 mark. About $300 more are needed and if you have not already contributed let the secretary hear from you by early mail. Good work is being done and you should have a share in the credit.

—The 14 volumes of the London Philatelist are offered at $60, or singly at a little over $4 per volume, the first excepted, which is held at $6. This indicates that there is some money in philatelic papers, though the London Philatelist is one of the best, and a great many others will never rise to equal value How many "average" collectors are there who have a complete file of any stamp paper? As a rule papers are torn, lost or kept in such a careless way, that they become damaged and thus inconvenient for reference. Keep your papers, keep them well and have them bound. They are worth it!

ANNUAL DINNER OF THE C. P. S.

Then once every year, you will surely hear,
About the high-toned banquet of our hustling C. P. S.
—FROM THE C. P. S. SONG.

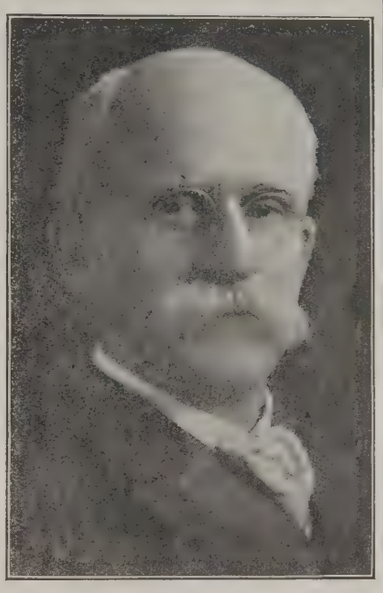
The annual banquet of the Chicago Philatelic Society, held in the Italian Pergola, of the Boston Oyster House, on the evening of January 24th, outranked all the successful occasions of similar kind of the past, in signally happy consummation. It was the most spirited and inspiring philatelic festival ever celebrated in Chicago, and was really a brilliant social achievement that did much to further implant philatelic favor in the hearts of those present. The features of the evening followed each other in rapid succession, and spectacular surprises began, immediately after justice had been done the following menu:

C. P. S. DINNER, JAN. 24, 1907

Canape a la Boston
Blue Points
Celery Olives
Consomme
Filet of Sole, Tartar Sauce
Julienne Potatoes
Chicken Patty
Creme de Menthe Punch
Filet of Beef, Mushrooms
Wax Beans Rissole Potatoes
Combination Salad
Nesselrode Pudding
Macaroons
Roquefort Cheese Toasted Crackers
Cafe Noir

The menu, itself, was printed on blocks of four of the type-set U. S. official seals, which were hinged to one side of the page, the opposite folio containing the words of the society song; the sheets were enclosed in a corn-colored cover, bearing the society emblem impression, and appropriate wording, in purple; and the stitching was purple ribbon.

President Mudge, the toastmaster, called on none of those who heretofore have usually spoken at the banquets; new speakers only were introduced. Past President Huber began the speaking with trenchant references to the new philately as compared with the old. Fred Michael surpassed himself in telling with oratorical effect, of the necessity of encouraging missionary work in philately and he enjoined all to contribute to the support of the campaign of the National Stamp Committee.



HENRY N. MUDGE, Toastmaster, President of the C. P. S.

At this juncture, President Mudge recognized Mr. Roterburg, long a philatelist of standing but a recent addition to the C. P. S. ranks, who furnished an entertainment that delighted and mystified the diners, beyond the telling. Mr. Roterburg, who is a dealer in magical apparatus, is a conjurer of the highest order, and his art is applauded as a master creation. Accompanying his manipulations with rapid fire witticisms, his shafts always tipped with geniality and hitting the members squarely, Mr. Roterburg performed a series of tricks that amazed the banqueters. From Mr. Boehm's hatband, he took thousands of stamps, warning Mr. Boehm that he was liable to prosecution for infringing on Mr. Wolsieffer's patented stock-books. He compelled a member to tear one of the large

S. B. HOPKINS, 5728 Julian Av., St. Louis, Mo.

U. S. newspaper stamps into bits, only to point out the self-same stamp intact, neatly framed in a case that to all appearances had been empty a moment before; and so on, he startled with wonderful deceptions. Mr. Roterburg was a scintillating success. Dr. Rogers told of his experiences during a residence on the Mosquito Coast; and he unblushingly related how, when one of the periodical Nicaraguan revolutions was in progress, he entered into a pact with a postmaster to manufacture provisionals; just about as the fell work was to be done, the government troops routed the insurrectionists, bringing the philatelic conspiracy to an end.

The last speaker of the evening was Mr. Clair, a non-philatelist, who has a national reputation as an orator, and who, with his well-ordered eloquence, kept the auditors under a spell. Mr. Clair said that he was impressed with the instructive and educational elements embodied in philately, and that, while not understanding the technique of the hobby, he knew that it must be founded on a base of inherent merit and dignified purpose. Mr. Clair's remarks excited the greatest degree of spontaneous enthusiasm.

During the evening three musicians performed; and their solos on different instruments, in particular, were applauded. Such an evening is an object lesson that must sink deeply into the minds of members and visitors alike; and the stimulus generated, redounds immeasurably to the benefit of philately in a local sense. The committee on arrangements, I. R. Johnson, chairman, L. Michael and F. N. Massoth, deserve the heartiest recognition for their perfected plans, which were carried out to the letter. Never before was the banner of the Chicago Philatelic Society hung so high as it was on the memorable night of the 1907 dinner.

U. S. REVENUE NOTES.

By CHAS. A. NAST.

The New Revenue Society.

The U. S. Revenue Society is now an assured fact. Nothing like the enthusiasm manifested has been felt in philatelic circles for years. Much good will result to all; to collectors, amateurs and dealers alike. Heretofore circuits have been made up mainly of postage. Only a few books containing revenues in part or whole were circulated, and superintendents were at more or less trouble to find out just what members desired this class, since in existing societies they were always in the great minority. Now however, anything in the line of revenues can be sent to each and every member.

Dealers should join this society, as it offers an exceptionally good field for quick returns. From the class of members as disclosed by the published lists, the cheaper varieties will not find a rushing market. The first issue perforate for instance, are so low-priced and so easily obtained, that it will be practically useless to put them on circuits. But Match and Medicine, and all the other side lines now more or less debarred, are the ones for which there will be a demand. Proofs and essays of revenues should be included also. This latter class has been ignored a little, but the demand for these will in time assume astonishing proportions. The most important office in the gift of the governing board is that of exchange and sales superintendent. It would be easy to fill this office with any one of half a dozen active dealers in the east, the only drawback to this arrangement being that while they could undoubtedly sell more goods in their own localities, it would prevent, to a certain extent, that exclusiveness for which a society is organized. Books should circulate among members only. It is precisely for this advantage that members pay their dues. Outsiders should have no share in these benefits. If members find they cannot, for one reason or another, dispose of their wares among the society membership, then auction rooms and dealers' counters can be resorted to. But first let members only have a chance at each others duplicates.

Metropolitan Fiscal Association.

The M. F. A. is entering on its third year. This society was organized two years ago by collectors in and about Providence, R. I. It has not had an easy road to travel thus far, but the pluck and perseverance of its guiding members deserves a word of cheer and recommendation. Some friction was engendered in the past caused mainly, to put it very mildly, by the incompetency of its chief officer. Accounts have now been squared and the society reorganized, and it is hoped it may prosper and grow. Its influence is good. It aims to study and exchange the revenues of all countries, and is not restricted in any sense. Fiscal stamps of all countries are on its books. The new officers, all well known collectors and splendid business men, are as follows: Prest., W. W. Norton; Vice Prest., J. D. Bartlett; Sec. and Treas., Wm. C. Polk, (address Box 22, Arnold Mills, R. I.,) Exchg. and Sales Mgr., O. T. Hartman.

Part Perforates.

These stamps have always attracted more or less attention. Especially is this so in the issues of '99-'01. These have been catalogued as "Imperf. horizontally" and "Imperf. vertically," and the question naturally arises, why this mode of distinction has not been observed in the issues of 1861. Here, since the beginning we have had the single classification of "part perf." without note of any kind. For a long while it was supposed that p. p. meant those perforated on the sides only, with the top and bottom imperforate. That is the way they usually come, but discerning and studious collectors soon noted the difference and made two classes of this type. Among the first list so distinguished, is that made by E. B. Sterling in the big catalog of Mekeel's issued in 1893. In that work Sterling lists the following separately as being "perforated top and bottom only," viz.:

1c red Proprietary,	perf. T. & B. only.
2c blue Bank Check,	"	"	"
2c blue Express,	"	"	"
10c blue Inland Exchange,	"	"	"
15c brown	"	"	"
25c red Certificate,	"	"	"
50c blue Foreign Exchange,	"	"	"
70c green	"	"	"

To this list I added some years ago the 50c blue Passage Ticket, Makins & Co. of San Francisco sending pairs and a strip of three for inspection and recording. I now make another addition to the list. W. S. Aldrich of New York sends for inspection and review, a pair of the 1c red Express, perforated top and bottom only, imperforate vertically. He also sends a pair perforated at sides, imperf. horizontally, but this is the one listed in Scott's. There being only ten stamps in all, this minor variety should be indicated as in other series.

Pre-Cancelled Proprietaries.

The find in Detroit lately, has caused much comment as to the pre-cancellations on proprietary stamps. In answer to several correspondents, I give a list herewith of such varieties as I have in my collection of these Playing Card provisionals, which are not listed in the Boston Book. All revenue collectors ought to have this book. It is invaluable as a check list, and contains a vast amount of information not procurable elsewhere. The first two stamps in this list were not known to the compilers of that work, hence I must give them as type IV, being quite different as to style of letters and figures.

20,000 Varieties

Absolute necessity compelled me to break up the fine $25,000 collection mentioned in my advertisements last season, so many demands being made for selections. This collection, with another nearly as good, has been broken up and mounted, ready to send out, according to countries, in approval books holding 100 stamps each, giving a selection of 20,000 varieties from Abyssinia to Zululand complete. Prices are marked according to Scott's catalogue, and except in rare cases 50% discount is allowed. Most dealers allow 10% or not more than 25% disct. For the grade of stamps offered by me you can't possibly find their equal at the price. Try me with a want list. Don't forget the reference.

the old adage: "Believe nothing that you hear and only half of what you see!"

Meat Inspection Labels.

The newest thing is a metallic stamp ½ inch wide by 9 inches in length. Letters and figures appear in black on a gold ground, the word "SEAL" appears at each end. Establishment 2 A. Patent applied for. It fastens down the lid of lard pails. The pure food law is also ushering in a series of small labels affixed to physicians' samples, and bottles of medicinal preparations. "Vigoral" evidently a meat extract since it bears the symbol 2 A, is about 1 inch square, black ink on yellow paper. I believe "A" preparations stand for Armour & Co., while those of B. C. & F. represent Swift & Co.

New Philippines Revenues.

G. W. Pepper of Elmwood, R. I., sends samples of the new issue. The stamps of this set are oblong in shape and has supplanted the square Eagle type. They have a female figure in center, denominations of 2, 4, 10, 20, 50c, $1.00 and $3.00 I note they still stick to the one centavo. If "one" why not "cent." Half English and half Spanish is significant of the present mixed state of civilization I suppose. Another case of spelling Puerto "Porto."

"A. B. C." Translation.

The question heretofore propounded in this department as to the meaning of the Roman capitals A. B. C. on R. C. & C. S. Clarke's 4c black stamp, is now settled beyond all question. E. W. Murray of Monroe, La., writes that in the early '70's he was a drug clerk in Ohio, and sold lots of this medicine. By the wrapper and directions coming with each bottle, it was designated as an antibilious compound, and was called for and sold as such. It was a popular remedy in his day, and the information is authentic.

New Provisional Match Stamp.

Lately I acquired a provisional stamp not heretofore listed, namely, the 1c black Lacour's matches, with the surcharge in the three lines "G. W. G.—& Co—1865," in red ink. This overprint is common enough in black. The letters stand for G. W. Gaffitt & Co. This firm having brought out the Lacour Match stamps, proceeded to surcharge them with their initials using either an old stereotype form or the original setup in type. This is proven by the fact that though Gaffitt & Co. were doing business as early as 1864, the Lacour stamps in question were not printed and issued until 1867. The type is the same as that on the 1c red Proprietary, used in 1865.

—The New England Stamp Co. has favored us with a copy of their 1907 price-list, a mammoth affair of 32 pages printed in double column form. There is a page of "Information About Stamp Collectors" that will prove a pleasing introduction to any one receiving the list. Packets, sets, albums and philatelic supplies together with single stamps sold at 1c, 2c and upwards, make a very substantial price-list.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—Supplementing what was published last week in regard to the Junior Stamp Club of Denver, Col., we have received a newspaper clipping from Morris R. Ward giving further information. C. M. Snyder is president and H. E. Munger secretary. The club has at present 20 members and is doing good work. Truly Denver is a hot-bed of philatelic enthusiasm at the present time.

—Receipt of clippings is acknowledged with thanks from James G. Block, Chas. W. Eberle, Quivey Stabler, Chas. W. Gustafson (3), G. L. Baldwin, C. F. Richards, Geo. J. Carter, Herman W. Boers, Hugo Kuenstler (5), Fritz G. Ertmann, Fred Timaeus and J. E. Douglass (2).

—E. E. Elster, an Albion, N. Y., subscriber to the WEEKLY, has opened a stamp and coin store in the Palace Arcade, Buffalo, N. Y., where he will be glad to receive any who are interested in stamps or coins.

—We are indebted to C. M. Ames, Chas. W. Gustafson, E. Bragg, M. Cramer and Ross Wilson for back numbers of the WEEKLY sent us. Others have kindly offered to help us in our wants, and due recognition will be made when papers have been received. Such courtesies are appreciated, and we are always glad to extend them when in our power.

—A full report of the distribution of the philatelic fund at San Francisco will probably be made public in the next issue of our paper.

—At the meeting of the Garfield-Perry Stamp Club, of Cleveland, Ohio, held Jan. 24, 1907, W. H. Barnum was appointed chairman of a committee to arrange for the seventeenth annual banquet to be held Friday, March 15th. W. A. Langdon will show his 20th century collection at the next meeting to be held February 7th at 512 Caxton Building. Visitors cordially invited.

—We take pleasure in acknowledging the receipt of a five years' subscription to the WEEKLY. We trust that A. E. Fritz, who pays the WEEKLY this fine tribute, will not take exceptions to this public recognition of the same.

—In a copy of the Scranton Truth just at hand we note a "personal" in which the work of L. Harald Kjellstedt in connection with philately receives very favorable mention. Mr. Kjellstedt has succeeded in organizing a Scranton branch of the A. P. A., and the new society is about to be chartered under the name of the Scranton Philatelic Club. It has the best wishes of the WEEKLY for success.

—James F. Gilbert of Lawrenceburg, Ky., sends us a copy of the Anderson News in which he was able to secure the insertion of the N. S. C. article "The Olive Blossom." Mr. Gilbert intends to continue the good work of gaining publicity for philately.

—H. Cormack has sent us a list descriptive of certain Central and South American stamps that he offers in combination lots for dealers.

EDITORIAL.

Received With Thanks—The newspapers have contained accounts of the presentation by the American Ambassador to Italy, Henry White, now retiring, to the Queen of Italy, Helena, of "a complete collection of United States postage stamps." The desire of the Queen to have a collection of United States was intimated to the American delegates to the last universal postal congress at Rome, and the representatives transmitted the wish of the Queen to the postal authorities. Our postmaster-general, with the approval of President Roosevelt, forwarded a classified series of stamps; and they were received with many expressions of thanks, the Queen assuring the Ambassador "that she highly appreciated the courtesy and kindness of the Washington officials." The collecting predelictions of the King and the Queen of Italy are well known, but it is very gratifying to philatelists to feel that their hobby has a large share of favor with them.

It Has Happened Before—Collectors are somewhat curious to know just what stamps the "complete collection" contained. In all likelihood, the specimens were unused and included only the straight sets of the adhesives. The originals of the 1847 issue can no longer be reproduced as the dies and plates of the two stamps were destroyed long before the reprinting of the other stamps for the Centennial exhibit. Occasionally, we read of gifts of similar lots of United States stamps to royal collectors, and while the humble American collector envies the kindly influence that crystallizes so happily, yet the satisfaction of knowing that his hobby is appreciated in the highest quarters, removes any sting that otherwise might be felt.

A Suspect—From a copy of the Washington Star, we learn that a serious theft has been committed at the post-office museum, at the capital. A person calling himself Edwin Letchmere, whose portrait shows him to be a well-dressed young man, has been arrested "on a charge of larceny from the United States in connection with the loss of valuable exhibits of jewels, gold, platinum and silver of the National Museum." He is suspected as having been implicated in some way in the loss of valuable postage stamps, which, according to a report to the police, were abstracted from the post-office museum, on a day when Letchmere was seen in the institution, loitering near the case in which the stamps reposed. Letchmere maintains his innocence, and there is no clue that has been uncovered as to the whereabouts of the stamps. The capture of the man is regarded as highly important as the Bertillion measurements of Letchmere coincide with those of a criminal, who, in Cleveland was arrested for cutting an oil painting from its frame, and who subsequently escaped from jail; a reward of one hundred dollars thereupon was offered for his recapture. The stamps that were stolen are appraised at about $550; they consisted of British colonials, among which was a British Central African that is valued at $300. If guilty of the stamp theft, Letchmere probably did not have an especial penchant for stamps; no doubt, he considered anything easily portable that represented a large value in a small volume, prey for his predatory instinct.

Not Bi-Colored—Colonel H. H. Bandholtz writes from Manila: "Since last writing you, Mr. Cotterman has informed me that the Bureau of Printing and Engraving has decided that it will be impracticable to print the Postal Savings Bank stamps in two colors. The postal authorities here are very much disappointed as they wished to have attractive and striking stamps in order to induce the poorer people to begin depositing. Nothing is known as yet as to when the stamps in question will be received."

Making Collectors—With the idea of commending the enterprise of philatelic writers in loaning their services, either gratuitously or for a consideration, to magazines of wide general circulation, we direct attention to a stamp department that has been established in Home Folks, beginning with the February number; the paper claims a circulation of 400,000. S. A. D. Cox, particularly well known in years gone by as a facile writer on philatelic topics, and at one time the publisher of a philatelic paper, is the editor of the department. His first contribution is well calculated to inspire readers with philatelic ambition. He closes his opening remarks, two solid columns in length, with the injunction whose philosophy is well worth repeating: "So, good-by, until next month, by which time, I hope, thousands of you will have begun making a collection of postage and revenue stamps. You will never regret it if you do begin; nor will you give up the pastime permanently, ever. You may, through press of other affairs, lay it aside for a while, but you will take it up again, and still again, and in the end you will die a stamp collector. And you will have lived happier for having been one."

Novel—Eben S. Martin sends a clipping from the Minneapolis Journal that tells of a really unique "post," one that we have no recollection of ever having seen described before, notwithstanding that innumerable articles on the subject of "curious" posts have been read. As a contribution to the list of methods employed for "postal" communication, we give the Christiania despatch, as it appeared in its entirety:

On the northmost coast a bottle has been washed ashore containing letters and a packet of tobacco. The letters, which were written in Icelandic, showed that this messenger from the sea is from the Vestmanna islands, which are situated off the southern coast of Inhospitable islands. They have no communication with the outside world except by "bottle post."

Whenever they want to communicate with the Icelanders, their nearest neighbors, they place their letters in a bottle, adding some tobacco as a gift to the finder who is expected to forward the letters to their destination. The bottle is then carefully sealed and thrown into the sea when a south wind is blowing, so that the current generally carries it to the Icelandic shores. The bottle in question, however, got out of its course, and had taken fully twelve months to reach the Norwegian coast, a distance of over 1000 miles, roughly speaking.

Philippines Revolutionary Issue—Alfred Smith and Son's Monthly Circular contains a well proportioned dissertation on Theodore Siddall's article of the "Philippine Revolutionary Government Stamps" that appeared in the WEEKLY. Mr. Smith says that the article tended "to raise them" (the stamps) "from the 'bogus' category to which they have generally been assigned." These insurrectory issues seem to have excited the strongest prejudice against themselves; and the tendency is to deny them any degree of recognition that they were eligible for postal duty in the rebellious districts once under Aguinaldo's sway. Years ago, the WEEKLY pointed out on the indubitable evidence submitted, together with the cover on which the stamp paid postage, by an army officer, that at least a few stamps performed actual postal service, even allowing the extreme assumption that the stamps were not issued primarily with high postal motives, according to the philatelic view. The envelope that proved the case was one captured first hand, on the person of an insurrectionist. However, there seems to be no disposition to give the stamps even the small amount of credit that seems to be due them.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—We have received from Chas. Jarecki a clipping from the Cleveland Leader of Jan. 23. Reference is made to the honor conferred upon several Americans in the change of name of the London Philatelic Society to the Royal Philatelic Society. Cuts of Messrs. Worthington and Pack embellish the article.

—Holland A. Davis, Secretary pro tem of the new revenue society informs us that seventy-one applications for charter membership have been received. This is a splendid showing, and indications point to close to one hundred ere the list is closed.

—We have received from C. F. Rothfuchs part 1 of his 1907 retail price-list devoted to U. S. stamps. Also an introductory circular that will be of material aid in introducing this veteran dealer to those new collectors who are being added every week to his mailing list.

—Wolsieffer will sell the collection of Francis King of Alma, Mich., in New York, Feb. 5 and 6. There is a general line listed in the catalog just at hand, Ceylon and single CA colonials being particularly strong.

A COLLECTION

80 U. S. and 1100 foreign in bran new Scott's Album, catalogue about $60 00, all good copies. This is a bona-fide collection in fine order—not a packet of continentals—Ecuador, Hayti, Borneo, Venezuela, Nyassa, etc., price only $7.50.

STAMP DEALERS SWINDLED.

Many Sheets of the 2c Imperforate Bought at Fancy Prices.

Dealers have been swindled within the past week by as clever a scheme as has been worked on the astute members of the trade in many years. It is doubtful if anything could be done in a legal sense, to the swindler, if he were caught. They have been induced to buy the common variety of the two-cent stamp of everyday commerce by the sheet, and have paid as high as $25 a hundred for them.

Some of the oldest dealers in the business have been caught, but no one is saying anything about it. But if you were to offer a "rare variety" of the ordinary two-cent stamp you would be in immediate danger of being soundly kicked. For it was by means of the "rare variety" dodge that the dealers were swindled.

Sheets of stamps from which the customary perforations were missing were the mediums.

Having in mind some of the old-time "errors," or rare varieties that now bring fabulous prices, the dealers jumped at the chance to buy the imperfect sheets. Here, indeed, was a genuine find, for the dapper young man who unloaded the stamps on the New York dealers averred that the lot he offered each one was all that happened to be made in the Bureau of Engraving and Printing at Washington.

"My cousin works down there," he told one Nassau street dealer, "and that's how I got them. They are the only ones and—how much will you give me for them?"

Sometimes the price would be ten cents, sometimes fifteen cents and sometimes even higher. Twenty-five cents is believed to be the record figure, this paid by a Twenty-third street dealer. And the funny part is none will admit their purchases. Nor do they wish to sell.

J. Walter Scott, the oldest dealer in the business, with a big place in John street, is reported to have secured a sheet at ten cents each, though doubtless he would deny today ever having heard of it. George Randolph Tuttle likewise was approached in his office in the Morton Building, and so were half a dozen others. In stamp circles the story got about that some dealers were stuck and stuck for several sheets at fancy prices, but when the subject was broached by an Eagle reporter there was a distinct chill and no information.

Because of this reluctance of the dealers who bought the "rare varieties" to admit they did so, it is unlikely any complaint ever will be lodged against the dapper young man. Anyhow, no complaint has been filed with the Secret Service people, and it is doubtful if the government officials know the scheme was worked. As the dealers made their own prices and the stamps are undoubtedly genuine two-cent stamps, it is doubtful if any action in the criminal courts of the state could be taken.

It has been learned, however, where the odd stamps, without perforations, came from. Experiments are going forward with a machine designed to stamp letters automatically. The inventor, who is working under government supervision, found that feeding the ordinary stamps in would not do, for his machine merely macerated them and the envelopes came out with unmailable stamps attached. The imperforate stamps were then made on purpose for experiments with the machine. How many sheets no one seems to know. How the sheets sold in New York "leaked out" does not appear.

As the automatic stamping machine was a success with the imperforate stamps, there is little doubt that thousands of imperforate two-cent stamps will be in use very shortly and that it will be no more a "rare variety." The incident is an unusual one and will interest philatelists all over the country.—Brooklyn Eagle.

ACROSS-THE-OCEAN ADVERTISERS.

In our comment last week upon the English patronage extended our special number, we neglected to name two prominent dealers.

D. Field, Royal Arcade, London.

The managing editor was treated to a sight good for the philatelic eye when on his tour of the stamp shops of London he found that busy hive of industry known as the Royal Arcade. Here the stamp firm of D. Field demonstrates that the philatelic end can be kept up to the enterprise shown in any other branch of business. We are reminded in the receipt of the West End Philatelist that this publication fits in to a nicety with the air of refinement that pervades the Field establishment. Mr. Poole is the editor. This accounts for the mass of information crowded into its pages. Mr. Field is the manager, hence the special offers of good things found in every issue. It reminds us of the old Boston Stamp Book that was so dear to the philatelic lover of the artistic. Mr. Field would have you know, however, that fine stamps in fine condition is his specialty, and our own observation confirms this claim.

W. T. Wilson, Birmingham.

From London to Birmingham by way of Ipswich is not a very direct route, but directness must sometimes be subordinated to business considerations. When we reached 292 Birchfield Rd, with watch in hand, we figured the time we had at our disposal, and Mr. Wilson graciously informed us that we were like all Americans "arriving and departing" at the same moment. We stopped long enough to be convinced that Mr. Wilson has a fine stock of stamps. His advertisement last week is conclusive evidence that he has a superb stock of rarities, and his occasional patronage of our columns shows an appreciation of the pulling properties of our mailing list. As we glance over the list of special offerings we find five circular British Guiana, total value $1200, a 12p Canada, Labuan and Lagos gems, rare old Oldenburg with o. g. double Genevas, U. S. St. Louis 5c, 1869, 24c invert, but enough—look up the advertisement and it will speak for itself.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES.

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Any information regarding new issues will be gratefully received and acknowledged. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. The figures in parentheses refer to the previous number of the WEEKLY in which the same country was noticed

UNITED STATES (839).—John A. Solomon reports the following new precancel:

Mansfield, Ohio, 10c 1902, down.

AUSTRIAN CRETE (838).—We have been shown the 25 centimes on 25 heller, with shiny bars, by the North Shore Stamp Co.

BRITISH GUIANA (830).—According to the British Guiana Philatelic Journal the full set of stamps from 1c to 48c has now appeared on both ordinary and chalky multiple paper; the 60c has been issued on ordinary paper and the 96c on chalky paper, while the 72c has not appeared on either.

BRITISH HONDURAS (810).—We have seen the 1c on chalky multiple paper.

BRUNEI (837).—The London Philatelist chronicles the full set of stamps for this colony, all of the Crown type of Labuan surcharged "Brunei," and in most cases a new value, the old value being barred out. The values are the same as those now in use in the Straits Settlements.

Adhesives.

With black overprint.
1c violet and black.
With red overprint.
1c violet and black.
2c on 3c brown and black.
2c on 8c vermilion and black.
3c brown and black.
4c on 12c yellow and black.
5c on 16c brown and green.
8c vermilion and black
10c on 16c brown and green.
25c on 16c brown and green.
30c on 16c brown and green.
50c on 16c brown and green.
$1 on 8c vermilion and black.

CANAL ZONE.—The new Panama set surcharged for use here is being gradually put on sale. We have been shown specimens of the 1, 5, 8 and 10c additional to the 2c already chronicled by us. The surcharge Canal Zone in black in each instance reads down. We are indebted to Emil J. Rall and H. Leonard for courtesies in connection with the above.

Adhesives.

1c green and black, Panama surch. Canal Zone.
5c blue " " "
8c violet " " "
10c purple " " "

DENMARK (839).—Herman W. Boers has shown us a copy of the Christmas stamp noted last week.

EGYPT (837).—The "Service de l'Etat" stamp will be superseded Feb. 1, and stamps of the values of 1m, 2m, 3m, 5m and 20m will be provided for the use of Government officials, surcharged "O. H. H. S." Heretofore the service stamps have been affixed, without regard to weight, but now Government officials will pay the same postage as the public.

GIBRALTAR (Morocco Agencies).—Stanley Gibbons, Inc., and the North Shore Stamp Co. have shown us the new set issued for the British Offices in Morocco, the current King's Head set of Great Britain being surcharged. In two lines at the top in sans serif capital letters may be found the words "MOROCCO AGENCIES" while the value is in a horizontal line at the bottom of the stamp. The overprinting is done in black and all are on chalky paper with the exception of the 5c, 10c, 25c and 6p which are on ordinary.

Adhesives.

5c on ½d green.
10c on 1d scarlet.
15c on 1½d violet and green.
20c on 2d green and carmine.
25c on 2½d ultramarine.
50c on 5d lilac and ultramarine.
1p on 10d carmine and violet.
3p on 2sh 6d violet.
6p on 5sh carmine.

GRENADA (839).—Ewen reports that the 3d postage due stamp has been issued on ordinary multiple paper.

HONDURAS (839).—Hermann Focke favors us with a glimpse of two more values of the new 1907 series, the design being the same as the 1903 issue, with new portrait and date changed to 1907. The colors are much darker than the previous set.

Adhesives.

1c green.
6c purple.

HONG KONG (778).—Ewen chronicles the 2c King's Head stamp on chalky multiple paper.

NETHERLANDS.—Stanley Gibbons Inc. have shown us a complete set of the charity stamps issued Dec. 21 of last year, and for sale only in Amsterdam up to Jan. 3 of this year. These stamps were to be issued for inland postage only and were sold at double face value, the excess receipts to be given over to the Anti-Tuberculosis Society of Amsterdam. The design of the issue is quite complicated and we will not undertake a description of it. The stamps are large in size and of an oblong rectangular shape like our U. S. Columbian issue. H. M. Wichman has also shown us the 1c stamp of this new series.

Adhesives.

1ct red.
3ct green.
5ct gray.

NEW ZEALAND (838).—We are now able to give the colors of the 6d Christchurch Exhibition stamp, noted recently.

Adhesive.

6d green and rose.

NICARAGUA (835).—Hermann Focke has shown us a copy of the new 10c (London print), with surcharge "Costa—Atlantica"—B,' the former standing for Atlantic Coast, and the "B" for Bluefields, from whence the letter came. Curiously enough the first two lines have quotation marks on the stamp, an unusual thing in surcharges of any kind.

RIO DE ORO (835).—Madrid Filatelico reports that a new set of stamps has been issued dated 1907, the design being presumably the same as the 1905 set, as in the case of Fernando Poo and Elobey.

Adhesives.

1c dark rose.
2c bronze green.
3c dark chestnut.
4c carmine.
5c dark sepia.
10c brick red.
15c blue.

50c violet brown.
75c red brown.
1p dark orange.
2p violet.
3p green.
4p light blue.
5p red.
10p dark green.

ROUMANIA (838).—The North Shore Stamp Co. has shown us the 2d value in the upright commemorative series, with portrait of King Charles.

Adhesive.

2l orange and black.

TRINIDAD (831).—The 2½d has appeared on ordinary multiple white paper, a copy having been shown us by the North Shore Stamp Co.

Adhesive.

2½d ultramarine.

Regular meetings 3rd Tuesday in each month at Elks' Hall, Hayward Pl., at 8 P. M.

Mr. President and Gentlemen:

It has been a great privilege and distinction to serve you in the office of Secretary during the past eventful year — in which our Society has been to the fore in all good philatelic works.

We have been prosperous and find to our credit a substantial net increase in membership.

The figures given in another part of this report show that our meetings have been increasingly largely attended, and all departments of the Society have been well supported.

Ten regular and two special meetings have been held during the year; and the governing board has held five meetings.

In April a special meeting was called in honor of Mr. Fred J. Melville, President of the Junior Philatelic Society, London, which was held in the parlors of Young's Hotel; and an opportunity afforded local philatelists to meet our guest, whose services to our science have been so distinguished.

In August we entertained the American Philatelic Association, which held its annual convention here on invitation from the Boston Philatelic Society. The Committee of arrangements appointed to care for the visitors executed successfully a program of entertainment which was well received by our guests.

A large portion of our local membership has lately enrolled in New England Branch, American Philatelic Association, with the object of doing their share to further the best interests of our national organization.

The work of the Secretary has been heavy during the past year — for, in addition to the usual routine, a new library list and list of members and statutes have been issued and mailed; and a considerable additional work was incurred in preparing for the American Philatelic Association Convention.

Your Secretary has been present at all meetings during the past year, and also at all meetings of the Governing Board and of the Committees on which he served.

I have, with great regret, to report the death in February, of Mr. W. T. Pierce, a member since 1895.

Respectfully submitted,
EDW. DE Z. KELLEY, Secretary.

QUERIES AND COMMENT.

Edited by C. E. SEVERN.

Our readers are cordially invited to ask the editor for any information desired concerning stamp collecting. Should a personal reply be desired kindly enclose postage. This department is for the beginner as well as the advanced collector. Address, C. E. SEVERN, 820 Oxford Bdg., Chicago Ill.

R. H. S.:—This correspondent asks: "Is the 3c on 5c telegraph stamp of 1903 issue of Chile, No. 49, an error? How many sheets were printed with the surcharge and how many got into circulation? Stanley Gibbons does not catalogue this,—why? Any information on this stamp will be thankfully received." We cannot furnish the statistical information that is desired. In a list of the surcharges of this issue, while we find the quantities of all the other stamps given, the compiler says regarding the stamp under view: "A 3c surcharge has been noted as printed in error on the 5c Valdivia stamp, but whether this is also the Waterlow type, I cannot say as I have not seen a specimen." We insert your queries in the hope that further information will be forthcoming. The catalogue named is not the only one that omits this stamp from its pages.

Several correspondents who have submitted specimens of shoe license stamps or have written concerning them are told that these labels such as were used principally in Massachusetts, were for the purpose of certifying to the payment of royalty on each pair of shoes in the making of which, special patented machinery was used. The patented device was leased to the shoe manufacturer and its advantages lay in its process of sewing the sole on the shoe, instead of pegging it on. The patentee of the machine secured a record of the royalty for its use through the numbered label that was attached to each pair of shoes. The labels were used during the civil war and for some time afterwards. The labels most commonly seen are those of the McKay Sewing Machine Co. Mention is made of license stamps in the WEEKLY dated April 15th, April 22nd and May 20th, 1905.

Emil J. Rall kindly writes from the Canal Zone: "If, in your reply to correspondent under 'Queries and Comments' in the WEEKLY of December 15th, 1906, you intended to enumerate all the Canal Zone postoffices, I beg to call your attention to several omissions. One of the most important on the Zone is Bas Obispo, which has been in operation for over a year. Being a resident of this place, I do not like to see this, our most popular government institution, slighted. A second office is Las Cascadas, situated about one mile beyond Bas Obispo, and about fifteen miles from Panama."

Buy of Us, You Buy Right!

Since we began advertising in the WEEKLY, we have made an effort to offer stamps at what we felt them to be worth. We have not been price cutters in the sense that as soon as a stamp has been offered we have offered the stamp for a little less. We have very decided opinions about the values of some stamps and when we offer anything we are willing to buy at a price that will allow us a proper margin of profit.

Worth Remembering.

We don't ask you for postage on a small order that means ten to twenty per cent. We gladly pay that. With your order we send a stamped and addressed envelope for return in case the copies are not satisfactory, and of all the stamps we have supplied on cash orders not a single copy has been returned. What other firm does this!

Personal checks accepted at par on any point in America.

VALUABLE PREMIUM FREE!

An unused United States stamp catalogued by Gibbons at 25c free to all ordering at least that amount from this advertisement.

BRANCH SOCIETIES.

MILWAUKEE, WIS., Jan. 21, 1907.

Branch Societies of the American Philatelic Association have been formed in many cities which meet once or twice a month, and in some instances they are taking the place of a local society.

I am just informed eleven collectors of Columbus, O., have applied for membership with the object of forming a Branch to be known as the "Columbus Collectors Club." This is commendable and it is hoped collectors in all sections will "get together" and follow the example set by Columbus. Five or more members residing in the same locality may form a Branch Society.

Collectors who are not familiar with the benefits of membership should write at once for booklet and application blank. Total cost to join in Feby. $1.60.

To give collectors an idea of the increase in membership of this Association I quote from Year Book. The total membership in Aug. 1901 was 532, in Aug. 1905, 674, or a gain of 142 in four years. The membership today including applications pending is over 1000, or a gain of 326 in less than 18 months.

Electrotype seals mentioned in WEEKLY Nos. 832 and 836 can still be furnished members for use on stationery.

C. C. JOHNSON, Chairman.

WASHINGTON PHILATELIC SOCIETY.

C. F. ADAMS, Pres.; PROF. M. WHITNEY, V. Pres.; J. F. ENGLE, Sec'y; R. WYSONG, Treas.; T. R. HUNGERFORD, Supt. Exchange; P. H. WARD, JR., Supt. Auctions; H. F. COLMAN, Lib.; Gov. Board: Pr-s., Sec'y, Treas. and S. L. IRVINE, H. B. MASON, C. D. MCCUTCHEN, GEO. L. TOPPAN.

Regular meetings 2nd Monday at Oppenheimer's Hall, 514 9th St., N. W.

The 14th regular meeting was held Jan. 14, 1907. Seventeen members were present. The resignation of E. D. Clark was accepted. The Secretary announced that he had given to Librarian a complete file of the Stamp Lovers Weekly. The Treasurer reported balance in treasury of $30.67; Library fund, $7.40; Insurance fund, $2.84.

After the regular business of the meeting the Supt. of Auctions held an auction sale comprising 175 lots which were disposed of at fair prices.

The first year of the society has been a very successful one. The interchange of philatelic thought has been very helpful and by reason of the facilities afforded by the society through the exchange and auction departments and private exchange of duplicates most of the members have added many stamps to their collections.

The new year starts with great promise and it is hoped that the close of the year will show the membership increased to 50. The acquisition of Geo. L. Toppan as a member will be a great impetus for the welfare of the society.

A cordial invitation is extended to all readers of the WEEKLY residing in Washington and vicinity to visit the society meetings and we would be pleased to receive applications for membership. Initiation fee is 25c, dues $1.00 per year which includes subscription to MEKEEL'S WEEKLY. Join our society. We will do you good and you will help us.

NATIONAL STAMP COMMITTEE.

Executive Board:—C. A. HOWES, Pres.; WILLARD O. WYLIE, Sec.; E. M. CARPENTER, Treas.; J. M. BARTELS, F. PUTNEY, JR., JOHN N. LUFF, HENRY N. MUDGE. Address Room 508 Kast Bdg., Boston, Mass.

The amount of pledges "previously reported" Jan. 19 was not $456 as stated but $481 as given in the issue of Dec. 22. We therefore make our figures agree with that of the treasurer by adding $25 to the amount reported last week. The total receipts and pledges to date are $556. We will be glad to hear from those dealers who have not as yet seen their way clear to contributing to the Committee funds. The last article written by Mr. Burroughs, dealing with the Royal Philatelic Society, is being printed far and near and must do an immense amount of good for philately.

Thursday, Jan. 24, 1907.

The 223rd meeting of the Twin City Philatelic Society was held Thursday, Jan. 24, at 422 6th Ave. Roll call showed 12 members and one visitor present. The report of the Treasurer, Secretary and Mr. Wenzel were heard and approved. The Treasurer was authorized to pay all bills to date and Mr. Wenzel was directed to inquire into causes of delay of foreign papers to the Society. Correspondence was received from H. A. Davis, of Denver, Colo., in regards to the formation of a new Revenue Society. The Secretary was directed to attend to the matter. The application of John Arnodt for membership was deferred until next meeting. As no new businesswas on hand the Society adjourned at 9.45 P. M.

Fellow Members: Please send to your secretary, at your earliest convenience, nominations for officers for the ensuing year as follows: President, Vice President, Secretary, Treasurer and Executive Committee of three.

There are a few members whose dues are still unpaid. Look up your Certificate of Membership to see if yours is among them. All delinquents have been addressed by the secretary. He is very anxious to have all paid in before the expiration of the fiscal year Feb. 28th. Any one who has been secretary of a society must know the pangs of regret that he experiences for not getting the dues in promptly.

IS THE MINOR VARIETY UNDULY EXALTED?

BY L. G. DORPAT.

If this question were submitted to a vote, it were sufficient to answer it by "Yes" or "No." The result, however, would not settle the matter, as in philately the majority has no power to compel the minority, and each and every individual has both, the right and the liberty, to hold his own opinion against the opinion of all the others. Hence, to merely assert a philatelic doctrine is not enough. What is required, is an argumentation that will convince.

Moreover if the result of a vote on the above question were unanimous, the opinions of the voters might still differ, because they might not agree as to the meaning of the terms, Minor Variety and Unduly Exalted. Hence, it will be necessary to define these terms in the sense in which they are used in this article.

If we take any of the modern catalogues, we shall find that certain stamps were first issued imperforate and after some time the same stamps were issued perforated. These we call varieties, but not minor varieties; they are numbered in the catalogues, and generally speaking, there is no objection to their enumeration.

What some collectors object to are those varieties, which under the same numbers are enumerated under letters a, b, c, etc., in the catalogues. These are what we usually call minor varieties. They may be varieties of die, of color, of paper or the like. Some are easily distinguished from the normal stamp, and some are so very little different from that, that it takes some study and practice before one can distinguish them at all.

Here is a difficulty that has puzzled many a one. Where is the line to be drawn between those minor varieties that deserve enumeration and those that do not? Different collectors will give different answers. As a matter of fact there are no two stamps precisely alike, though they be on the same sheet or on different sheets from the same cliché or block. The difference may be very small, and it may take a good deal of sharpness to find and point it out; but a difference there is, else the two stamps would lose their individuality, or in other words, they would not be two, but one, the same stamp.

Absurd! Yes, apparently so to carry the distinction so far. But where is the line? Some draw it where their eyesight fails; others take the microscope to help them and draw the line when that fails. Hence there are minor variety hunters.

In this article we use the term as applying to those varieties only, which are found in some catalogues. It is true, even in this sense; the term is yet rather indefinite, because what one catalogue has, the other omits, and the several editions of the same catalogue do not agree on all points. If we were to consider those minor varieties only on which all catalogues agree, then the difficulty would be solved at once, for then there would be hardly one collector left who would claim that those varieties were unduly exalted.

Hence we take the term as meaning all those varieties, which are found in any catalogue. Varieties not found in any catalogue, though they may be quite as pronounced as those found, we do not consider here, because the claim can hardly be raised that they are unduly exalted, as they are not even as much as mentioned by any catalogue.

Now what is meant by Unduly Exalted? Taking facts as they are, there are principally three things to be considered here. They are mentioned in some catalogue, they are described in some philatelic journal or hand-book and there are spaces for some of them in some albums. That is about all the exaltation they get. Perhaps we might mention, that for some of them extra high prices are paid, or at least asked, and there are some collectors who try to get them and rejoice when they succeed. These points, however, are so closely connected with the first three, that it seems sufficient to mention them, for if the other three are settled, these will disappear of themselves.

Thus the whole thing seems to dwindle down into insignificance. What is it to me, that some catalogue mentions a variety, which I know nothing of? Or what is it to me, that a society in Holland publishes a long list of perforation varieties, which I do not care to bother about? Or what is it to me, that my neighbor has an album with fifty spaces for a certain country, where mine has but fifteen? Is that undue exaltation of the minor variety? I think not. If it is, I do not care. It may seem undue to others, not to me.

But, some will say, though the theory is all right, practically there is a good deal of difficulty. Catalogues do not agree,

CO-OPERATIVE EXCHANGE,
85 Putnam Ave., BROOKLYN, N. Y.

PHILIPPINES ON U. S.

We have not dared to advertise these since the appearance of the new issue, as our stock was too low to supply even a moderate demand. We have just purchased from Mr. John Zug his entire stock of these issues and are pleased to be able to offer practically a complete line including some nice shades as well as nearly all values in blocks of four at same rates. All are unused, centered and in beautiful condition. Selections of shades or blocks submitted at request. Supply of the dollar values is limited to a few orders.

BOGERT & DURBIN CO., 722 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Pa.

journals waste a lot of paper, and those empty spaces in the album are an eye-sore to an æsthetic owner. Besides that, the "other fellow" boasts of a collection worth twice as much as mine, while in fact he has the same stamps as I have, only in rarer and hence costlier minor varieties than mine.

True! And for that little difficulty and this little boasting of the "other fellow," you speak of undue exaltation? Why, I thought you were more intelligent and less dependent on the "other fellow." Let him do as he pleases, and you do as you please. There is no use quarrelling!

As for those empty spaces in your album,—fill them with any other stamps that you may have, if you cannot get the particular varieties for which they are designed, and if you do not want them empty. Be independent, think and act for yourself, and you'll come out all right.

Let me tell you what undue exaltation in regard to minor varieties is. If that "other fellow" will try to compel you to follow the lines that he has laid out, if he tries to make rules and laws for others, then he will unduly exalt himself, his opinions and his minor varieties. Thus, if anybody found a variety and thought, because he found it; that everybody should be obliged to recognize it, then he would unduly exalt it. But if he merely tells others of his find, offers it to them for their acceptance or rejection, and permits them to retain their liberty and do as they please, then you can not speak of undue exaltation, unless it is yourself who unduly exalts his own opinions trying to make others sub-servient to them.

No doubt there are some who unduly exalt the minor variety by trying to persuade everybody to collect it. But generally speaking we can hardly say that it is unduly exalted, because everybody is left free to do with it as he pleases.

To some the hunting of minor varieties offers a keen delight, it is just what makes stamp collecting fascinating and profitable to them. They should not be hindered.

Stamp collecting, after all, is not a duty. It is a pastime, a hobby, a recreation, or if you will, a science or an art, but a "liberal" art, a "liberal" science, i. e. one in which every one remains his own master.

There is, however, another side to the question. Suppose you are a counterfeit detector or a clerk working for some "large" dealer, and it is your duty to pass judgment on stamps. Suppose further, you knew nothing of minor varieties in this your position, and there were no catalogue, no paper, no book and no album that mentioned any one of them. Do you think you would be competent? Do you think that your judgment would be worth much? I think not. And you may be sure the majority of dealers and collectors would agree with me.

We may safely say that for the true student, it is absolutely necessary to know the minor variety. And for his sake and all those who desire to approach his standing, it is necessary that the minor variety be exalted if this means to be mentioned, described and collected by all who desire to do so. To wipe it out, means to cheapen philately and to bring it back to the level of the school boy pastime.

COLUMBUS COLLECTORS CLUB.

The members of the A. P. A. residing in Columbus, O., have organized a local club, the first meeting being held Jan. 16, at which the following officers were chosen: Pres., C. B. Duffy; Vice Pres., E. A. Dunn; Sec., H. S. Adair; Treas., O. A. Shenck; Sales Mgr., D. C. Sawyer; Lib., Geo. W. Linn. Official Organ, Columbus Philatelist.

The club has twelve members 21 years of age or over. This number will no doubt be augmented by the A. P. A. members residing in near-by localities. At the meeting held Jan. 30, the stamps of Great Britain were to be shown. The example set by the enterprising philatelists of Columbus may well be emulated by other philatelic centers, where there are sufficient members of the A. P. A. to form branches of this organization. We shall be glad to give space from time to time to the doings of this latest scion of our national body.

WILLIAM THORNE.

By the death of William Thorne, philately loses one of its most substantial supporters in the U. S., and every stamp collector loses a friend. Mr. Thorne commenced collecting in the early seventies and pursued his favorite occupation to the end. He was one of the founders and a life member of The Philatelic Society, New York. He was also a founder and ex-president of the Collectors Club, a member of the Brooklyn Philatelic Club and other organizations for the advancement of stamp collecting, the Metropolitan Club and the Westminster Kennel Club. Mr. Thorne came of a distinguished family many of whom are noted in the business or artistic life of New York. His father was one of the first leather merchants in this city, with tanneries throughout the country. The business was continued by William and his brother Jonathan until the formation of the Leather Trust. He married early in life a Miss Thompson, a member of an old Colonial family, who with a daughter survive him.

RUDOLPHUS RITZEMA BOGERT.

With sorrow we announce the death of R. R Bogert, one of the oldest American stamp dealers. For thirty years his name has been known to every stamp collector in the country and has been synonymous for intelligent and honest dealing. He died on Wednesday, the 23d, at his home in Brooklyn. After the funeral services he was cremated and the ashes interred in the old Quaker burying ground in Prospect Park. Mr. Bogert will be known to posterity by the monumental work on U. S. envelopes written in conjunction with Messrs. Tiffany and Rechert.

Mr. Bogert was born in New York sixty-four years ago, and came of a well-known Quaker family. One of his ancestors, Dominie Ritzema, settled on Manhattan Island when it was still known as New Amsterdam. Another ancestor, Rudolphus Ritzema, received the thanks of the Continental Congress for raising the first regiment in New York. George P. Gordon, an uncle of Mr. Bogert, invented the Gordon job-printing press. Mr. Bogert leaves a widow and two daughters.—Metropolitan Philatelist.

BIDS ON STAMPED ENVELOPES AND WRAPPERS BEING CONSIDERED BY P. O. DEPT.

It is up to the Postmaster General to decide whether the Government will undertake to print its own stamped envelopes and newspaper wrappers or give the contract for supplying them for the next four years to private concerns.

This administration favors the official manufacture of its negotiable securities, as was recently shown in the case of supplying postage stamps. The American Bank Note Company tendered a bid lower than that of the Bureau of Printing and Engraving, which got the award under the ruling of the Postmaster General that it was for the good of the service to have the work done in a Government institution.

In response to a request for bids to supply stamped envelopes and newspaper wrappers for the next four years, two tenders were made. That of the Eastern Manufacturing and Contracting Company of New York was less than that of its only rival, the Hartford Manufacturing Company of Hartford, Conn.

Both bids are now being considered by a special committee appointed by the Postmaster General, consisting of Carter B. Keene, postoffice inspector; E. H. Thorpe, superintendent of city delivery, and William C. Fitch, clerk to the Third Assistant Postmaster General.

The conclusions of this committee will be submitted to the Postmaster General, who will decide whether the bids will both be rejected and the Bureau of Engraving and Printing do the work, or the contract be given to the lower bidder.

It is learned that the Postoffice Department is dissatisfied because there were only two bids.—Washington Times, Feb, 1.

OUR BOOK REVIEW.

Philatelic Side Lines—The Springfield Stamp Club has published number one of a series of books to be issued under the heading above given. One before us is a neat little reference book of 24 pages with cover in which hydrometer labels, lock seals, beer, cigarette, cigar and snuff stamps are catalogued together with foreign offices of the English and French post offices, and as well French colonial abbreviations. This will give an idea of the contents of this little book issued by the committee on publication of which Wm. C. Stone is chairman. No doubt many of our readers will be pleased to take advantage of the low price at which this brochure is offered. Price 15c. Published by the Springfield Stamp Club, Springfield, Mass.

Whitfield King & Co. Catalog—From the seventh edition of Whitfield King and Co.'s catalogue, whose distinctive feature is that it is simplified in the sense that it lists prime varieties only, we take the following which has place in the preface: "The total number of stamps issued to date, as included in this catalogue, is 20,496, of which 6,153 are apportioned to the British Empire, and 14,343 to the rest of the world. Europe has issued 4,361, Asia 3,856, Africa 4,469, America 4,688, the West Indies 1,637, and Oceania 1,485." The pronouncing vocabulary which was introduced in the preceding edition of this catalogue has been revised and verified; and it may now be referred to more confidently than ever before, as correspondents "on the spot" have corrected the errors noticed in the previous edition. The catalogue embraces over four hundred well-printed pages, replete with cuts and instructive explanatory notes; price one shilling and six pence; Whitfield King & Company, Ipswich, England.

SPECIAL NOTICE! All adhesive stamps, and nearly all envelope stamps offered in this advertisement I bought at the

Holton Stamp Company's Sale

I was the heaviest buyer, and bought more than one sixth of all lots sold. I bought 215 lots of the 1118 lots of the stamps which were sold at the Holton Stamp Co.'s auction sale.

Of the 215 lots which I bought, I offer for sale in this adv't, and other ads. to follow this one, desirable stamps at extremely low prices, and thereby give you a chance to obtain

SNAPS THAT ARE SNAPS.

Many of the stamps I offer at prices much lower than the former extremely low prices of the Holton Stamp Co., and much lower than I have paid for similar stamps heretofore.

The biggest amount of talk before the sale, was about two U. S envelope stamps, catalogue numbers 1524 and 1529.

1886, 4c green on Oriental buff, and 1886, 4c green on blue paper

CATALOGUE VALUE $6.00 EACH

In this advertisement you will see that

MY PRICE IS 15c EACH.

I desire to say to collectors who bought these envelopes of me at their former high prices, to kindly bear in mind that my loss in these envelopes is heavy, because I now have in stock a quantity for which I paid in cash from $2.00 to $6 67 a piece.

To reimburse collectors for their loss, I shall offer in my advertisements many stamps at prices as stated above; and to give the largest possible number a chance at these bargains, I have decided to positively sell not more than one of a kind, one pair, one block and one wholesale lot to each purchaser.

Orders under $1.00 for stamps offered in this adv't are respectfully declined.

All stamps are in good condition.

Only one of a kind to each purchaser.

EDITORIAL.

A Double Loss— Philately is called upon to mourn two of its distinguished devotees, Wm. Thorne and R. R. Bogert, both of New York City. One or the other of these two gentlemen have been well known to hundreds of our readers, and in many instances both will be remembered as warm admirers and steadfast supporters in our science. The names of both have frequently been seen in the philatelic press in connection with some phase of its advancement and the appreciative words taken elsewhere from the Metropolitan Philatelist will be endorsed by those who knew them.

Of the Past—Anything that appertains to the early printed chronicles of philately is of interest; and at times in the past we have reprinted items that told of stamp collecting in the forties, when it was not pursued in a regulated way. As possessing an antiquarian interest, we take the following from the Australian Philatelist:

"We are indebted to the Rev. W. Wiles for the following poem written on the 17th March, 1846, by Christina Rosetti, at that time 16 years of age:—

TO ELIZABETH READ,
With some Postage Stamps for a Collection.

Sweetest Elizabeth, accept, I pray,
These lowly stamps I send in homage true:
One hundred humble servants in their way
Are not to be despised, though poor to view.
Their livery of red and black—nor gay
Nor sober all—is typical of you,
In whom are gravity and gladness mixt:
Thought here, smiles there—perfection lies betwixt.

CHRISTINA ROSETTI.

Note of Wm. Michael Rosetti on the poem. Edition of Christmas Poems, published 1904—'Miss Read was a young lady under the tuition of our sister Maria. She is now Mrs. Bull, widow of a leading physician in Hereford. Christina had a most cordial liking for her. The design to this trifle is a human personation of one of the stamps, bowing in the character of a 'humble servant,' and wearing the 'livery of red and black,' of a sort of mediæval cut.'"

A COLLECTION

80 U. S. and 1100 foreign in bran new Scott's Album, catalogue about $60 00, all good copies. This is a bona-fide collection in fine order—not a packet of continentals—Ecuador, Hayti, Borneo, Venezuela, Nyassa, etc., price only $7.50.

Lot of Filled Approval Sheets FOR DEALERS

A lot of filled approval sheets, all in perfect order, and all ready to send out. The lot contains 35-40 sheets of 50 stamps each and contains a large variety stamps up to 25 cents and some over that. No U. S., no envelopes, no cards. The stamps are all priced at 1906 prices and list $72.00. Price only $6.50. You can give 50%, 60%, 75% discount and still more than double your money. This is a great bargain.

Fulton Stamp Co., 102 W. 42 St., New York.

Born in Obscurity—Any reference to the pioneer days of stamp collecting, when it was not a systematized occupation should be supplemented by the following data, which was recorded by Mr. P. J. Anderson of Edinburgh, in the course of a valuable article on stamp collecting that appeared in the publication, Notes and Queries, some years ago: "It yet remains to fix with something like accuracy the date when stamp collecting in the true sense (i. e., the collecting of different varieties of stamps) first began to attract general attention in Britain. Judge Suppantschitsch, of Vienna, claims to have unearthed a reference to collecting in the Family Herald for 22nd March, 1851. The Philatelic Journal of America for March, 1885, asserts that advertisements from English dealers appeared as far back as 1857. I have been unable to obtain confirmation of this assertion, but probably the advertisement pages of the early volumes of the first series of Beeton's Boy's Own Magazine, 1855–62, if anywhere accessible, might yield some result."

About Fifty Years Old—It is known that almost coincident with the appearance of stamps, the accumulating of them was begun by persons who had a natural instinct for saving things. The Times and even Punch bear testimony to this statement with printed evidence. Of course, stamp accumulating as then indulged in—and practiced by some persons nowadays—must not be confounded with orderly stamp collecting. It may be advanced with fairness that philately could begin to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of its founding at about this time.

Well Done—H. B. Phillips, San Francisco, who had in charge the administration of the fund collected by the New York Stamp Society for the relief of philatelic sufferers in the San Francisco disaster, has tendered his report covering the distribution of the money; and it has been forwarded to the secretary of the society whose commendable enterprise made the fund possible. In a letter to the WEEKLY, who was given the privilege by the New York Stamp Society of naming the custodian, Mr. Phillips says: "On behalf of the philatelists of San Francisco and vicinity, I sincerely thank all who contributed to this fund, and can assure them that while we may not find a present breathing place in our strenuous life since the fire, to stop and individually thank them, the fraternal link forged in the awful heat of our devastation will never be forgotten."

A Loss—Here we make room for the suggestion of a contemporary that in view of the fact that the Philatelic Society of New Zealand lost the best part of its library "in the late fire," it would be a gracious and helpful act on the part of philatelists in different sections of the world to send donations to the library. Many of the items destroyed cannot be replaced, but it is thought that co-operation by generous philatelists will soften the blow that has befallen the soceity, whose headquarters, we take it, are at Auckland.

Excuse Advanced—The New Zealand commemoration stamps have been received; and in connection with their issue we take the following from a Christchurch newspaper that reports the remarks of the premier, Sir John Ward, on November 1st, 1906, in an address that was among the features of the opening ceremonies of the Christchurch exhibition: "In order to mark the inception of this undertaking, you can for the first time today (1st November) send a letter to America for a penny. Today, for the first time, you can send four ounces by weight of a letter throughout New Zealand for a penny." As an observing philatelist says, "these striking proofs of postal progress may almost justifiably be celebrated by a new issue of stamps."

Philatelists Take Notice—"Stamps, Arkansas, should be a hot-bed of philately," says a correspondent. We notice that Stamps is given, in a gazeteer, with a population of 1,021. Some time ago, we told on the authority of a dealer, of a small town with an unusually high ratio of collectors in comparison with the total population. Recently, another dealer wrote to say that he had the names of over thirty collectors on his books, in a town of less than 5,000 people. If the same proportion of collectors to total population were maintained throughout the United States, with an estimated population of eighty million, there would be no fewer than about half a million collectors in this country.

Possibilities—At Lady Minto's fête held at Calcutta, India, whose object was to raise funds for the furtherance of the charities of that city, a philatelic exhibition was a feature. It, at least, was proposed that the fête, which was scheduled for January 27th to February 6th, be signalized by a special stamp issue; and the suggestion was made that "the six anna stamp bearing the late Empress' head, prepared many years ago, but never issued owing to the death of her majesty," be tendered for postal service, although it could not be available in time for use during the fête itself.

The Dollar in Mind—The Indo-China stamps with the different surcharges that made their appearance late last year are sold at each of the post-offices as surcharged on the stamps in complete sets of sixteen stamps each, mounted on sheets of paper. "What right, therefore, have they to be catalogued as 'stamps issued to the public?'" asks a cotemporary. There is none, according to strict philatelic morals, but we remark that the plan of swelling stamp sales at the expense of collectors is not a new one. When the famous jubilee issue of Canada was first placed on sale, the logical minded philatelist objected to it on the score that the set included high values, "for which there is no postal use, and that certain of the set were not issued to the public in the regular way, and could only be purchased in complete sets and not separately."

The Simplified Catalogue—When we had something to say about a simplified catalogue the other week, we made no mention of Whitfield King & Co.'s Universal Standard Catalogue. Now, however, the receipt of the new seventh edition, 1907, of this standard simplified catalogue allows us to repeat—and with emphasis, this time—the commendatory words that we have used in the past, when reviewing the other editions. The catalogue is an admirable one in scheme for the general collector to whom the book addresses itself in particular, as the straight stamps only are listed and priced. The essential stamps are all represented, only those belonging to the class and not the mass being excluded.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centres. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered —The friends of Eben S. Martin will be pained to hear that he recently experienced an accident to his eye which required the treatment of a Milwaukee specialist. Mr. Martin may well be a believer in the trite saying "misfortunes never come singly."

—We are favored with stamp clippings from various subscribers for which thanks are extended. Among the number are Mac H. Sanborn, J. H. Houston, Theo. A. Kendall, Edward Howard and Wm. A. Stark.

—A Missouri representative has introduced a bill into Congress providing that all goods manufactured in the U. S. on which there would be a duty if they were made abroad and imported into this country, shall be stamped at the factory with the amount of duty they would pay if not of domestic origin. In explanation of this bill its sponsor states that he believes the public should be educated in tariff duties so that it may know exactly how much it is paying in indirect taxation.

—As a result of the investigation made by the House Committee on post offices it has been decided to report legislation carrying a cut of 10% in the amount now being paid the railroads for carrying the mails. The committee is overwhelmingly in favor of this proposition, and other recommendations will be presented tending to free the second-class mail of unprofitable matter such as fiction published in serial or supplement form. The committee also recommends that a postal or appeals commission be appointed, at least one of whom shall be acquainted with the publishing business, and a second must be a member of the legal profession.

—"A Kansas City paper of recent date gravely announced that a bank cashier had received six Siamese stamps on a letter containing a deposit from a missionary, and would give the philatelic treasures to the six philatelists who would put up the most convincing arguments why they should be given them. We can imagine Frank Bescher yearning to be one of the lucky six, and sprinting up the hill from Market Square to make a speech for a low value current Siamese."—C. H. W.

—A stamp club has been organized in Yonkers, N. Y., applicants for membership being eligible who are between twelve and sixteen years of age, and who have a good standing in grammar school studies.

—It is the intention of the post office department to issue 1c stamps in the same book form as 2c stamps are now being printed. There will be four pages, 6 stamps to each page, price 25c. The books are slated for appearance March 1.

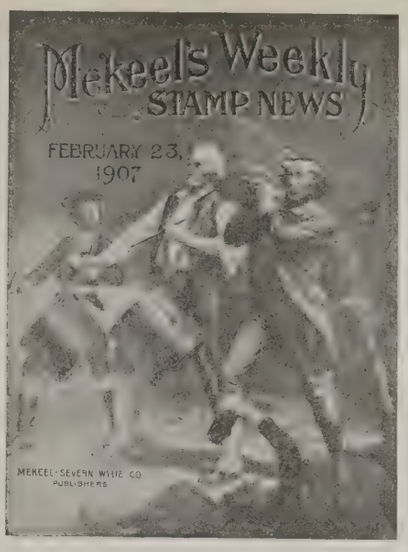
—Advertisers are requested not to send in copy containing offers listed in double column form for use in single column space. The managing editor does not object, but the printer has well grounded scruples against copy of this kind. We will be glad to accommodate any of our advertisers, however, who wish to pay for the service referred to.

—Great Britain is planning a mail line to the far east that will be an all British route from London by way of Canada. The scheme is to reach Hong Kong and Australian ports by way of Belfast, Halifax and the Canadian Pacific railway to Vancouver. The matter will be presented to parliament at an early date.

—Under date of February 1, Warren H. Colson sends out the monthly installment of his calendar. The February card before us is uniform with others issued in previous months, the illustration this month showing the rare Hopedale carrier stamp, which he offers to any interested party.

—Karl M. Sherman of Peekskill, N. Y., favors us with a copy of the local Daily Union containing an article in relation to the formation of the new United States Revenue Society. The issue for Jan. 30 describes the first permit issued in this city. It is a 1c permit.

—Advices from Washington report that a bill has been favorably reported by the house committee on post offices, providing that "ten cents' worth of postage stamps of any denomination may be used instead of a special delivery stamp, if the words 'special delivery' be written on the letter."



Special Number

We shall issue a very fine number of the WEEKLY on Saturday, Feb. 23.

One of its features will be

Washington in Philately

by

C. A. HOWES, Pres. B. P. S.

ADVERTISING COPY SHOULD BE RECEIVED BY FEB. 16

OUR PATRIOTIC SPECIAL.

We invite our readers to send in the names and addresses of all friends interested in stamps or stamp collecting. We want to send out several thousand sample copies of the issue of Feb. 23 and win new readers for the WEEKLY. We expect a hearty response and will appreciate prompt coöperation.

NAME.	ADDRESS.

Paste this heading upon a suitable length of paper.

—The prisoner who was arrested in Washington, charged with stealing stamps and other valuable items from the museum there, and was returned by the Washington authorities to Cincinnati, to stand trial for the theft of a painting from the art museum there, has been sentenced to four years in the penitentiary.

—Our thanks are extended Morris R. Ward and M. E. Connelly for back numbers of the WEEKLY sent us in keeping with our recent request. There are a few more that we need to complete our files, and a list of wants will be forwarded to any friends who wish to help us out.

—The big Holton sale has come and gone. The readers of the WEEKLY will no doubt profit by the same quite largely, as will be seen by the offers already made as a result of the sale. Two advertisers in this number, Mr. Rothfuchs and the Bartels Company, make offerings that will be read with interest. The advertisement of Mr. Rothfuchs is the natural result of the very heavy purchases made by this veteran dealer, no less than 215 out of 1118 lots being secured by him. His corner in the WEEKLY will no doubt offer some interesting items in the weeks to come.

—James C. McGuire, M. D., favors us with the clipping from the Washington Times, published elsewhere, giving the information concerning the opening of bids for the printing of stamped envelopes and wrappers.

ARE YOU IN ARREARS?

The office guillotine is being sharpened for a little special work that we have on hand, viz.: the cutting off of a goodly number of subscribers who have allowed our several notices of arrearages to pass unheeded. A word to the wise should be sufficient. Look up the whole number on your label and compare it with the whole number on our first page, making the necessary remittance if your subscription has expired. By doing this you will not fail to receive the handsome "Patriotic Special" that we intend to issue Feb. 23. This number will contain an article "Washington in Philately" by C. A. Howes, which alone will prove a feature that should not be missed.

Just received the latest issues of Austria, Bavaria, Curacao, Egypt and Hayti.

SARAWAK

A Complete History of Its Postage Stamps.
By Bertram W. H. Poole. Published by D. Field
(Fully Illustrated.)

I have recently published this volume dealing with the interesting and but little understood postal issues of Sarawak. It gives a very full description of all the minor varieties and types of the early issues, details the methods by means of which the stamps were produced, and tells all about the different styles of perforation and the various settings of the surcharges. It treats of a subject that has never been properly written up before and thus this volume is indispensable to collectors of Sarawak stamps and should also be in the possession of every active philatelist. You possibly have, quite unknowingly, some of the scarce types of Sarawak stamps and if you purchase a copy of this book you will learn how to identify them.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES.

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Any information regarding new issues will be gratefully received and acknowledged. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. The figures in parentheses refer to the previous number of the WEEKLY in which the same country was noticed

BOSNIA (831). — The pictorial set recently issued are to be found imperforate, as well as with a number of different perforations and combinations.

CURACAO (838).—Mr. Schachne reports the receipt of three cards mentioned in No. 828, the first being like the single 2½c card issued some two years ago, and the others like the last 5c but with the current stamp and arms as well as a thorough change of type for the headlines.

Post Cards.

2½x2½c green on green T. 3.
5c red on rose.
5x5c red on rose.

EGYPT (837). — Mr. Schachne has received a new pair of surcharged cards indicating another reduction in rate. The 3m cards of 1894 now have the stamp with an oblique surcharge "2 Milliemes" and the local surcharge in one line beneath, all in black.

The previous surcharges have been in capital letters with the figure of value repeated, but now only the "M" is a capital and the "2" is not repeated.

Post Cards.

2m on 3m brown on buff.
2 on 3x2 on 3 brown on buff, T. 3.

GIBRALTAR (836). — The ½d has appeared on chalky multiple paper.

HONG KONG (840).—Ewen reports the 5c and 12c on chalky multiple paper.

JAPAN (837).—Two more of the current set have appeared in changed colors. The perforation has also been changed, the ½s, 1s, 2s, 3s, 5s and 20s having appeared perforated 13 to 14.

Adhesives.

1s fawn (formerly Venetian red).
5s yellow (formerly orange).

LAGOS (837).—A correspondent informs Ewen that the ½d Lagos stamps are exhausted at Calabar, and ½d Southern Nigeria stamps are again in use.

MALDIVE ISLANDS (829). — Ewen reports that a new printing of the 5c, surcharged on Ceylon, stamps, the overprint being like the earlier printing, but the stamps appear in a darker shade of violet than formerly.

NICARAGUA (840). — Edmund de S. Brunner reports that he has seen the 1c, 2c, 3c and 4c values of the new set, surcharged '"Costa—Atlantica"—B.' The new surcharge is neatly printed in black, instead of being hand stamped like previous surcharges.

Hermann Focke sends us a cover, having in addition to the 1c green of the current set, surcharged "Vale 15c" two copies of the 5c carmine lithographed stamps of 1902, which were surcharged "Telegrafos" for telegraph purposes, and later received an additional surcharge, "Vale 10c". On all these stamps, the "c" is inverted as usual, and has the customary upright cross lines.

PHILIPPINES (834). — Basil G. Butler writes from the Islands as follows:

"I note your remarks in MEKEEL'S of November 3, 1906, about the design of the peso value of the Philippines new issue. While I am not prepared to deny that the coat of arms is that of the City of Manila, I desire to state that the entire design is intended to represent the official seal of the Philippine Islands, being a correct representation of it, except that the scroll below the shield, bearing the words 'Philippine Islands,' is cut away in the stamp for lack of space, and the words arranged above the shield with the addition, 'United States of America'."

WESTERN AUSTRALIA (833) —Champion's Bulletin gives us the color of the new 6d value in the familiar Swan type, on paper watermarked Crown W A, noted in No. 833

QUERIES AND COMMENT.

Edited by C. E. SEVERN.

Our readers are cordially invited to ask the editor for any information desired concerning stamp collecting. Should a personal reply be desired kindly enclose postage. This department is for the beginner as well as the advanced collector. Address, C. E. SEVERN, 820 Oxford Bdg., Chicago Ill.

A correspondent who has been giving attention to the early "paid" impressions on U. S. letters, and who submitted a tabulation of varieties of markings, some of which may have been thought to have provisional potentialities, asks why the Lockport, New York, provisional, for illustration, is considered such. First of all, let it be pointed out that between the passage of the postal act of 1845, which established a uniform rate of 5 and 10 cents for single letters, and the act of 1847 authorizing the governmental issue of stamps, "the postmasters in several cities, desiring to accommodate their customers and to increase the receipts of their offices, by offering facilities in competition with those of the private posts, had postage stamps prepared and sold them to the public, usually at a slight advance over face value, in order to reimburse themselves for the expense of manufacture." Mr. Luff, whom we have quoted, says further that the stamps issued by a postmaster had no validity if the letters bearing them were posted outside of his own city. While these issues were not inspired by the government, yet they were used with its tacit consent until 1847, when the regular issue intervened to discontinue their use. The Lockport provisional is a comparatively recent addition to the closely guarded list of provisionals, and its credentials were closely scanned and critically examined when it presented itself for favor; in view of the catalogue recognition extended, it is needless to say that they were found essentially sound. The provisional may be either an adhesive as in the case of the Alexandra stamp, or an envelope, as the Annapolis specimen. To meet provisional exactions, proof is required that the stamp or envelope was sold to the public, over the counter, so to say, for its convenience. When the letters franked with provisional stamps or enclosed in provisional envelopes were posted, the further markings were merely concomittants. As showing the importance of the necessity just indicated, we quote a favorable point of consideration for the Annapolis envelope as submitted by Mr. Luff, in his history of United States stamps: "The design is very deeply impressed, so much so that portions of it show distinctly on the back flaps. This would not have been the case had the envelope contained a letter and been handstamped after being deposited in the post office. The cancellation mark, on the contrary, does not show on the back. I consider these points valuable, as tending to confirm the genuine provisional nature of the envelope. From the character of the work and the deep impression, I believe the device and '5 Paid' to have been printed on a press, and not handstamped, and all at one impression." In the cases of the non-provisional "Paid" or "Due" impressions or markings, they were applied to record the payment or non-payment of postage when the letters were handed in for transmission. The covers coming under this category are not esteemed in a philatelic sense; at least, there is no disposition to attach a collecting significance to them, but, at that, it is not to be said fairly that they do not possess a curious interest to those who give attention to antiquarian objects.

In connection with the subject of the foregoing paragraph, it should be explained as accounting for the existence of "Paid," etc., envelopes, after the introduction of the general issue of stamps, 1847, that the prepayment of postage remained optional, for some time. The act of 1851, did not make the prepayment of postage mandatory, but the law reduced the fee on letters, carried under three thousand miles, to three cents, if prepaid; if they were not prepaid the old rate of five cents was collected. In a few cases, no doubt, stamps were not obtainable, and otherwise, customers still were allowed the privilege of paying in cash. It was not until [illegible] years later, that prepayment was enforced.

Entertainment Committee for 1907.

BOSTON, Jan. 15, 1907.

To the Members of the Boston Philatelic Society,

Gentlemen:—The Committee appointed at the November meeting to arrange a program of entertainments for 1907, submitted a preliminary report at the December meeting, and now begs leave to submit the following complete report for the year, trusting that it will meet with your approval and prove successful in stimulating interest in collecting and in the work of the Society.

The Committee has tried to select competitions and open exhibits which would prove interesting to a large number, and in which a great many members can take part if they wish. The single exhibits have been chosen because the Committee thought they would be of interest to many, whether collectors of the particular countries or not. It has been the endeavor not to duplicate the exhibits or competitions of the past five years.

The Committee hopes that it may not require urging and personal solicitation, to induce members to exhibit their stamps in the competitive exhibitions, and if this program is to be made a successful one, the members should show an interest by exhibiting in all the competitions possible.

Respectfully submitted,
CHARLES K. B. NEVINS,
VICTOR M. BERTHOLD,
FERNALD HUTCHINS,
Committee.

Rules for Competitions.

1. Members of the Society only will be eligible to compete, unless otherwise stated.

2. All stamps entered for Competition must be the absolute property of the exhibitors.

3. Unless otherwise stated all exhibits must be in the hands of the Committee by 2 P. M. on the day of the meeting, and the Committee will be responsible for the safety of any collection, whose owner is unable to be present.

4. Exhibits may be left with Mr. J. H. Lyons, care New England Stamp Co. or with the Chairman of the Committee.

Prizes Offered for Competitions.

Blue ribbon for first, red ribbon for second and white ribbon for third; but in every case there must be at least one more competitor than the number of ribbons awarded.

Program for 1907.

January 15.—Open exhibit "Your ten (10) finest covers" (adhesives on covers, not envelopes). A large number of the members should enter exhibits, and the desire of the Committee is for covers having some peculiar interest or beauty, or of fine condition, rather than high catalog value.

February 25.—Annual Jollification. Refreshments. Entertainment: Competition. Class A, Twenty most attractive stamps (adhesives), cataloguing not over $1.00 each. Class B, Twenty most attractive envelopes; (entire or cut square). Class C, Twenty most attractive postal cards. In the last two classes twenty different dies or designs must be shown.

March 19.—Exhibit of the best collection of "Columbian Republics" in America. Uncatalogued Variety Competition for Silver Cup. Open to all Philatelists. Varieties must not be listed in Scott, Gibbons and Senf.

April 16.—An exhibit of fine stamps.

May 21.—Competition, "Canal Zone."

June 18.—Competition, Stamps of the 20th century, not including Persia, Columbian Republic and Venezuela. Completeness, figured on a basis of the printed spaces in Scott Stamp and Coin Co.'s album only, and general condition, to count. Stamps may however be mounted in blank albums.

NOTE.—Collections entered for competition must be left with Mr. Lyons or with the Chairman of the Committee not later than Saturday noon, June 15.

September 17.—An exhibit of fine stamps.

October 15.—An exhibit of fine stamps.

November 19.—Competition, Uruguay and Brazil.

December 17.—Competition, Cape of Good Hope. Uncatalogued Varieties Exhibit, same as in March.

NEW APPLICATIONS.

As soon as your name has been published as an applicant you will probably have unsolicited selections of stamps sent you on approval. As a great many collectors object to this practice the Association desires to break the practice up. Please aid us and help protect yourself and others against further imposition, by holding such selections without purchasing any, until sufficient funds have been sent by the dealer to return it to him by registered mail. Also please report the names of such dealers to the Secretary of the Association.

MEMBERSHIP SUMMARY.

Total membership Feb. 2nd, 1907,	880
New stockholders,	2
Total membership Feb. 9th,	882

The membership roll is now on a paid up basis for the present year showing 882 members in all. This with the 45 applicants pending will bring the membership up to 927. This leaves but 73 to be obtained to reach our objective point of 1000; at the present rate that applications are coming in this should be accomplished about the last of May. Let us see how much we can anticipate this date.

EXCH. SUPT.'S SEMI-ANNUAL REPORT.

I have started 11 circuits, valued at $187.53. Sales $63 20 or about 33⅓%. I will state here that I have no doubt sales would have been larger if the members would retain circuits only 3 days. The keeping of circuits longer than 3 days must be discontinued. I must also impress upon the minds of those who receive circuits to see that spaces from which stamps have been removed show the signature of the member who had possession of circuit previously, as I hold members failing to do that responsible.

New circuits will be started Feb. 15th. Any member who has duplicates will do well to place them on circuit. Blank sheets for books can be had at 6c per dozen.

FRED G. FUESSEL, Exch. Supt.

REPORT OF SECRETARY-TREASURER.

ATTLEBORO, MASS., Feb. 1, 1907.

Fellow Members:—I take this opportunity to make an appeal to you. The life of the association hangs in the balance, it is either to live or die. At this time there is not money enough in the treasury to pay for the official organ for the coming six months (the same being due on March 1st, 1907) whereas if the members who are in arrears would only pay their dues, there would be enough and to spare. Those of you who have not paid up must bear in mind that you have received the "O. O." for the past six months regularly but you have not paid a cent for it, and those members who have paid their dues have got to suffer on account of those who have not. Now it's up to the following members who are in arrears to decide whether or not we shall sink or swim (Dues must be paid before Mar. 1st to be of any use.) 2, 4, 5, 12, 23, 25, 26, 35, 38, 39, 40, 43, 45, 46, 50, 53, 56. Look this list over carefully and if it contains your number remit fifty cents by return mail.

ARGUSVILLE, N. D., Jan. 31, 1907.

THE PURCHASING DEPARTMENT.

Distribution No. 5 was sent out on Jan. 28th and consisted of the following new issues: Austria 4, Bavaria 3, Curacao 3, Egypt 2 and Hayti 5. Members not participating in this Department stand in their own light. They are missing chances which will never return again. I am now able to cite examples which prove conclusively that for some of the Bavarian Provisionals, which the participants now hold for a few pennies, as much as 50 marks is offered in Munich—but even at that figure there is no supply.

With the new rule in operation—permitting the participants to return any card not to their liking—what risk is there attached in joining the Department? These words are intended primarily for the benefit of our new members. They are superfluous as far as the older members whose collections are noteworthy, are concerned. I allude to men like our Treasurer, or Mr. Carpenter, who have participated in the Department since its resuscitation.

S. SCHACHNE.

F. R. CORNWALL, Pres.; J. H. HUMES, Vice Pres.; WALLACE DELAFIELD, JR., Treas.; [illegible]ec.; S. B. HOPKINS, Exch. [illegible]rning Board: above named [illegible]IGSON, F. MILLHOUSE and

The forty-ninth regular meeting of this Society was held Tuesday, Jan. 22d, 1907, at usual time and place, President Cornwall presiding, ten members present. The resignation of Dr. Paul Baer as Treasurer was received and accepted with regrets. Wallace Delafield, Jr., was elected to this office. The largest list of quadricolored stamps submitted contained twelve items, a complete list containing twenty. In place of rewarding winner only, Mr. Hopkins generously presented each member in attendance with one of the four colored specimens. Prize contests were announced for next meeting and following one. Particulars will be announced on postal notifications.

PHILIPPINES ON U. S.

The total number of U. S. stamps surcharged "Philippines" for regular use, not including the sets supplied as specimens for the Universal Postal Union, is as follows:

	1899-1901.	1903.
1c	5,500,000	11,500,000
2c	11,463,000	1,000,000 I 2,490,000 II
3c	700,000	15,000
4c	500,000	3,000 yel. br. 10 000 dk. br.
5c	1,700,000	1,350,000
6c	250,000	12,000
8c	250,000	52,000
10c	700,000	452,000
13c		100,000
15c	200,000	200,000
50c	50,000	100,000
$1	3,000	7,000
$2	2,000	3,000
$5	1,100	1,300
10c Sp. Del.,	150,000

These figures give an excellent idea of the relative scarcity of all denominations. The supplies of the 1903 series in the hands of the dealers is very small and prices are advancing accordingly. The local rate for single letters is 1c, which accounts for the large number of this denomination of the second issue. The four cent 1903 promises to be the scarcest of the low values. Even the dark shade, of which there were 10,000, is already decidedly scarce.

—See the Literary Digest of Dec. 15, page 894, for a discussion of the postal deficit. It is well that the matter is being discussed, and every citizen of the U. S. should inform himself about it.

NOTES ON UNITED STATES STAMPS.

By H. A. Davis.

A Series of Papers Read Before the Denver Stamp Club.

No. 1, The One Cent Stamp.

The formation of a complete collection of United States stamps is by no means an easy task, both on account of rarity and an intelligent understanding of the various issues. The reason ordinarily given for not collecting the stamps of our own country, is, that they are too expensive and that perfect specimens are difficult to obtain at any price.

Knowing that very few of our members collect U. S. stamps, it occurred to me that it might be worth while to ascertain the real reason, for I was quite sure that the reason just named did not apply, especially to the gentlemen whom I decided to interview on this subject.

The first three whom I asked replied that, "the different issues were too hard to understand and distinguish one from the other."

Hence my excuse for this series of papers. If I shall shed any light on this subject that will benefit at least one-tenth of our members and lead them to take up the study and collection of United States stamps, I shall feel amply repaid. I trust that those who are familiar with the subject will bear with me in patience.

To arrive at a proper understanding of the differences between the several issues, something more than a mere description of the stamps is necessary, for books have been published and papers have been written on this subject time and time again; but the same old lingo has been carried through by one author and another—a mere description of the design.

I propose therefore, for the benefit of those who find it hard to distinguish the different issues to compare them, not only the single stamps, but in groups. This is necessary inasmuch as some stamps are recognized by the design, others by the paper, color, perforation, gum, etc.

We will take up this study, not by issue, but by value, accordingly let me call your attention first to the 1c value.

As this is to be a comparison, we have three stamps to claim our attention first. This group is composed of the issue of 1851, 1857 and 1861. The first 1c stamp issued is that known as the 1851, this is distinguished from the 1857 only in that it is imperforate. We must therefore distinguish these two from the next issue, that of 1861. The 1851 and 57 1c blue, various shades. Bust of Benjamin Franklin to the right. For the purpose of comparison we will call this large head Franklin. The flowing hair covers Franklin's ear, and the 1857 issue is perforated 15. No numerals appear on the stamp. 1861 1c blue, various shades. Bust of Benjamin Franklin to the right. Small head, the hair is pushed back showing the ear plainly visible, perforated 12, the numeral 1 in each upper corner and the letters U and S in the lower corners. There are three types of the 1851-57, but they are plainly described in the Standard Catalog, so it is unnecessary to name them here. Perhaps the following notes will not be out of place here. The 1851-57 portrait of Benjamin Franklin after Rubricht, first issued imperforate July 1st, 1851, first issued perforated Feb. 24th, 1857. Unfortunately no record can be found of the number of these stamps issued. 1861 portrait of Benjamin Franklin after Carrachi, first issued Aug. 14th, 1861, number issued including both August and September issue 91,256,650. The September issue is distinguished from the August issue by the addition of a small dash in the outer oval frame lines just underneath the scroll work at the right of the numeral in the upper left corner. The 1857 was reprinted, but the perforation was 12 instead of 15, and on very white paper and the color more of an ultramarine cast. The 1861 was also reprinted in 1875 on white paper and brighter color of blue nearing the ultramarine shade.

The next issue was in 1867 and consists of two varieties. They are to be compared with the1861 issue, and in very few words. They are of the same design, color, perforation, etc., but on the back of the stamp may be found a series of grills or embossing; the first one measures 11x13mm, the second measures 9x13.

The next issue is that of 1869, very easily distinguished and almost unnecessary to describe. This is of small size and of square form measuring about 22½mm each way. It is of buff or brown orange color, has the same portrait of Franklin by the same artist, but portrait faces to the left instead of the right. It also has a grill measuring about 9½x9½. This stamp was issued about the end of April, 1869, and there were 24,988,100 of them issued, coated with brown gum. We have two more stamps of this same design, first a reprint or reissue as it is commonly called, on hard white paper but without the grill or embossing, with white or colorless gum, but often found unused without gum. This was printed in 1875. Again in 1880 it was reprinted, also without embossing or grill, but on soft porous paper, with colorless gum.

Here we must differentiate between creamy hard, white hard and soft porous papers. The creamy hard paper with grill regular issue will be easily distinguished from the white hard paper without grill of the re-issue. It is necessary then to recognize the soft porous paper of the 1880 reprint or re-issue. On holding soft paper to the light, small light patches or spots may be readily seen which is absent in the hard paper. Also small shreds may be seen on the edges of the perforations, the paper feels soft to the touch, is usually a little thicker, the paper bends at a shorter angle and has not the snap and firmness of the hard paper. Soft paper usually has a creamy tone instead of white; however this is not always the case.

We now come to the next group which includes five stamps all of the same general design except some minor points. These are the issues of 1870, 1871, 1873, 1878 and 1882.

This group has the bust of Franklin by Rubricht, head to left, with numeral 1 at bottom centre of stamp. The 1870 is on hard white paper, color ultramarine and with grill 8½ to 9x10½ to 11½mm. The 1871 is the same without the grill. The 1873 has a small dash in the first ball to the left of the numeral 1. The 1879 is the same except it is on soft paper. The 1882 is a re-engraving of this stamp and may be recognized by the following points: The upper part of the background outside the oval is almost solid, while in the other issues of this group fine lines may be plainly seen. The ornaments at the top are worn and blotchy, they have not the clear fine outlines of the other issues. The stamp as a whole, has a dull faded appearance and does not possess the bright, clear fresh appearance of the others. The latter then may be distinguished from the 1879 from the description just given; they are both on soft paper. The 1873 is told from the 1871, which are both on hard paper, by the small dash in the first ball to the left of the numeral. The 1871 from the 1870, both on hard paper, but the 1870 is grilled, the 1870 was first issued May, 1870, there were 95,127,100 issued, they were printed by the National Bank Note Co.

The 1871 was also printed by the National Bank Note Co., the 1873 by the Continental Bank Note Co., the 1879 by the American Bank Note Co., as was also the 1882. Of the National without grill or 1871, the Continental or 1873, the American of 1879 and 1882, there were issued 1,748,378,900.

We next come to the issue of 1887. This is distinguished by the words, United States Postage in semi-oval above the portrait of Franklin by Caracci, this is also on soft paper, printed by American Bank Note Co., issued June 15th, 1887. No information is at hand as to the number issued.

We will compare the next issue, that of 1890 with 1887. The stamp is smaller, it has the numeral "1" in each lower corner while the 1887 has the single numeral in the lower center.

From 1890 to the present issue there is hardly a school boy collector who cannot at once recognize the different issues. We will enumerate them however in order to make the list complete, but in the table only. Following is a recapitulation for ready reference.

U. S. ENVELOPE MINOR VARIETIES.

The Standard Catalog Takes a Backward Step in the 1907 Edition.

By E. P. BUVINGER.

I am greatly disappointed in some parts of the 1907 Standard Catalogue. I had hoped its U. S. Envelope department would be more complete than ever before, and lo! it has shrunken to the limits of the veriest tyro collector. Reading it you would conclude there was but one die each of the early issues. Last year's excellent innovation of illustrated heads has disappeared. Most of the Nesbit varieties are entirely ignored. Why is this? If the 1874 issue can be so minutely catalogued, even to a hair-line variation, why are the worthy rank and file of 1853 to '65 made to take a back seat in the border land of oblivion?

Then where, O where, are the new discovered "Big Heads," die C, of 1887? Echo answers, "nowhere!" Number 1518, 2c red on white has been ousted by its ambitious "under-study" variety A, and other old friends have "gone by the board." This pruning process, in my opinion, is detrimental to the best interests of every collector, general or special, and injures most the very ones it claims to benefit.

Every one likes to know when he makes "a good find," but how is he to recognize a rarity when he does see it, if there is no guide? Take for instance No. 1329. That little 1c blue with no period, catalogued in 1906 as 2 varieties, priced respectively $15.00 and $6.50—quite a difference in value, nevertheless we are now to know but one variety, arbitrarily priced $6.50. Who can now tell whether he has die 5, or the commoner, die 6?

Permit me another sample proof: See No. 1349c, 2c black, Jackson, Die C, var. 5, amber paper. In 1906 this was rated at $10 00. This is now dropped from sight, and if I find in my grandfather's chest half a dozen Die C, var. 5, amber, I am no wiser, but will trade them off, or sell for a few pennies that which is may be worth dollars.

Surely our own country cannot receive too much attention at the hands of collectors, and the catalogue should be a faithful guide book, pointing out every thing of interest, and not a handicap or a veil of obscurity to hide things every true philatelist should know.

"What is really wanted is a classified catalogue distinguishing plainly the principal from the minor varieties, but at the same time including the latter, so that the collector who has advanced beyond the beginner stage may know what to look for, and what varieties are best worth preserving."

These sapient words of Maj. E. B. Evans appeal to the heart of every thoughtful collector. They may be found more at length on page 23 of MEKEEL'S WEEKLY, Jan'y 12, 1907, and are fitly supplemented by the pointed and pithy editorial item in same number entitled "Old Questions Revived" 'Tis the voice of wisdom, and knowledge, and experience. Let us heed it!

By the way, the Envelope Number of the NEWS is fine! One of the best we have ever had, and yet there is plenty material for another just as good to help push on the good work in the near future. Pardon this intrusion upon your space to ventilate the claims of at least the American minor variety, and the views of one humble but ardent philatelist.

CANADIAN STOCK TRANSFER STAMP.

Stock brokers have been favored with a little extra attention from the Quebec government, and they now indulge in the luxury of putting special stamps on all stock transfers. When the government first introduced the stock transfer tax everything was done with a rush, and ordinary law stamps were used to decorate the transfers.

A rather neat special stamp has been made, and it not only comes in eight different denominations, but eight different colors as well. The cheapest stamp is a black 2-center. A pink 10 cent work of art is next, and then comes 20 cents, 50 cents, $1.00, $2.00, $10.00 and $30.00.

The sale of stamps is constantly increasing, and it is interesting in this connection to note the fact that the bucket shops are helping nobly to enrich the provincial treasury. Of course, the government does not call them bucket shops. The government is altogether too wise for that. The government taxes the buckets, practically legalizes them, and calls them brokers. All of which pleases the government, and also pleases the buckets, which makes it unanimous.

The bucket shops frequently contribute more to the treasury than the entire Montreal Stock Exchange. When things are going well, and people are in a speculative mood it is not unusual for a single Montreal bucket shop to trade in 1,500 to 2,000 shares a day.

It is estimated that some of the biggest of the buckets will each contribute from $6,000 to $7,000 a year to the government on stamp purchases, not to speak of the $2,000 tax on outside brokers doing business in this province. It is a pretty fair indication of the flourishing condition of the bucket shop industry in Montreal, when the proprietor can stand an annual tax of $9,000 and still, as the saying is, wear diamonds.—Montreal Star.

—Recently, we have had some discussion in our columns regarding large variety packets, which called attention to the fact that American and English firms occasionally offered packets of 10,000 varieties. In this connection, it has been called to our notice that the Scott Stamp and Coin Company, New York, made up last May, to order, a packet of 11,400 varieties; this packet was not imported but was made up from the firm's own stock.

—Th. Lemaire in his Journal des Philatelistes gives the issues of U. S. commemorative stamps emitted as follows: Columbus 2,014,000; Buffalo 324,065; Omaha 251,530; St. Louis 287,992.

EDITORIAL.

Surprise—It has been the subject for some comment that the imperforate two-cent United States, current issue, should have made its appearance unheralded and unannounced in any way. The WEEKLY has influential news connections in Washington and elsewhere, and under almost any conditions would receive intimation of the adoption of a new postal plan; yet in this instance, no information was received before the fact. That the two-cent imperforate took the public, collectors and dealers unawares, is known, and while the explanations given for the creation of the varieties may be accepted formally, yet there are various aspects of the transaction that are not clearly understood. In support of this contention, we submit the statement of a reliable collector to the effect that he applied casually at the retail window of a large postoffice for the imperforate stamp, as he had only the remotest idea that his request would be granted. He was referred by the clerk to the wholesale stamp section, and making application there for the two-cent in imperforate condition, the clerk, in a matter-of-fact way produced a sheet, four hundred stamps, from a lot, and brushing the dust from the sheets, he said that it was a long time since he sold any of the imperforates. Among the sheets, the collector was surprised to see the one-cent current stamp in imperforate condition; and a sheet of both the one and two-cent stamps was willingly sold him.

Two Varieties—From various sections of the country, readers are asking us about both the one and the two-cent imperforates; there certainly is a wide distribution, finally, of the stamps. In the case of Chicago, the city referred to, in the foregoing item, the imperforate stamps must have been in stock for some time, judging from visible indications. The imperforates were sold at the Chicago office to the public, upon request, only after the clerk had consulted the cashier, who, in turn, conferred with the postmaster, although at least a few sheets had been sold previously without this precautionary step having been taken. The information was given that Chicago was the only postoffice that received a supply of the imperforates and that they were designed for a special purpose. It was said that the sheets sold elsewhere came originally from Chicago. Just how reliable these advices are remains to be seen. There is a lack of finality in regard to details concerning the imperforates, such as, the number of sheets imperforate, the distribution of them, etc., but the one-cent and the two-cent imperforate are decidedly with us; they were sold to the public over the postoffice counter, with a full recognition of their peculiarity by the representative of the government.

So It Grows—The Yarmouth Telegram, Nova Scotia, has reprinted on its front page, our editorial, "Helping Philately," that appeared in a recent issue, in which commendatory words were spoken of the action of one of our readers, Albert Durkee of Chicago, who, to correct a distorted idea of philately, as reflected in a paragraph that appeared in Marion Harland's column in the Chicago News, sent a well-conceived dissertation on the useful and the æsthetic phases of philately. We find that the Yarmouth paper published the item from the WEEKLY because Mr. Durkee is a native of Yarmouth. We refer to this instance of progression of publicity to show how the specific act of missionary work may become by successive steps a vehicle of great and widespread benefit to philately. The individual may work independently in proclaiming the gospel of philately; in fact, if one does not further by contribution or co-operation, the work of the National Stamp Committee, it becomes something in the way of an obligation that he carry a share of the work by action of some kind.

Philately in the Plot—Chas. H. Whitaker, Clinton, Mo., publisher of the Clinton Evening Democrat, writes: "In Chapter X of the 'Castle of Lies,' by Arthur Henry Vesey, under caption of 'The Death Mask,' the Servian death mask stamp is dramatically brought into the story. This story is syndicated and may create a greatly added call for the stamp, which, it predicts will be rarely valuable."

Light Furnished—In the WEEKLY dated February 2nd, we referred to the provisional stamp of Chile, numbered 49 in the catalogue, in an indefinite way, in an attempt to supply the information desired by a correspondent. For the little data given, we were indebted to an article by C. A. Howes, written early in 1905; and now Mr. Howes furnishes for the benefit of our correspondent in particular and our readers in general, the following fuller and newer information. It is satisfactory to know conclusively about an issue some of the details of which have not been clearly in mind. Mr. Howes writes:

"In the current WEEKLY I see that R. H. S. inquires whether Chile, No. 49, 3c on 5c telegraph stamp, is an error. Also how many were printed and how many got into circulation. As you quote me in reply, from the 'Chile Special,' I will endeavor to answer his queries. As far as has been reported, one sheet of 100 stamps was printed thus in 'error.' The stamp is exactly the same as the 5c stamp surcharged 12c, which is of Waterlow and Sons, London, manufacture, perforated 14 with small irregular holes. The number that got into postal circulation was probably naught; the number in philatelic circulation, at a price, is problematical.

"Further information at hand since the 'Chile Special' develops the following facts: The first Chilean telegraph stamps were the large ones with the national arms, issued in 1883, and made by the American Bank Note Co. In 1894 Messrs Bradbury, Wilkinson and Co. of London, supplied Chile with the following set, in the same design but reduced in size:

1894. Arms. Small size. Perf. 14.
2c brown
5c red
10c yellow green
20c blue
1p dark brown

"In these stamps the huemul, the left hand (dexter) supporter of the shield, is supplied with a mane and a fine tail.

"When Waterlow and Sons of London, supplied the postage stamps in 1900, an order for telegraph stamps was also included. These were of the small size, but bore the portrait of Pedro de Valdivia, the Spanish Conqueror of Chile. They have the irregular small hole perforation of this firm.

1900. Valdivia. Perf. 14.
5c red
10c green
20c gray blue

"Again in 1901, when the American Bank Note Co. became the successful bidders for stamp supplies, telegraph stamps were not forgotten. The Company reverted to the arms type that they had originally furnished, but adopted the small size of the Bradbury, Wilkinson (1894) issue. This time, however, they represented the huemul, which belongs to the deer tribe, minus mane and tail—or with but a suggestion of the latter. This distinction readily separates this issue from that of 1894, though an added point is the large hole perforation, gauge 12. The 20c alone was engraved in the Valdivia design, and though differing in some minor details from its earlier prototype, it is most readily distinguished by its dark blue color and its 12 perforation of large holes.

1902. Arms. Perf. 12.
2c brown
5c red
10c olive green
20c deep blue (Valdivia)

"Telegraph stamps were abolished by a decree dated Oct. 10, 1903, so that a large quantity of the 1902 issue was left on hand. When, therefore, it became necessary to issue provisionals to supply low value postage stamps in 1904, these telegraph remainders came in very handy. All four of the 1902 American Bank Note Co.'s stamps were used, the 5c Valdivia of 1900 (Waterlow) and the 1p of 1894 (Bradbury, Wilkinson).

"Now the so-called 'errors', i. e., the 2c, 5c and 10c arms type with tail (1894), I am credibly informed, were never issued, but a few sheets at the most were surreptitiously passed through the presses by interested parties when the others were being printed, and were retained for private sale at high figures. This deprives them of any philatelic value. The 'error' of 3c instead of 12c on the 5c Valdivia stamp is apparently in the same class, and is therefore rightfully ignored in Gibbons' Catalogue; but the others should be as well.

"The remarks in Scott's Catalogue concerning the differences in the portrait design are somewhat confusing, for the reason that the red stamp comes only in one type, while the blue comes surcharged only in the second. The latter is the only stamp existing in both types, but the gray blue variety belonging with the red stamp (1900) I have never heard of as having been 'privately surcharged', so that the fact of type differences need not bother us. I have gone into this matter somewhat in detail as the subject of this issue seems never to have been wholly cleaned up, and has never been adequately written up at any rate."

PHILIPPINES ON U. S.

We advertised them last week on page 54. The prices are still good with one exception, namely 4c brown 1903. The yellow brown 4c at 75c will be raised very soon, 30 sheets only were surcharged. One dealer wrote they were worth $5 each. They are said to sell at $2 to $3 each in Manila. We predict material advances in the 1903 issue. Send your orders early. We have several shades in some cases and at least one block of 4 of every stamp advertised unused. Can now supply

TWO MAMMOTH PURCHASES.

THE DANE COMPANY offer for sale the magnificent collection of the late Nathan P. Strause containing over ten thousand varieties and valued at over thirty thousand dollars.

Among other things the collection contains the following:

Only known copies of the Emory, Va., Confederate locals, considered the rarest stamps of this class.

A superb pair of Spartanburg on cover.

A reconstructed sheet of Petersburg on original covers.

A magnificent lot of Athens, Baton Rouge, Charlestown, Columbia, Knoxville, Lynchburg, Memphis, Mobile, Nashville, New Orleans, Raleigh and Salem locals and regular issues of Confederate States.

A number of very interesting and rare original covers both United States and foreign.

United States general issues and departments nearly complete.

A superb lot of United States Envelopes both used and unused.

A very interesting and valuable collection of Indian Native States.

A fine line of British and Portuguese Colonies.

The collection was made prior to 1901 and contains many low priced stamps that are very seldom met with.

Another magnificent collection, rich in early Europeans, German States and British Colonials just bought:

MILWAUKEE, WIS., Jan. 31st, 1907.

I have this day sold my collection of stamps and duplicates, valued at ten thousand dollars for spot cash to The Dane Company.

ROBERT SCHADE.

If you wish to see a certain country or stamps let us know and we will endeavor to satisfy you both as to price and condition. This collection is rich in stamps the "other fellow" does not offer—so is our stock. We have the goods, and our terms of sale are most liberal.

These two important additions to our large stock enable us to supply items seldom found in stock and we solicit inquiries.

Notwithstanding we are doing business from a small place our stock is one of the largest in America.

The Dane Company, Mazomanie, Wis.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centres. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—Geo. H. Worthington of Cleveland, Ohio, has recently added to his collection a 10c Baltimore adhesive on the entire envelope. It is a beautiful specimen and without doubt the finest copy in existence. Including this specimen there are only four known. It may be of interest to our readers to know that Mr. Worthington also has the only pair of the 5c that is known to exist. We hope some day to give our readers an extended insight into the superb collection that Mr. Worthington has amassed.

—We have received a pictorial post card from L. Harald Kjellstedt showing the handsome quarters of the Swedish Philatelic Society.

—L. J. Packard kindly sends us a copy of the Pasadena Daily News in which appears, through the enterprise of Mr. Packard, the Burroughs' article on the Royal Philatelic Society.

—"In your issue of Jan. 12, I notice that Mr. Siddall states that he has never seen any Philippine stamps of the 1898-9 issue with values higher than the 40c in postally used condition. Now I have in my collection the set with the exception of the 4m and the 4c all postally used. I obtained them in Manila in 1903. Speaking with an old Spaniard, an employee in the Manila Post Office, he informed me that he had never seen the two values referred to, and did not think they were ever put into use."—FRANCIS ROTCH, JR.

—Receipt of clippings is acknowledged with thanks from Lieut. F. R. Lang, National Stamp Co., August H. Hoffmann, Morris R. Ward, D. J. Cadotte, John A. Solomon (4), W. W. Jewett, Ben. M. Carpenter, H. S. Adair and H. S. Linneman.

—The WEEKLY has been favored with calls during the past week from John Zug of Alaska and Wm. C. Polk of Arnold Mills, R. I. Mr. Zug, while in Boston, disposed of a large part of his stock of envelopes. He will immediately return to Alaska where he expects to be employed for some time. Mr. Polk is in Massachusetts in connection with gypsy moth commission work, and at present is located in Saugus.

—"The closing chapter on the Bavarian provisionals shows that, including the cards with the 3pf stamp affixed, 79 varieties are known to exist. Of some varieties only 2 copies are in evidence. Broadly speaking, the cards dated '01 to 03' are the rarest. I consider the '03' 3x2x3x2, with both impressed stamps, arms and watermark, to be the top notch of rarity. I know for a fact that this card is as rare as the Ceylon card, Scott's No. 603. All Reply Cards for printed matter were supposed to be separated by the government officials. A few, a very few, cards slipped through without the separation, and the collector possessing a 3 on 2 Reply Card has every reason to congratulate himself on the acquisition."—S. SCHACHNE.

—C. S. Smack favors us with the Kansas City Journal of Sunday, Oct. 28, containing an article "Rare Carrier Stamps," a New York Sun reprint that is having a wide reading.

—The WEEKLY has been favored with the Yarmouth, N. S., Telegram containing the WEEKLY editorial "Helping Philately." The Telegram comments very happily upon the collecting proclivities of Mr. Durkee, who is a native of Yarmouth, but has now been a resident of Chicago for a quarter of a century.

—Wm. L. Hamilton, Jr., one of our most faithful correspondents in keeping us supplied with stamp clippings, sends us from a New York Sun of recent date the N. S. C. article on the Royal Philatelic Society.

—The catalog of Drew's 178th sale lists three properties: A selection of covers from the collection of Edw. de Z. Kelley of Boston, the United States collection of Geo. N. Thomas, of Trenton, N. J., and the general collection of P. C. Spring, of Braintree, Mass. The sale will be held Friday evening, March 1.

—J. M. Bartels attended the Thorne auction sale in New York City this week.

NOTICE TO ADVERTISERS.

Advertisers are requested not to send in copy containing offers listed in double column form for use in single column space. The managing editor does not object, but the printer has well grounded scruples against copy of this kind. A CORRECTION.

We regret very much that a mistake occurred in the advertisement of the J. M. Bartels Co. on page 59 of last week's issue. Advertising the U. S. Envelopes numbers 1524 and 1529 that catalog $6.00 each. Mr. Bartels made the prices on these envelopes 25c each. In some manner the price of the 4c green on blue was quoted 35c and though the force of this price was somewhat nullified by the preceding paragraph yet many might possibly note the price who failed to read the explanatory matter. We therefore desire to give publicity, as wide as possible, to this error.

Only those who are at all acquainted with the details of newspaper work and particularly the publication of a stamp paper will understand the difficulty of not making any mistakes when so many prices and numbers are from week to week quoted as are necessary in the case of the WEEKLY.

STRAUSE COLLECTION SOLD.

The Madison, Wis., Democrat, for Feb. 6, contains the particulars of the sale of the large and valuable stamp collection belonging to the late Nathan P. Strause of Madison. The Dane Co. of Mazomanie, Wis., has become the fortunate possessors. We quote from the Democrat as follows:

"In the Strause collection are two stamps that are said to be worth $5000 00. They are rare Confederate provisionals, and are the only ones of the kind in existence. For nearly 25 years Mr. Strause devoted considerable time to the accumulation of this valuable collection, which embraces 10,000 varieties. The stamps were kept, many of them, in special books, being pasted on leaves of card board. Others found a resting place in trunks made especially for the purpose, while the more valuable and rare ones were kept in a bank vault from whose dark recesses the money of the Dane Co. persuaded them to emerge."

In addition to this superb collection of Confederate locals, U. S. and foreign, rare covers, U. S. and foreign, general issues, U. S. envelopes, India Native States, etc., etc., our readers will be interested in learning that the Dane Co. has also acquired the collection of Robt. Schade of Milwaukee, Wis., concerning which announcement is also made. This collection with duplicates were valued at close to $10,000 00. German States and early colonials are especially strong, all being of the 19th century.

We should judge that "something doing" might well be the watch-word of the Dane Co. during the coming months. Attention is called to advertisement of this firm elsewhere in this issue of the WEEKLY.

TRADE COLUMN.

Rate — 15c per line, cash in advance. Exchange, want and for sale notices and business announcements inserted without display. Eight words to the line.

SPECIAL OFFER.—50 lines for $6, where cash is paid in advance. This space can be used at such times and in such quantities as may be desired.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES.

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Any information regarding new issues will be gratefully received and acknowledged. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. The figures in parentheses refer to the previous number of the WEEKLY in which the same country was noticed

UNITED STATES. — Stanley Gibbons, Inc., have shown us an unused pair of the current 1c stamp, imperforate all round. We are not informed whether they are due to the same cause as the 2c imperforates recently noted. Specimens of this stamp have also been shown us by H. Speakman and Prof. Loewy.

John A. Solomon reports the following new varieties of precancels:

Prov., R. I., 1c 1902, purple ink, double print, normal, and diagonally up.
Bellows Falls, Vermont, 3c 1905, up.

AUSTRIA.—The Wiener Mittags-Zeitung states that the postal tariff has been altered and consequently there are to be certain changes in the stamps and stationery. The 10h letter card will have the inscription, "Erzeugungskosten 1 heller," in small letters at left side, and will only do the work formerly done by the 6h letter card, which will be withdrawn. As the postage for city letters will be raised from 6h to 10h, there will be little use for the former value, and it will probably be withdrawn. The new pneumatic post cards have 25h blue stamps; the pneumatic letter cards, 35h red brown stamps, and the envelopes, 45h red brown stamps. Size and form are unchanged. The new telegram forms are printed in dark green, with bright green margins.

BARBADOS.—Joseph A. Steinmetz has favored us with a specimen of the 2p slate and orange, Britannia type with a surcharge in red in four lines reading Kingston—Relief—Fund—1d. No particulars are at hand though the indications would tend to show that one or more of the current set had been thus overprinted in order to secure funds to relieve the sufferers of the Kingston earthquake. It is probable that the stamps are sold at the increased value, the difference being used as suggested, though definite information is not at hand. We shall be glad for any official decree or other information bearing on this issue.

BAVARIA.—Mr. Schachne advises us of the arrival of the usual government recognition of the annual meeting of the German Society, held this year in Nurnberg, Aug. 31–Sept. 2. This time it appears in three varieties but just why so many, we are not informed. The card is of ordinary size and soft white paper, the front having besides the stamp, only the ordinary headlines in plain black type. The back is two-thirds covered with a very creditable and well executed design, the center being a view of the city, the left end includes 3 stamps, arms, foliage, &c., and at upper right, in red print is the announcement: "18 Deutscher Philat." &c., &c.

BRAZIL.—Stanley Gibbons, Inc. have received the 5000r of the new issue. It is printed in carmine with head of Liberty as found on the 1000r and 2000r.

Adhesive.

5000r carmine.

CANADA — Dr. H. Ross Matthews informs us he has seen the new precancelled type with Montreal above the double lines, and the whole inverted.

Charles Dewick informs us that the Quebec Government has issued a set of stamps for the stock transfer tax. After the adoption of the new law, ordinary law stamps were used for a time, but now a special set has been printed, the denominations being 2c, 10c, 20c, 50c, $1, $2, $10 and $30. The 2c is in black, and the 10c in pink, but we are unable to give the others.

The stamps are a large upright rectangle, with the arms of the Province in a circle in the upper half of the stamp, with "Quebec" in a straight line at the top, and "Transfers" in a curved line below. The value is printed at the bottom, the figures of value above the word "cents."

CUBA.—Frank P. Azpeitia sends us a translation of an official letter from J. Charles Hernandez, Director General of Posts, to El Mundo, the Havana morning newspaper:

"I have the honor to inform you that a new stamp of fifty cents value will be put in circulation on the first of February proximo.

"This new stamp is engraved in two colors—gray and black,—with the bust of Major General Antonio Maceo in the center.

"I will thank you to make this public through the columns of your paper, considering the news of public interest, as the stamp will certainly be very handy for postage as well as for telegraphic purposes."

JAPAN. — China. — The North Shore Stamp Co. has shown us the new 3s stamp, surcharged for use in China.

Adhesive.

3s carmine, black surcharge.

MALDIVES.—A correspondent of Ewen's says the Governor of Ceylon has given orders to the Treasury not to issue any more overprinted stamps, "as such stamps appear to be bought up in no time by philatelists, creating thereby a constant demand for more supplies at the Maldives Post Offices."

MALTA.—The 1d King's Head stamp has been printed all in red on ordinary multiple paper, according to Ewen's Weekly, but has not yet been issued except with overprint "Revenue" for fiscal purposes.

MOROCCO AGENCIES.—The 3pi and 6pi stamps overprinted on the 2sh 6d and 5sh stamps of Great Britain, as noted in No. 840, are reported by Ewen to have been quickly sold out at Tangiers, and that a further supply has been ordered from London.

Ewen also gives the following as having been issued, probably a part of a complete set of stationery:

Registration Envelope.

30 centimos in black on 3d brown.

NEW ZEALAND.—Ewen reports that a recent consignment of stamps from New Zealand show that the new paper for the large stamps has the watermarks ¾ inch apart, instead of ⅜ inch, thus bringing one watermark on each stamp. The 5d stamp being upright has the watermark sideways, the large oblong stamps having the watermark normal.

The paper with watermarks near together fits the ½d, 1d and 2d stamps very well, but the 3d, 6d and 1sh stamps, being larger, are watermarked very unevenly, and occasionally some of the stamps entirely escape the watermark. The three higher values mentioned above, have the watermark sideways.

The new commemorative stamps are printed on the paper, with watermarks ⅜ inch apart, and as the watermark appears sideways, each stamp has two or more watermarks. The ½d commemorative stamp has been seen in both blue green and emerald green.

The 2d due stamp has appeared in a new design on paper watermarked N Z star, ⅜ inch apart, the watermark appearing sideways on the stamps. The perforation is 14.

Postage Due Adhesive.

2d green and red.

The current ½d stamp has been overprinted "O. P. S. O." in rose reading up, for official purposes.

NORTHERN NIGERIA. — Ewen reports the issue of the first value on chalky multiple paper.

ORANGE RIVER COLONY.—The London Philatelist reports that the 5sh stamp will probably be discontinued, and that it may not therefore be issued with multiple watermark.

PARAGUAY.—The Monthly Journal reports a change of color in two of the current adhesives, dated 1904.

Adhesive.

5c yellow.

Official Adhesive.

1c orange.

PERSIA.—Hermann Focke writes us as follows:

"Among a lot of several hundred cheap Persian stamps of recent issues, I find 3 specimens of the 2 shahis gray of 1902 (Scott's A26) with a small surcharge, "Contrôle," in black, which I do not find in either Scott's or Stanley Gibbons' 1907 catalogue. A friend of mine who gets many of these stamps, states that he has several values of that set, surcharged as above and that it originates from some town in Persia, where a theft of stamps had been committed, and the remainders were thus treated for identification.

"I do not see how this could keep the thieves from disposing of their plunder in other cities of the country; nevertheless we may take it as an excuse for another addition to the numberless surcharges produced in Persia."

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.—Stanley Gibbons, Inc. have shown us the 5c value first type of King's Head printed on chalky paper watermarked multiple Crown and CA.

TURKEY.—The 10pa, 20pa, 1pi and 2pi stamps have been issued with overprint of Turkish character. It is reported that this makes them available for foreign postage.

VICTORIA.—The only value of the due set watermarked Crown and CA thus far chronicled, has been the 1 penny green and rose. Stanley Gibbons, Inc. have received the ½p same design, and we presume the same colors.

Unpaid Letter.

Report of International Secretary.

BOSTON, MASS., Jan. 15, 1907.

To the President and Members of the Boston Philatelic Society:

The duties of the International Secretary have not been particularly arduous during the past year. Reports have been furnished the Vertrauliches Korrespondenz-Blatt at intervals, giving notices of changes in membership, etc., which have been printed in this journal.

The work of our society, especially the program as furnished by the Entertainment Committee, has received favorable comment in the English and German press, notably one of the Hamburg societies commented upon it at some length at one of their meetings, and was quite lavish in its praise.

It is scarcely within the scope of this office to refer to important philatelic events in foreign countries, but I desire to mention several notable achievements made by philately during the past year. The year has been particularly rich in philatelic exhibitions, most notably of all that of London, which has been so extensively reported in the philatelic press. Another one of considerable scope was held during September in Milan, in connection with the International Exposition in that city, and in the middle of October the fourth philatelic exhibition was held in Buenos Ayres. The latter was particularly strong in stamps of the Argentine Republic and Uruguay, and was patronized almost exclusively by South American collectors.

The fifth exhibition has been fixed for 1910. The Philatelic exhibition of British Guiana is planning an exhibition to be held in February, so this shows that our South American fellow collectors are wide awake and up to date.

The London Philatelic Society has recently entered the royal list through a gracious act of King Edward. This is an important achievement for philately.

The Union of Philatelic Societies, of which our Society became a member last year, now embraces 152 different philatelic associations, and in addition to this 77 branch societies. Sixteen countries are here represented as follows: United States, Germany, France, Holland, Belgium, Switzerland, Austria, Hungary, Russia, Finland, Denmark, Norway, Sweden, Italy, Transvaal and New Zealand.

Respectfully submitted,
J. M. BARTELS.

QUERIES AND COMMENT.

Edited by C. E. SEVERN.

Our readers are cordially invited to ask the editor for any information desired concerning stamp collecting. Should a personal reply be desired kindly enclose postage. This department is for the beginner as well as the advanced collector. Address, C. E. SEVERN, 820 Oxford Bdg., Chicago Ill.

F. D. N.: This reader asks: "Please answer if Saxony, 3pf red, No. 1 is rare; also, Hawaii, 5c blue, No. 21. I have been trying to get these for some time." The 3pf Saxony has long been regarded as a scarce stamp. You will find that a dealer here and there has the stamp in stock and that he can supply it at some figure based on catalogue price; and occasionally it is offered in an auction sale. The same remarks apply to the 5c blue on blue, Hawaiian numeral.

E. L. L.:—We call your attention to the following conditions under which the high value stamps of the current issue are necessary: "Foreign rate letter postage amounts to $1 60 a pound. Many shipments of securities will weigh fifteen to twenty pounds, while shipments of one hundred pounds are not unusual. Registered mail is preferred for these shipments of bonds, stocks and securities on account of the promptness of delivery. The mails are the last things to go aboard a steamer and the first to be taken off. Insurance is carried on such shipments and underwriters charge less on registered mail shipments than on express. We recently had in stock a postally used block of thirty $5.00 United States stamps ($150.00) used on a case of insurance papers from New York to Liverpool."

T. T.:—The use of pre-canceled postage stamps in Canada was authorized at least as early as September 16th, 1904; but previously, a roller cancellation was sometimes erroneously referred to as a pre-cancellation. The following extract is from an official notification sent out from Ottawa, September, 1904: "The use of pre-canceled stamps, or stamps canceled before actually used for payment of postage, is permitted in some of the larger cities under very stringent regulations, and only when required for any one mailing in quantities of not less than 25,000 stamps, but postage stamps canceled with the small roller canceler have been observed upon letters and other matter passing in the mails, and postmasters are accordingly instructed that under no circumstances are they permitted to precancel postage stamps. The roller canceler is reserved for the cancellation of postage stamps on second, third and fourth class matter, and must be used only on stamps after being actually affixed to such matter." Etc.

E. L. T.:—We amplify the statement of the catalogue on the subject of the differences in types I, II and III of the five-cent, United States, 1857–60, by the following descriptions recorded by Mr. Luff in his work on the stamps of our country: "Type I. On examining the stamps, we find that, surrounding the central medallion, there is an irregularly shaped mat of colorless lathework. The outer line of this lathework is formed of a series of loops. Outside these loops are two thin lines of color, separated by a thin colorless line, all following the outline of the lathework and forming slight projections in the middle of each of the four sides. This is the form of the original die and of the stamps on the first plate for this value. The complete projections on the four sides are the distinguishing feature of type I. Type II. The outer line of color on the projecting ornaments at top and bottom has been cut away. This is usually spoken of as 'ornaments partly removed.' Type III. The cutting has been carried still further, and both the outer and inner lines and part of the colorless loops have been cut away. This variety is called 'ornaments wholly removed.' These types are from two different transfer rolls though both occur on the same plate. They are arranged in horizontal rows, the first, third, sixth and tenth rows being of type II and the balance of the plate of type III." The additional types of the 1857 issue were caused by alterations made to permit of perforating.

MILAN EXHIBITION, 1906.

The Highest Possible Award at the above Exhibition was received by THE WEST-END PHILATELIST (Edited by Bertram W. H. Poole). Published by D. Field. "The West End Philatelist" is published on the 15th of each month and forms the brighest and daintiest of the journals issued for Stamp Collectors.

Each number is full of original matter, written in an interesting style, that should appeal to all philatelists. There are articles on the stamps of various countries, and a serial paper in which the collector is told all about papers, watermarks, and perforations; how stamps are made, and the thousand and one other things every collector ought to know if he wishes to collect on intelligent lines.

It is Well Illustrated.

Subscribers reap many advantages in being able to purchase really good stamps at bargain prices. Send for particulars.

As soon as your name has been published as an applicant you will probably have unsolicited selections of stamps sent you on approval. As a great many collectors object to this practice the Association desires to break the practice up. Please aid us and help protect yourself and others against further imposition, by holding such selections without purchasing any, until sufficient funds have been sent by the dealer to return it to him by registered mail. Also please report the names of such dealers to the Secretary of the Association.

St. Louis Stamp Collectors' Society.

F. R. CORNWALL, Pres.; J. H. HUMES, Vice Pres.; WALLACE DELAFIELD, JR., Treas.; CHESTER MYERS, Sec.; S. B. HOPKINS, Exch. Mgr. and Lib.; Governing Board: above named officers, DR. J. W. HIGSON, F. MILLHOUSE and G. SCHELLHORN.

At the fiftieth meeting held at the Manufacturers Association, February 5, the lack of a large attendance was more than compensated for by the enthusiasm of the few who were willing to face the severe cold weather. An animated discussion was provoked by remarks of the President advocating a closer study of stamps. The question as to when a general collector ceases to be such and becomes a specialist is still not convincingly answered.

Mr. Diamant offered prizes for the one giving the greatest number of stamps illustrated in Scott's catalogue which did not bear the name (or initial) of the country using them. One point was allowed for each country and two points were to be deducted if an error was made. Mr. Humes had the largest list, but due to deductions ran second to Mr. Hopkins. Mr. Millhouse was awarded the third prize. The next competition for the members will be an exhibition of stamps of Austria for prizes to be donated by the president. This will take place at the next meeting, February 19, 1907.

CHESTER MYERS, Sec'y.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—Geo. Pettit, Jr., favors us with no less than ten stamp clippings taken for the most part from the Rochester, N. Y., Courier.

—Dr. F. H. Gile favors us with a copy of the Braintree, Mass., Observer, containing the N. S. C. article on the Royal Philatelic Society, its insertion being secured through the energy of our correspondent.

—The Daily Union, Walla Walla, Wash., published, January 30, a column article dealing with the stamp-papered room to be found in the residence of the English dealer, C. Whitfield King, at Ipswich. We are obliged to H. W. Boers for clipping.

—Missouri has had introduced into its Senate a bill providing for a stamp tax on sales of stocks and certain other contracts where delivery is not intended. The proposed law is similar to the one now in force in New York State, which produces several million dollars in revenue each year. A section of the bill provides that the funds arising from the sale of stamps, shall constitute a road fund and be distributed by the state auditor to the various counties.

—W. D. Garlock and Emil J. Rall have our thanks for back numbers of the WEEKLY recently sent us.

WASHINGTON IN PHILATELY.

BY C. A. HOWES.

"To the memory of the man, first in war, first in peace, and first in the hearts of his countrymen!" Thus spoke Gen. Henry Lee in his eulogy on George Washington, delivered in Congress on December 26, 1799. And the philatelist of a century later might add: "first and foremost on the postal issues of his country."

As is well known, the United States was somewhat slow in adopting the English system of prepayment of postage by means of stamps, which also accompanied a sweeping reduction in postal charges, and which took effect on May 1, 1840. Several other countries recognized the advantages of the new scheme before this country took any action in the matter, even the South American Empire of Brazil being four years ahead of us. But at last popular clamor caused Congress to move in the matter, and by the act of March 3, 1845, the previous heavy letter charges, regulated by the distance traversed, were abolished and the single rate made uniform at five cents for all distances under three thousand miles. In the same act was a provision for the adoption of the English system of prepayment by means of adhesive stamps, but this was stricken out at the last minute.

But if Congress was so conservative in making innovations, the various postmasters throughout the country were at least awake to the advantages which the postage stamp system offered. Hence the various "Postmasters' Provisionals", which might never have appeared if the clause spoken of had not been stricken from the law of 1845. This law also accounts for their being all of five or ten cent denomination—the first for single letters, as already noted; the second for double letters, or those going beyond the limit of three thousand miles.

Among these provisionals, the best known and most common is perhaps that of the Postmaster of New York, Robert H. Morris. It is fortunate for the purpose of this article that this stamp was of private make, since it can therefore be illustrated without hindrance from the Post Office Inspectors. Many foreign countries are vastly more liberal than our own in this regard, allowing reproductions of their stamps for legitimate, illustrative or educational purposes; but our own is so strict that the outlawed and demonetized issues of 1847 and 1851-7 cannot even be reproduced.

This handsome stamp made its appearance in July, 1845, and was the first stamp on Government mail to bear a portrait Naturally, perhaps, the subject selected was America's first citizen, the greatest man the Republic had produced up to that time—the immortal George Washington. It was not till a year later that its only companion Postmaster's stamp to bear a portrait—that of Milbury, Mass.,—made its appearance, the idea as well as the portrait being acknowledged to have been suggested by the receipt of mail from New York bearing the stamps of that office.

When at last Congress found that the postage stamp was a thing that could not be evaded, it finally passed an act on March 3, 1847, authorizing the preparation and use of the Government stamps, and prohibiting the further use of any issued by postmasters on and after July 1 of that year. The Government stamps were not ready until August 5, however, when they appeared in the two values we should expect from the postal rates—five and ten cents. In this issue and that of 1869, as will be seen, Washington's features did not appear upon the value in most common use for letter mail, as they have in all other cases, barring the commemorative series. Other values, however, were honored with his portrait in the early issues, most all being the same as that upon the New York stamp. This portrait is known as "Stuart's portrait," or more accurately, perhaps, as the "Athenæum portrait."

If the collector will glance through his

The story of this portrait, the best known likeness of the "Father of His Country," should be familiar to all. The artist was Gilbert Charles Stuart, an American painter, who was in England until after the Revolution. He then became desirous of painting his most illustrious countryman, and returned for the express purpose. While Congress was in session at Philadelphia in 1794, Stuart went thither with letters of introduction to Washington from John Jay. He first met his famous subject on a reception evening, and was greeted by him with dignified cordiality. Familiar as was the artist with eminent men, he afterwards declared that no human being ever awakened in him the sentiment of reverence to such a degree. For a moment he lost his self-possession—with him an experience quite unprecedented—and it was not until several interviews that he felt himself enough at home with his sitter to give the requisite concentration of mind to his work.

The portrait itself was finished in due course, but the background was never filled in, and in that condition it still remains. At the same time he also painted a portrait of Martha Washington, which remains in like condition. Concerning these portraits Miss Stuart says: "When General and Mrs. Washington took their last sittings, my father told Washington it would be of great importance to him to retain the originals, to which Washington replied: 'Certainly, Mr. Stuart, if they are of any consequence to you; I shall be perfectly satisfied with copies from your hand, as it will be impossible for me to sit again at present.' The copies made from the originals were for Mount Vernon. A short time after these last pictures were finished, the President called on my father to express the perfect satisfaction of Mrs. Washington and himself at his success."

The above extract apparently refutes the common story to the effect that Stuart's first trial did not suit him and was erased; that the next attempt was the one under discussion, which was so successful that the artist did not want to part with it, keeping it "unfinished" as an excuse, while he made copies of it.

After the death of Stuart these two portraits were offered by his widow to the State of Massachusetts (the artist's home was in Boston) for the sum of one thousand dollars, which offer was declined. Subsequently an English gentleman offered ten thousand dollars for the pair; but while Mrs. Stuart was hesitating, thinking they ought to remain in America, he became impatient and departed. Some time after that, an offer of fifteen hundred dollars was accepted from the Washington Association and other gentlemen who, in 1831, presented them to the Boston Athenæum, whence the name usually applied to them. Here they remained for fifty years, when they were transferred to the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, where they now are.

Tuckerman has said of the Athenæum head of Washington: "The freshness of the color, the studious modelling of the brow, the mingling of clear purpose and benevolence in the eye, and a thorough nobleness and dignity in the whole head, realize all the most intelligent admirer of the original has imagined,—not, indeed, when thinking of him as the intrepid leader of armies, but in the last analysis and complete image of the hero in retirement, in all the consciousness of a sublime career, unimpeachable fidelity to a national trust, and the internal gratitude of a free people. It is this masterpiece of Stuart's that has not only perpetuated, but has distributed over the globe, the resemblance of Washington. It has been sometimes lamented that so popular a work does not represent him in the aspect of a successful warrior, or in the flush of youth; but there seems to be a singular harmony between this venerable image—so majestic, benign and serene—and the absolute character and peculiar example of Washington, separated from what was purely accidental and contingent in his life. Self-control, endurance, dauntless courage, loyalty to a just but sometimes desperate cause, hope through the most hopeless crisis, and a tone of feeling the most exalted, united to habits of candid simplicity, are better embodied in such a calm, magnanimous, mature image, full of dignity and sweetness, than if portrayed in battle array or melodramatic attitude."

We give a cut of the Milbury stamp to show how much it does not look like Washington, although supposed to have been copied from the New York stamp. We also include a cut of one of the New York Carriers' stamps, for practically the same reason. The latter belonged at first to a private delivery company, which so cut into the Post Office business that the Government practically bought them out by employing them, adding the name "United States" to the former title of "City Despatch Post." These were really the first stamps in this country and the first following the example of Great Britain. The Confederate States likewise chose to represent Washington on one of their issues, as will be seen by the 20c green of the 1863 issue (Scott's A9), and adopted the Athenæum portrait which was very well reproduced.

It might be added, in passing, that the head of Martha Washington on the current 8 cent stamp is from the companion portrait of the Athenæum Washington, which was spoken of above.

SUPERB EARLY UNITED STATES
Probably 90 per cent of early U. S. stamps are poorly centered; possibly 10 per cent are fairly well centered and of these the proportion good enough to be called fine is so small that—well, try to get them and see!
We have a finely centered block of four, No 66, 1861 3c lake, unused fine, $60.00 net.
This is full catalogue. We ought to ask double catalogue, because the 3c lake usually comes about as badly centered as any U. S. stamp we know of, and a finely centered stamp is forty, if not fifty, times as rare as an average copy.
We have a few other good pairs, blocks, etc., of early United States, both unused and used.

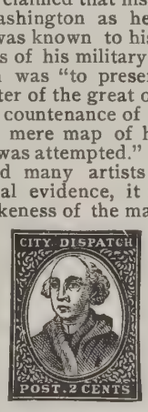
has been employed upon the United States stamps. The ninety cent values of both the 1857 and 1861-8 issues present features of quite a different aspect from the venerable face of Stuart's. The original was a full length figure of Washington painted by John Trumbull, another American artist. He knew the General at the outbreak of the Revolution, when he was about forty-five and in the prime of life, and was with him again toward the close of the war in 1782-3. No other artist saw more of Washington under circumstances so favorable to a study of his person and character, and none was honored by him with more sittings.

Trumbull, in his autobiography, says: "In 1792 I was again in Philadelphia, and there painted the portrait of General Washington which is now placed in the gallery at New Haven, the best, in my estimation, which exists, in his heroic military character. The city of Charleston, South Carolina, intrusted William R. Smith, one of the Representatives of South Carolina, to employ me to paint for them a portrait of the great man, and I undertook it con amore, (as the commission was unlimited,) meaning to give his military character, in the most sublime moment of its exertion—the evening previous to the battle of Princeton; when viewing the vast superiority of his approaching enemy, and the impossibility of again crossing the Delaware, or retreating down the river, he conceives the plan of returning by a night march into the country from which he had just been driven, thus cutting off the enemy's communications, and destroying his depot of stores and provisions at Brunswick. I told the President my object; he entered into it warmly, and as the work advanced, we talked of the scene, its dangers, its almost desperation. He looked the scene again, and I happily transferred to the canvas the lofty expression of his animated countenance, the high resolve to conquer or to perish. The result was, in my opinion, eminently successful, and the General was satisfied. But it did not meet the views of Mr. Smith. He admired, he was personally pleased, but he thought the city would be better satisfied with a more matter-of-fact likeness, such as they had recently seen him—calm, tranquil, peaceful. . . . Another was painted for Charleston, agreeable to their taste—a view of the city in the background, a house with scenery, and plants of the climate; and when the State Society of the Cincinnati of Connecticut dissolved themselves, the first picture, at the expense of some of the members, was presented to Yale College."

Trumbull claimed that his portrait represented Washington as he knew him, and as he was known to his associates, the members of his military family. He said his aim was "to preserve the military character of the great original", and that "in the countenance of the hero the likeness, the mere map of his face, was not all that was attempted." It is a good portrait, and many artists affirm that, from internal evidence, it is doubtless the truest likeness of the man.



We now come to the third representation of Washington, the profile bust. The Act of Congress approved March 3, 1851, reduced the single rate for letters to three cents, and the new issue required in consequence shows the features of the first President in this form upon the stamp for ordinary correspondence. A list of the stamps bearing this profile bust is as follows:

Issue of 1851-7, 3 cents.
" 1861-8, 3 cents.
" 1870, 3 cents.
Departments, 1873, 3 cents.
Issue of 1883-8, 2 cents.
" 1890-4, 2 cents.
Newspaper, 1865, 5 cents.

This likeness is taken from the marble statue of Washington in the State Capitol at Richmond, Virginia. The story of the statue is as follows: The General Assembly of Virginia, soon after the declaration of peace that closed the Revolution, decreed a statue to General Washington, to be placed in the Capitol in Richmond, and "to be the finest marble and best workmanship." Jefferson and Franklin, being then in Paris, were authorized to select the artist, and they chose Jean Antoine Houdon. Concerning him Jefferson wrote: "He is the finest statuary of his age," and again: "He is without rivalship in it, being employed in all parts of Europe in whatever is capital."

It was necessary for Houdon to see Washington to take his figure, and the latter wrote him: "It will give me pleasure, Sir, to welcome you to this seat of my retirement, and whatever I have or can procure that is necessary to your purposes or convenient or agreeable to your wishes, you must freely command, as inclination to oblige you will be among the last things in which I shall be found deficient."

Houdon reached Mount Vernon on October 3, 1785, and remained a fortnight, during which time he took a cast of the face, head and upper part of the body, and minute measurements of his person, and studies of the costume of the period which Washington daily wore.

The artist was to receive as compensation for the statue and pedestal, 25,000 livres or $5,000, and his expenses for the trip to Virginia reimbursed to him. In addition, his life was to be insured during the time of his absence from France. The contract allowed him three years for the completion of the statue, and it was done within the time. The State Capital, however, was not finished, so that the statue was not shipped until its site was ready for it. It was finally erected in the quadrangle of the Capitol on May 14, 1796.

The statue is a remarkably fine piece of chiseling, the treatment of the face being so delicate that it needs but the flush of natural color to make it absolutely lifelike. It presents the figure erect, the head uncovered, the sword on the left, the cane in the right hand, and the fasces and plough at his side. It is exact life size—six feet two inches in height. Those acquainted with Washington have pronounced this statue the best representation of his person which exists. Lafayette, on his visit to America in later years, pronounced it a "facsimile of Washington's person." It therefore well deserves the place which has been given it upon the stamps of our country.

Beside the adhesive stamps, the Houdon bust has been placed upon all the envelope stamps bearing Washington's head. All the Civil War revenues, also, had Stuart's portrait as an invariable center piece down to 1875. On the proprietary issues from 1875 to 1881, however, Houdon's profile bust appears. The Stuart portrait will likewise be found upon a beer stamp of 1878, a tobacco stamp of 1868, a snuff stamp of 1872, and a few stamps for imported cigars.

Now just a word about the handsome and appropriate cover which the WEEKLY presents its readers with this issue. It is doubtless familiar in reproduction to the great majority of our subscribers, but they may not know that the original is in Abbott Hall, the Town Hall of Marblehead, Mass. It was painted by A. M. Willard about the time of the Centennial celebration, and is appropriately named "THE SPIRIT OF '76". The picture tells its story well—the grim determination of the aged "minute man" as he leads the advance with his drum; the heroic fifer, head in bandage but still at the front with his martial music unimpaired; and the youthful drummer, forgetful of all but the inspiration he is drawing from the example of his elder companion. This is a painting that deserves a place in a National Gallery, if anywhere. We are indebted to the Soule Art Publishing Co. of Boston, for permission to reproduce this picture, which we feel will be appreciated as one of the best covers we have yet sent out to our readers.

EDITORIAL.

Single Colors Henceforth—Admirers of new issues, especially of British Colonial, must have noted the fact that there seems to be an evident intention upon the part of the British postal authorities to eliminate, insofar as the low values are concerned at least, the printing of bi-colored stamps. Antigua, British Guiana, British Honduras and Leeward Island in the new issues just reported, show that not only are the low values to be printed in a single color, but that the colored paper heretofore used on certain values will also be discontinued. The future of chalky paper seems to be in doubt.

Helping Hands—Now that so much attention is being concentrated, and with so happy result, on the acquisition of new collecting material in the shape of philatelic beginners, the necessities of maintaining the advantages that have been, and are being, gained is apparent. Collectors already in the fold are agreed on this point, and it is a satisfaction to be able to record that there is a general disposition on the part of the confirmed philatelists to make the new comers comfortable in their new estate and to welcome them cordially. Considering this phase briefly, we can say that dealers are more inclined than ever to render such assistance as they are able to grant to the new comer in his quest for information; and collectors, themselves, show a commendable and disinterested spirit to pave the way of the neophyte with easy instruction. The philatelic press gives hearty recognition to and a reasonable measure of its space for the edification of beginners. Such conditions are auspicious for the continued growth of the hobby with the result that it becomes fortified in its position, as its affects both those who are acquainted with philately and those who are not.

Deserters—It is known that the transient character that once marked stamp collecting has given place to a degree of permanency, yet it is felt that there will always be some apparent change in the personnel of philately; and so it is worth while to ponder why stamp collectors dismiss their hobby. It is well to give heed to the debit as to the credit side of the hobby. Broadly speaking, the one who forswears philately does so because one wants to do so, but in some cases the severing of philatelic connections is done with reluctance. As accounting for the desertions under the category of voluntary action, disappointment following unpleasant, unprofitable experiences, discouragements induced by philatelic complications, real or imaginary, and financial considerations may be named. A temperamental change such as a depression of interest, sometimes, a consequence of a period of extreme philatelic ardor, may explain a certain percentage of the number of back-sliders. When philately was not so well organized or regulated, fraud was not so exceptional and isolated as at present; and the danger to the well-being of the beginner and inexperienced, nowadays, is at a minimum. The complexities of philately as reflected in questions that are the subject of much discussion and which are not settled, seemingly to universal satisfaction, are not so bothersome as formerly, judging from the manner in which they are ignored, comparatively speaking, today. At least they do not enter into the minds of collectors so prominently as once they did. Financial considerations are a wholly personal subject, but it may be added that any collector who spends more than he can afford for stamps is foolish, and he defeats the pleasure-giving ends of the hobby. So soon as stamp collecting becomes a source of mental stress, the hobby loses its refreshing interest. While philatelic conditions are not yet ideal, they are improving rapidly; and keeping pace with them, fewer collectors are dropping the hobby "for cause" than ever before.

Regretted—The collector who parts from philately not because he would but because he must is one for whom all have a sympathetic thought. He is forced to do what not he, himself, but stern necessity dictates. As typifying a case of regretful leave-taking of philately, we make place for the following letter that has been received from a gentleman who has been unswerving in his loyalty to philately for many years, and to whom the WEEKLY is indebted for many cheering words and evidences of good-will in the past. Dr. Pope may be gone from philately, but he will not be forgotten by those who know him: "After having subscribed to the WEEKLY for over fifteen years (ever since it started), it is with regret that I am compelled to ask you to remove my name from your list of subscribers. I am forced to do this on account of my health and eyes, and as I have put all my collections and duplicates in the hands of Mr. Wolsieffer to sell, I will not have any more interest in stamps, so far as collecting them is concerned; but I shall never forget the pleasure collecting afforded me, and I am indeed sorry to have to give it up. However, my physician says that I must do so on account of my health, and so I must sell all the stamps I have. I have every number of the WEEKLY that I have received, but as I am getting on to 63 and my eyes are so bad, I shall not be able to review them as I have so often done with pleasure. Wishing you much success, I remain, your friend, Dr. Henry C. Pope, Birmingham, Ala."

Explanation Wanted—The newspapers have been devoting space to an alleged scandal involving the disposition of huge numbers of the New York state stock transfer tax stamps. Gross carelessness in handling the stamps and a leakage of millions of dollars represented in special stamps are charged. We take the following from a newspaper: "The stamps were printed by Quayle & Son, Albany, at their plant on Green street. The plates were in the custody of the comptroller's representative and each day or week were delivered to Quayle. The paper first used was of an ordinary commercial sort, which Comptroller Glynn said was stored in the Quayle shop under ordinary lock in an ordinary room, and while the sheets were counted out before printing, there was no safeguard to prevent their being abstracted. The comptroller declares the count of sheets does not tally, the explanation being that some of them were used for other purposes. The first issue of stamps were found to be susceptible of counterfeiting and the removal of cancellation marks, and in May or June of last year the printing of these was stopped and a new issue was begun on patent paper."

An Undertaking—The council of the Royal Philatelic Society, London, has considered favorably the suggestion that the society undertake the formation of a reference collection of stamps, to consist of originals, reprints, forgeries, etc., that should be available to the members of the society for consultation; it will serve for reference and for expert comparisons. The Earl of Crawford and other prominent members of the society have promised contributions, and so the genesis of the collection is assured. It is hoped that dealers, who, by-the-way, are ineligible for membership in the society, as well as members of the society will support the proposed collection which is destined, no doubt, to become a monumental achievement. The January number of the London Philatelist, the official journal of the Royal Philatelic Society, London, presents a page insert reproduction of a photograph of His Royal Highness, the Prince of Wales, the first President of the Royal Philatelic Society, London.

Reprints of Luxemburg—The foreign papers report that the two stamps, comprising the first issue of Luxemburg, have been made from an original plate of each value on the original paper, watermarked W. While the plates were badly oxidized and corroded, yet satisfactory specimens, to the printer, were made from some parts of the plates. The stock of original paper unearthed would allow of about 20,000 reprints, it is estimated. The first issue of Luxemburg, sterling stamps of the early regime, and of no little value, unused, are favorites with many collectors who will learn of the reprinting with dissatisfaction.

All Who Read May See—The St. Louis Post Dispatch reproduces a picture of the new Bosnia, 50h, depicting an automobile, enlarged to the size of nearly five by three inches; the illustration is noteworthy as being one of the largest that has been seen of any stamp in a newspaper.

Imperforate U. S.—Just as we go to press we learn some facts in regard to these stamps. The publication elsewhere in this issue of the letter sent out from the office of the Third Asst. Postmaster Gen'l, indicates that the first consignment of the 2c postage stamps imperforate was made to the Washington postoffice. No reference is made to Chicago where it is known that the stamps were, and probably are at the present writing, on sale. We are seeking the information necessary to establish the true status of not only the 2c but the 1c as well.

U. S. STAMPS IMPERFORATE.

It will be seen from the following copy of a letter written by the Third Asst. Postmaster Gen. that the imperforate stamps, concerning which there has been so much discussion, was first supplied upon requisition to the postmaster of Washington, D. C. This applies to the 2c value. Nothing official has yet been gleaned in regard to the 1c, but information will shortly be at hand no doubt. The letter is self-explanatory, though failing to give one or two particulars in which the philatelic public is considerably interested. We would like to know how Chicago came to be supplied, and if its supply was received upon a similar requisition. We are seeking further particulars, pending which our readers will be glad to read the following:

WASHINGTON, D. C, Dec. 31, 1906.

THE POSTMASTER,
Washington, D. C.

Sir:—In response to your requisition of December 29, instructions have been given to supply you 50,000 two-cent postage stamps in unperforated sheets of 400 stamps each, which it is understood are desired by purchasers who will use them in automatic stamp-affixing machines. They will be invoiced January 3.

Unperforated stamps are issued to postmasters under the following conditions, of which you will notify all purchasers:

The stamps must be purchased through the post office where they are to be used on mailings, because the diverting of postal revenues from their proper channel is contrary to the interests of the service.

Stamps furnished in unperforated sheets must be separated accurately, since they are not good for postage if mutilated (see paragraph 3, Section 562, P. L. & R.). Stamps are not redeemable from purchaser if mutilated or if unused (see Section 330, P. L. & R.).

The furnishing of stamps in this form must not be exploited as an indorsement by the department of any particular machine, or otherwise for advertising purposes.

The right is reserved to prescribe other conditions as their necessity may arise, or to discontinue the issue of unperforated stamps if at any time it appears necessary or advisable.

Respectfully,
EDWIN C. MADDEN,
Third Assistant Postmaster-General.

OUR BOOK REVIEW.

Priced Catalog of the Newspaper and Parcel Stamps of the Railway Companies of the United Kingdom 1855-1906.—This is rather a lengthy title, but the publishers evidently believed that it was all necessary. This work covers a special field that has been little delved in. It is published and compiled by H. L. Ewen, and the marvel is how a dealer could find the time to put into publication form all the details in a work of this kind. Mr. Ewen in his preface tells of the origin of these stamps giving us in small compass the salient facts. The book consists of 150 pages and is printed on heavy calendered paper, illustrated profusely with cuts which, with the prices on unused and used specimens, will make the book useful to all who may come in contact with British Railway stamps. The average collector will be very glad to have a catalog to which to refer, to guide him in the estimating of values even though only straggling stamps may come his way. There can be no question but what a work of this kind will do much to popularize these labels, all of them being curious looking affairs, indeed, few of them will be discarded because of their beauty. Published by Ewen, Palace Square, Norwood, London, Eng. Price 60c.

Ewen's Catalog of Railway Letter Stamps.—Part 2. Scotland and Ireland. This book, also compiled by Mr. Ewen, deals with the railway letter stamps issued from Feb. 1, 1891 to Sept. 1906, and is confined to the railway companies of Scotland and Ireland. Part 1 was published in 1905 and dealt with England and Wales. The book is a fitting companion to the one already reviewed, being printed on the same quality of paper and illustrated with many half-tones, including the illustrating of several covers life size, each occupying an entire page of the catalog. The author declares that "the real charm of collecting railway letter stamps, is only experienced by those who take entire sheets either unbroken or reconstructed." A number of the half-tones show entire sheets and anyone at all interested in these stamps will find their money well invested in procuring a copy The preface (which is also published separately) consists of 25 pages of interesting, descriptive and historical matter and much that is statistical is also included. Published by Ewen, Palace Square, Norwood, London, Eng. Price 60c.

Catalog of the Stamps of Australia, New Zealand and South Sea Islands.—This handy little book of 150 pages is not considered by its publishers a standard catalog describing and pricing every stamp issued. It purports to be a list of the stamps in stock with the prices at which the firm of Fred Hagen, Ltd., is prepared to sell. As one glances through the book, neatly printed and fully illustrated, but few blank spaces are noticeable compared with the number of stamps described. The book is very neatly gotten up and will prove of value to the collector and particularly specialist in Australians. To give one an idea of how thoroughly up to date this catalog is, we need only to point out that the stamps issued last month by the New Zealand Exhibition Committee are described, illustrated and priced.

An interesting item is noted under the heading of "Automatic Stamps." The automatic machine has been on trial only in Wellington, and three varieties of stamps are catalogued, being given the distinguishing description respectively of first, second and third trials, alterations being made after each trial. Differences are described in the matter of perforations, which are quite different from the ordinary kind. We will not take the space to go into this in detail, but merely point out that scattered through the book is a great deal of useful information. Published by Fred Hagen, Ltd., 182 Pitt St., Sydney, N. S. W. 1907. Price 12c. Post free.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES.

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Any information regarding new issues will be gratefully received and acknowledged. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. The figures in parentheses refer to the previous number of the WEEKLY in which the same country was noticed AUSTRIA.—The 1900 letter card issue was the extreme of simplicity and economy, having no printing whatever except the stamp. Now Mr. Schachne reports its successor with the addition of arms (only 4½mm wide) in upper left corner with "11h" just below. This latter would seem to be a price mark thus preventing the P. O. people from charging too much.

The Pneumatic service seems to be raising prices as shown by the stationery just at hand. They show only the stamp and the few dotted and ruled lines, except that on the double card there is a "1" on one card and "2" on the other. This would seem to be absolutely necessary to inform the user which is the original and which the reply as otherwise they are exactly alike.

25h blue on gray.
25x25h blue on gray, L. 3.
Pneumatic Letter Card.
35h green on rose, inside gray.

BARBADOS.—Supplementing what was written last week in regard to the overprinting of the 2d stamp with the words in four lines "Kingston—Relief—Fund—1d" we have received official information through the medium of the Weekly Recorder of Bridgetown, V. Gurdji of New York City, submitting the same for our inspection. It seems that only one value was surcharged, the stamp having a postal value of 1d though sold to the public for 2d, the other penny being devoted to the purpose indicated. While the authorities in Barbados pretend to be actuated by the desire to allow an opportunity for the common people to contribute their mites to the relief of the Kingston sufferers, there is no doubt but that the assistance rendered by philatelists will be appreciated. We are very glad to be able to give the accompanying extract from the Recorder:

"The Governor, in Executive Committee, in order to extend as widely as possible in this Island facilities to subscribers of small sums to the fund for the relief of the sufferers from the recent earthquake and fire in Kingston, Jamaica, has decided to make a special issue of 2d stamps surcharged "Kingston Relief Fund 1d" for sale to the public at 2d. These will be available for postal purposes as 1d stamps, the remaining 1d in respect of each stamp sold going to the fund for relief purposes. Each purchaser of a stamp of this special issue will thus thereby be contributing the sum of 1d to the Fund, and the stamp purchased will be of the same postal value as a 1d stamp."

J. B. McGrath very kindly favors us with a cover upon which is a specimen of this stamp.

BRAZIL.—Oscar E. Lancaster sends us a used copy of the new 300 reis stamp with portrait of Floriano, previously chronicled.

Stanley Gibbons, Inc., have shown us some additional values of the postage due set chronicled in No. 836, 500r, 1000r and 2000r; all are in the same design as therein described.

Unpaid Letter.
500r purple black.
1000r red.
2000r green.

The three cards mentioned in No. 837 have just been received, also the U. P. U. double. All have same design for stamp and frame and are on buff card. The stamp has a female bust of (Liberty) in a circle. Outside is a band with solid ground on which is "Brazil Correos" in white letters. This surrounds somewhat more than the upper half of the circle, while at the bottom and below in a nearly rectangular frame is the value in figures in two lines, "50—Reis." The whole showing good work by the American Bank Note Co., but the design seems topheavy. The local cards have headlines in Spanish and the U. P. U. in French.

Post Card.
100x100 reis vermilion, T. 3.

CUBA.—J. M. Bartels sends us a copy of the new 50c Maceo stamp mentioned in the official letter printed last week. The stamp is a very handsome production and appears to be printed in slate rather than gray as stated last week. The portrait of Maceo is printed in black and is very finely engraved. The frame is in lathe work with rounded corners with scrolls, with "Cuba" above and "Cincuenta Centavos" below. The value is also printed in figures in a tablet below the portrait. The stamp is one of the handsomest of the year, or of any year as a matter of fact.

Adhesive.
50c slate and black.

GIBRALTAR.—Referring to the statement made in No. 836, Lawrence B. Mason sends us a copy of the new 1d stamp printed in carmine on white. This was placed on sale about the middle of January.

GOLD COAST.—Stanley Gibbons, Inc., have shown us the ½d multiple on chalky paper.

LEEWARD ISLANDS.—Like its constituent colony, Antigua, the main postoffice for the Leeward Islands is being supplied with the new stamps printed all in one color on multiple white paper.

Adhesives.
½d green.
2½d blue.

LIBERIA.—Stanley Gibbons, Inc., have shown us a new set of official stamps. It consists of no less than nine values, 1, 2, 5, 10, 20, 24, 25, 30 and 32c in a local printing, the letters O. S. being in Gothic type. The Gibbons' numbers 120 to 133, show the London print, the local type used being of a similar style, but twice as thick. The word "ORDINARY" is thrown onto the stamp in the same shiftless manner that marked the first printing.

NICARAGUA.—Hermann Focke has sent us another value of the current set, surcharged "Costa—Atlantica—B". This is the 20c wine red, but the stamp is the new Waterlow print. This and the 10c Waterlow, previously reported by him, are the only values of the Waterlow set Mr. Focke has yet seen, though he has been informed that the 50c value has also been issued. Mr. Focke is of the opinion that not only are the stamps being printed in London, but that the Waterlows are also printing the surcharges, which would account for their being better printed than formerly and probably also for the unusual quotation marks in the surcharge.

PORTUGAL.—Laurence B. Mason informs us that a new set of stamps will be issued for Portugal in the near future.

RIO DE ORO.—A card is just at hand of same appearance as the card of Spanish Guinea except the changes to designate the different colony.

Written for MEKEEL'S WEEKLY.

THE MIDNIGHT VISITOR OR THE UNKNOWN VARIETY.

By E. L. WARNER.

A shot sounded in the wing of old Grill's library.

"No use of your shooting, Wilson; you you could not hit anything," called Grill.

"I was firing at the cat," replied Wilson, entering the library.

"Why do you want to kill my cat?" inquired Grill.

"Your stamp album lies open on the desk," said Wilson.

"Well!" said Grill.

"My palette on the floor. Pussy was frightened at something; a dog barked at the open window; she jumped, struck the German green on my palette, and was about to jump on your stamp album when I fired. I missed her; she went over the desk and ran out the rear door," said Wilson.

"As an artist, you're improving, Wilson," said Grill.

"How so?" asked Wilson.

"You painted a cat green. However, do not kill the cat. I might not get another as good, whereas I can buy more stamps. Go back to your easel and if you have any more trouble, shoot the dog. I will send Pete to wash the cat and put the stamp album away. Perhaps you had better not fire any more bullets; you might hit something by accident," said Grill.

"Well, it was a sudden inspiration; I saw the revolver at hand on the table; I hope the bullet has not done any damage," said Wilson.

"Do not worry; it was only loaded with blanks. By the way, what are you trying to paint?" asked Grill.

"A mug of ale and a ham sandwich," replied Wilson.

"What's the title?" inquired Grill.

"The restful corner; or, the stamp dealer's delight."

"The first clause will do—the last is hardly typical," replied Grill.

"You stay here tonight, Wilson; it's my birthday. I am going to smoke the night through by the fire-light," continued Grill.

"Very well; it's too dark to paint. I will join you in a smoke; as a rule, birthday cigars have their drawbacks," said Wilson.

"As a rule they don't drawback at all," said Grill.

On the stroke of midnight, as these two friends were swapping stories, Peter showed a peculiar looking elderly gentleman into the library. Grill had told Peter to show in any who called the night of his birthday.

"Are you Mr. Grill, of philatelic fame," inquired the stranger.

"I am; and this is Mr. Wilson, the famous artist," replied Grill.

"Glad to meet Mr. Wilson," said the stranger. "Could you spare an hour to hear a tale, the like of which no man ever heard before?" he continued.

"He will hear it all right if about stamps," said Wilson.

"Well, it is about a stamp," said the stranger.

"All right; take an easy chair and a cigar. We are all attention," said Grill.

"The stamp on which my story hinges is the one on this envelope, the 10 zede of Zederland."

"We will term the tale, 'The Unknown Variety'," said Grill, looking at the cover.

"I have never heard of Zederland," said Wilson.

"That's the first thing I have heard mentioned of which you had never heard," said Grill.

"My name," said the stranger, "is Mr. Strange; I am a lawyer and reside in Greenville. I attended college with a Mr. Hampton; we were great friends; he became a doctor; his family left him an immense fortune. We agreed that if either of us died he should try to give the other a message from the spirit world. I did well for a while as a lawyer, but lately I have suffered some loses. The doctor and I were both stamp collectors. I shall have to sell my stamps as I am hard pressed for ready cash. I had meant to call on you tomorrow, but I saw you were well lighted up and I ventured to call. I was on my way to the hotel," said Mr. Strange.

"Yes, I lighted up all around tonight as it is my birthday. But resume," said Grill.

"Yes, I shall sell my stamps inclusive of this variety I showed you on entering. The doctor devoted his fortune to invention and in time he, and a young assistant he had with him named Morgan, turned out an air-craft based on a new theory; they made several short journeys with success, and then attempted a long flight. The doctor drew his power from the air. He also made air aboard his craft. The metallic structure was his own invention and discovery also, and was lighter than any known. His food was condensed into tablets. He had great expectations. He carried one passenger notwithstanding. The body of Morgan was found on the shore of an inland lake some days after they took the flight, but the doctor and ship were never heard of again or are likely to be. Now the doctor and I had many a pleasant chat at night when we were at college, and thinking of this and mourning his loss one dark night as I sat in my study at home, I wrote the doctor a long letter and addressed it to him, telling him all I knew of him since he left. I also stamped and sealed the letter in case my heirs or any one should know his address. I intended to put it in my safe, but I smoked by the open window. I left the letter on the desk near by; I dozed over my cigar; I was revived by a violent storm; I saw the letter hurled into space and darkness through the open window. Now I had written on a species of sensitive parchment of the doctor's invention which defied moisture and time, and used an envelope of the same. I had some such feeling as one might have who had placed a headstone to the grave of a friend. I arose and looked out the window. I beheld such a storm as 'Fur Fur' of Solomon's seventy spirits might have blown; notwithstanding the violence of the thunder and wind no rain fell.

Now there was a period of years rolled by; I labored, loved and lost; I won cases, accumulated wealth, but lost one great case; hence my present poverty. And my tale arrives at yesterday morning. Now there lives near me a minister who often receives stamps, somewhat unusual, from foreign parts and he gives them to me. Two nights ago there was a howling wind all night long, and trees and blinds and bricks were scattered over the yards on the morrow. The minister, in looking over his yard, found this sealed letter addressed to me. He thought it was dropped by the rural delivery so brought it to me. He said, in handing me the letter, 'How much more a philatelist knows than the average man. I did not know there was such a place as Zederland.' I smiled and assented. I recognized the doctor's parchment. Now, gentlemen, if you will give me a fresh cigar I will read you a letter such as the Kings of the age never gave to men, and the same is from the country of Zederland."

"Here is the letter," said Mr. Strange, preparing to read:

"My Dear Friend:—'As we expected, the air-craft worked like a charm; it was merely accidental Morgan falling out; he turned the wrong screw and fell through the trap. I knew he would be dead before I could reach him, and I found I could not descend in that direction with the power then in use, but that my ship was steadily being attracted toward some object, but its light did not reach me. Hours later my light disclosed a number of night side or the dark side of a planet towards which I was descending; shortly I landed by my own light in some dark mountains on a plateau. I put out a test gauge and found I could live in the air of this globe as it was the same as that of earth. So I opened up my cabin and after a rest I saw a shade of light not far distant. I reascended in my ship and floated towards the same slowly. I was now at the edge of the mountains, and, believe me, a thriving city. I hid my ship and taking a few necessaries descended.

To be brief: I am now living, and have been some years, on the planet Zede, whose dark side being continually towards us and for same reason not penetratable by sunlight, has been unknown to earthly men. The people who live here on the light side are much as people of earth. They remember nothing before birth, and have nothing but faith in the life after death. The earth they know not at all. Your letter reached me by wind storm. The parchment was no doubt attracted to a wheel I have made of the same material. I found it sticking to the wheel of some of my inventions on the roof of my dwelling. I live in a country called Zederland. They have a goose postal service here. The stamp on this letter is the 10 zede of the country. The people here do not know my secret. They are not so curious as earthly men. I am going to hurl this letter into space from the roof of my house with the next terrible wind, and if you have retained any amount of the parchment I gave you, in time this letter may reach you; if so you will know that I have kept my word and have sent you a philatelic message from another world. You will have an unknown rarity in your collection if this letter reaches you stamped as sent. In studying the chiromacy of the ancients I stumbled onto the discovery of the powers of attraction involved in two pieces of this sensitive parchment of mine. Some day I intend to return to earth. If so, we shall meet again. Do not try to reply, but trust to me to be heard from again.

Faithfully yours,
DOCTOR HAMPTON."

"Gentlemen, this ends the doctor's story and letter. I trust you will not doubt my veracity," said Mr. Strange.

"Put this atlas back, Pete," said Wilson.

"May I ask, gentlemen, what you think of my tale?" said Mr. Strange.

"It's beyond belief, if true. If not true it is unworthy of belief," said Grill. "But bring round your stamps, I will buy."

"I have them with me under my coat in the hall."

Buy of Us, You Buy Right!

A trade phrase that means much. Of none of our offers are we ashamed. The goods we offer as "bargains" do not decrease in value with each new catalogue. We do not have to lower our prices to meet those of others. When we began to advertise we offered Canal Zone on U. S. at $1.25 (others asked $2.00 in the same issues), our price is the same today but will be advanced soon. Two months ago we offered China Postage Due on regular at 3c each for 1 and 2c values—today we are willing to pay six cents each and can use any quantity.

Our stock is one of the largest in America, ACTUAL VALUES CONSIDERED we sell LOWER than any other firm. We are in the market for any of the stamps we offer at a price that will allow us a fair profit. Bank references willingly furnished.

HUSSMAN STAMP CO.

No doubt our readers noticed last week a picture post-card advt. of the Hussman Stamp Co. of St. Louis, Mo. This firm, however, would not have you understand that it has given up the stamp business. As if to disabuse any one of such an idea the firm this week is advertising a nice line of stamps, as will be seen by their announcement elsewhere. Mr. Hussman, the manager of this company, is long and favorably known in the channels of stamp trade, and those who desire to open trade relations will find him on the spot "with the goods."

UNITED STATES REVENUE SOCIETY.

A SPLENDID ORGANIZATION EFFECTED WITH ONE HUNDRED MEMBERS.

The WEEKLY congratulates the members of the new society upon the success that has attended the efforts of the promoters of the new U. S. Revenue Society. 100 lovers of revenues have signified their desire to become charter members. A splendid start when the difficulties in the way of a movement of this kind are considered.

Sec. Davis has favored this office with all ballots received and we have verified his work. The election of officers resulted as follows:

Pres., George J. Carter, N. Y. City.
Vice-Pres., Clarence H. Eagle, N.Y.City.
Second Vice-Pres., W. S. Aldrich, N. Y. City.
Sec., Holland A. Davis, M. D., Denver, Col.
Treas., Wm. T. Kimball, Lawrence, Mass.

GEO. J. CARTER, Pres. U. S. Rev. Soc.

The number of ballots cast for each candidate can be obtained by any member who may wish to ascertain in detail the result of any candidacy.

Sec. Davis informs us that the WEEKLY has been selected as Official Organ and that the announcement of Sales Superintendent will be made shortly. Tentative rules for the guidance of the Sales Superintendent are under consideration and the machinery will be put in motion as soon as possible.

Thinking that our readers and especially the members of the new society would be glad to know some of the particulars in the philatelic career of the president and secretary, we are glad to subjoin a few facts that will be read with interest.

When the new revenue society was formed it was very natural that the members should elect for its first president, one whose name is known to every one of their number and personally known by most of them, George J. Carter of Brooklyn, N. Y., whose likeness we are pleased to present in this number.

Mr. Carter was born in 1864 and commenced collecting in 1875. The fever left him shortly after and for about ten years his interest in philately waned. Though he lost his collection he did not entirely forget the hobby. About 1890 when in the importing business, he received from Calcutta a sample bundle of old paper stock weighing 600 pounds which, when opened, consisted mainly of old letters and envelopes from English houses to their Calcutta correspondents.

From this lot Mr. Carter found over 1,000, 1847 one shilling Great Britain in singles, pairs and blocks, besides thousands of other English stamps including a large quantity of £1 and £5. This revived the collecting spirit. About five years later, in 1895, an opportunity came to Mr. Carter of purchasing the old ledgers and other books of a New York banking firm. This contained many thousands of revenues of all issues and values the lot being valued according to catalog at over $10,000. It was this that started him as a dealer and from that time until the present, his advertisements have been constantly before the public.

Mr. Carter's name has always been associated with U. S. revenues and when the demand of numerous collectors for an album exclusively for revenues and M. and M. stamps was made, it was he who undertook the publication. The album itself is one of the finest ever gotten out, but he regrets that from a financial standpoint it has made a serious loss. However, Mr. Carter takes this philosophically. He says "if my efforts to get out an album has afforded the purchasers as much happiness as their letters to me would indicate I don't mind the loss." Our revenue-dealer has always dealt in stamps for the pleasure it has afforded him as a pastime. All the cash realized has been spent in buying more stamps. He figures that in 15 years he has spent $3,000, and as it would take $20,000 to buy his stock and collection, he really feels that he can consider stamp collecting a profitable pastime.

Mr. Carter is a member of the American Philatelic Assn. and the Boston Philatelic Society. He is intensely interested in everything that pertains to the work of the new society, and the members will find him energetic and enthusiastic in promoting its welfare.

Holland A. Davis, the capable and energetic secretary of the new society, to whom is due very largely the success that has attended the movement, was born in New York City, June 9, 1869. In 1875 when a school boy, he became interested in stamps. At this time he gathered up most everything that came his way and housed his small treasures in a Scott's Imperial album which he still preserves, calling it his baby collection.

For several years now he has specialized in U. S. postage. One would suppose that this subject had been worn threadbare, but the columns of this paper bear evidence to his painstaking researches along this line. He also collects U. S. revenues (including tax paids), Cuba, Porto Rico, Philippines, Hawaii, Guam, Samoa, D. W. I. and Canal Zone, also U. S. proofs (on India paper only) which latter he has nearly complete.

Dr. Davis has a diploma from the New York University, also graduating from the Washington University later where he obtained his degree. In 1892 he removed to St. Louis, later removing to Cleveland, O., where he practiced until 1902. At this time he took advantage of a very favorable business proposition which took him to Pittsburg, Pa., removing to Denver, Col., in 1905, because of the ill health of Mrs. Davis. He is the assistant manager of the Underwood Typewriter Co. in that city.

HOLLAND A. DAVIS, M.D., Sec. U.S. Rev. Soc.

Dr Davis has undoubted business qualifications combining rare executive ability with an untiring devotion to detail. The writer knows whereof he speaks, as during the past three months he has been in close touch with him in the work incidental to the organization of the new revenue society. He is of a quiet unassuming nature, yet impresses one at once with his good nature and absolute fairness. Mr. Nast who favors us with the details herein given, states that he is a delightful comrade, "just the one to talk stamps with."

As secretary of the Denver Stamp Club, which Dr. Davis was largely instrumental in organizing, his work has been so satisfactory that he has just been unanimously elected to a second term. Denver philately considers him invaluable in the promotion of the local philatelic life. Our new secretary is a hard worker and will spare neither time nor labor in putting the society on a firm footing. Mr. Nast in closing his letter declares that philately will see more of Dr. Davis in coming months and his capabilities will be known only to be admired and appreciated.

Long life to the U. S Revenue Society! It has a worthy aim and manned and officered by philatelists who are inspired with the idea of dignifying the stamps of their own country success should crown their efforts.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centres. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—The Nassau Stamp Co. is enlarging its business—securing more help and preparing for a very lively solicitation of trade.

—The J. T. Starr Stamp Co. sends us their new price-list for 1907 8. It is a well printed book of 40 pages, exploiting the stamps and philatelic supplies stocked by this firm. It will no doubt be sent free of charge on application.

—The list of stamps with single CA watermark advertised by Chas. S. Osgood is a notable contribution to the advertising in this number. There are few dealers that can surpass Mr. Osgood in this special line of stamps to which he has given much attention and invested heavily. We have no doubt this adv. will be a business bringer.

—Acknowledgments are hereby made to the Soule Art Co. for courtesy extended us in the use of the picture "Spirit of '76," from which our cover plate was made. Our readers will, we are sure, appreciate the courtesy even as much as do the publishers.

—The Co-operative Exchange of Brooklyn, N. Y., has of late been making a specialty of mail auction sales, and the catalog before us describing the contents of the sixth sale, to be held March 9, is a well written and nicely printed affair. A good line of United States is noted, while a general line of foreign, in which Uruguay is strong, offers a good variety. The more than 400 lots should have something of interest to the large majority of our readers.

—Reference to our editorial page will disclose the fact that the name of F. B. Kirby will no longer be found in the corner of the WEEKLY where his announcements have so regularly appeared. Mr. Lewis, who has bought the Kirby stock, will no doubt be glad to have us inform our readers that he will be only too pleased to continue business with Mr. Kirby's former patrons with the assurance that satisfaction will in all cases be guaranteed. This, by way of introduction of Mr. Lewis, who is an old friend and admirer of the WEEKLY.

—A. W. Weigel of Cleveland, O., favors us with a couple of valentines, one sentimental while the other is more practical. The sentimental is a Tuckcard, in imitation of a 1c postage stamp, nicely perforated, but the picture of Franklin is replaced by Cupid. The practical consists of no less than four new six months subscriptions to the WEEKLY. The combination was such as to make glad the heart of the editor.

—The Sunday papers of Feb. 17 had a great deal in them of a philatelic nature. One article was "Cretan Mythology Shown in Stamps," written by Mr. Burroughs under the auspices of the National Stamp Committee, and the other an article on "Confederate Stamps," written by Mr. Adams of New York City. Considerable of the information contained in the last named article was supplied by members of the National Stamp Committee, though not prepared under its auspices. Dr. J. C. McGuire of Washington favors us with the first copy of the Confederate article, while to Wm. L. Hamilton, Jr., we are indebted for both. Mr. Hamilton also sends us two other clippings of philatelic value.

—Receipt of clippings from the following is acknowledged with thanks: T. C. Mann, E. Harris, Irving Blake, Henry M. Rydstrom, Day Kimball, John Terry, Wm. N. T. Flanders, H. W. Boers (3), Mrs. H. E. Ives, J. M. Hobbs, M. E. Connolly, F. D. Goodhue, C. A. Brewster and Dr. A. P. Lee.

—The Dane Stamp Company, formerly of Mazomanie, Wis., has removed to Chicago, where, in a modern office building, it will at once be a commanding figure in Chicago stamp circles and a decided acquisition to commercial philately in that city. The large stock of the concern is transferred in its entirety to the new location, and the company at the outset will be better equipped than ever before to cater to the wants of its patrons. It is fair to say that its removal to Chicago widens the opportunities for fuller business fruition, and that the Dane Company, by its recent strokes of enterprise, has become a strong factor in the concerns of the financial world of philately.

—Lovers of new issues have been interested in the new stamp issuing British colony Brunei. The chief town has a little less than 10,000 population, and is built entirely on the water. An English paper states that communication is possible only by boat. Brunei, the name of this town, is distant from Labuan by a five hours steamer trip.

—The February meeting of the Chicago Branch One, American Philatelic Association was very well attended; and its political aspect was strongly pronounced. A nominating committee, consisting of Messrs. Rosenthal, L. Michael and Boehm, was appointed to report on further nominations to complete the ticket at the next meeting.

—The annual meeting of the stockholders of the United Stamp Company, Chicago, will be held at the offices of the corporation on the afternoon of March 4th.

NEW APPLICATIONS.

As soon as your name has been published as an applicant you will probably have unsolicited selections of stamps sent you on approval. As a great many collectors object to this practice the Association desires to break the practice up. Please aid us and help protect yourself and others against further imposition, by holding such selections without purchasing any, until sufficient funds have been sent by the dealer to return it to him by registered mail. Also please report the names of such dealers to the Secretary of the Association.

SALES SUPT., REPORT No. 23.

CHICAGO, Feb. 16, 1907.

From Dec. 10th, 1906, to Feb. 16th

194	Books received, priced,		$4,867.95
1548	Previously reported,		41,435.90
1742	Books	Total,	$46,303.85
	From which deduct
98	Retired, priced	$1892.19 sold	646.91
335	Previously retired,	9139.16 "	2539.85
433	Total,	$11,031.35 "	$3186.76

Old members on circuits who are neglectful, are reminded that there are many new members on the waiting list for special circuits, and because of a shortage of books for the past two or three months, I will be compelled to give the new members preference in the future, as they agree to forward all circuits promptly when they apply for circuits. The delay in forwarding circuits promptly not only causes congestion on various routes, but delays the retirements of books as well and makes other members dissatisfied. While you keep a circuit overtime, other members are waiting for it.

All "once a week" circuits will have to be abandoned till a sufficient number of new books are received to resume the service, which I trust will be at an early date. The many new members applying for circuits makes this course absolutely necessary.

There is no better time than the present to send in books of good medium priced stamps. Cheap stuff and inferior material will not go, but classified books by countries, 20th Century stamps and British Colonials are in constant demand by members. The right stamps at right prices will sell well and quick, but all slow or poor material handicaps the Department badly.

Members are requested to particularly note that only the very best hinges must be used in the books and if they will follow the suggestions of mounting and pricing as printed on the cover of the books, their stamps will sell at least 10% better and quicker.

The Superintendent also requests members to notify him at once, and if possible send the cover of any circuit forwarded to them, that is not sent by SEALED REGISTERED mail, postage on which is 22 cts. Every member should make it a personal matter to see that circuits intrusted to him are properly and safely handled as per the rules. Circuits range in value from $150 00 to $1100 00 and should certainly be safeguarded by members to the utmost, especially as they are the property of other members.

Towns with 5 or more Association members will find it to their interest to form Branches of the Assn. and appoint one of their number to act as Branch Manager. This will give members better and quicker service and cut down their postage expense.

THE DENVER STAMP CLUB.

C. A. NAST, Pres.; O. K. CARSTARPHEN, Vice Pres.; H. A. DAVIS, Sec'y, 1622 Welton St.; W. G. SWART, Treas.; S. SCHWERZMANN, Sales Mgr.; Trustees, A. M. BALLAU, J. S. DAVIS and W. W. BIGLER.

DENVER, COLO., Feb. 6th, 1907.

With an attendance of 18 members and 4 visitors, the 15th regular monthly meeting opened with President Nast presiding. Minutes of previous meeting were read and approved. Communication from E. H. Hall was read and Secretary instructed to reply. The resignation of O. T. Hartman was accepted. Stamps were presented to the Club by H. F. Behneman, A. H. Hoffman, R. T. Bunney, and W. G. Swart. The regular auction was held, every lot bringing very near catalog prices.

The Arrangement Committee of 22d Annual Convention A. P. A. met with the sub-committees appointed from the Club Members. There being no further business the Club was called into committee of the whole by President Nast, comprising the Arrangement Committee and all sub-committees. The Secretary was instructed to withhold minutes of this session from publication. The chair announced that the Arrangement Committee would meet every Wednesday afternoon at 5.00 P. M. from Feb. 6th until the opening of the 22d Annual Convention.

At 10.00 P. M. the Club was called from Committee of the whole and adjourned for half hour entertainment. Several collections were examined and the usual informal exchange carried on. Meeting adjourned 11.30.

H. A. DAVIS, Sec'y.

THE MIDNIGHT VISITOR

OR THE UNKNOWN VARIETY—(Concluded).

BY E. L. WARNER.

Grill bought quite a valuable collection of stamps of Mr. Strange, and included was the 10 zede of Zederland. The lawyer departed cheered and smiling. As he was leaving, Grill said: "If you get a wireless phone or a heavy mail from Zederland, let us know."

"Yes, and if the doctor comes back I will have him call," said Mr. Strange, and so departed.

"You do not appear to believe this tale of Strange, Grill."

"Oh, as to that," said Grill, "there is more improbable yarns in books which races of people have believed for centuries."

"It is nearly morning; your birthday is over," said Wilson.

After breakfast, Pete showed in the office where Wilson and Grill were enjoying their first cigar of the day, a lady of sad countenance in black.

"Excuse my intrusion. Do not cease smoking. My late husband was addicted to the weed. I am Mrs. Hampton; my husband was Dr. Hampton. I called to consult Mr. Grill professionally," said the lady.

"Proceed, madame, I am Grill; this is my associate, Mr. Wilson, a rather poor artist from choice and endowed with great detective ability by nature."

"Let us hear your case," said Wilson.

"Dr. Hampton was an inventor. He took a journey in an airship of his own make some time since and I believe by this time is dead like his companion on his journey, a Mr. Morgan, whose body was found; but I wish to make sure. I have abundant means and I wish to prosecute an inquiry and see if he was ever heard of afterwards. I come to you on recommendation of an old friend of the doctor's."

"Very well, madam, I will undertake the case. I have all the published particulars of his ascent in my scrap book of daily happenings of unusual character."

"I wish to add that the doctor was a stamp collector and that he left a fine collection which I have carefully guarded. Returning yesterday from a visit to my mother, I found the stamps had disappeared. I kept them in a bookcase drawer in my back parlor and no one at home appears to have seen them since I put them away.

"Very well, madame, I make note of the same," said Grill.

"We will do our best to assist you," said Wilson. "Call again in three days and I will report on the matter."

"What fee shall I leave you, Mr. Grill?"

"Well, I will present a bill later. I will not overcharge you. Good-day," he said, as the lady departed.

"Well, what do you think of that, Wilson?" said Grill.

"Well as long as you operated on earth I was with you, but this taking a case covering two worlds is a little too much for my nerves," said Wilson, who lay down on the lounge for a nap.

Grill was at the 'phone. "Did you follow that caller of last night as I told you?"

"Yes," came the answer.

"What's your report?"

"He is staying at the York Inn. He is registered as Dr. Strange. He has some baggage. No callers. He writes much in his room. Received no mail."

"Keep on his trail," returned Grill over the 'phone.

"After you went to sleep on the lounge, I 'phoned a party in Greenville and found there that Lawyer Strange has been dead some time but that a Dr. Hampton was executor of his estate; closed up his affairs and paid all the debts but that he took Mr. Strange's collection of stamps and a letter addressed to him, the first as his reward for his services, the second as his right. The heirs were satisfied. We have since learned that Dr. Hampton is missing, that he left home with Mr. Morgan in an airship and at his home he has not been heard of since that event. But no one questioned the identity of Dr. Hampton. That he was executor here after the airship incident we have learned also but we found no record of the landing of his airship or was Dr. Hampton present at the Morgan inquest. No one thought further about the matter at the time, but we have reason to believe that the Dr. Hampton of the airship and the executor are one and the same. Strange to say, no one thought of him here as the inventor of the airship, while posing as the executor, but only as a friendly physician appointed executor by the will and known to the heirs. Now this person with whom I have communicated by 'phone in Greenville is a reliable

GEMS

There's quality in this short list of goods. They are stamps you don't see offered by everyone at cut-throat rates. Why? Simply because they are scarce, and by the way, if you want the prices on hundreds and hundreds of other good ones, send for our Bargain Bulletin No. 5 (8 big pages).

MEKEEL-SEVERN-WYLIE CO., - BOSTON, MASS.

operative and is to be believed. Now, Wilson, what is your idea, so far as we have gone?"

"I think the matter proves interesting; the 10 zede stamp is pen engraved, if that will help you any."

"Well, you must excuse me, Wilson, for a few hours; but take this collection over to the home of Mrs. Hampton and ask her if it is not her husband's."

Wilson returned and likewise informed Grill, back from his trip, that the collection undoubtedly was that which belonged to her husband, only it was larger than when she remembered it.

"I arrested Strange," said Grill, "he owned up to the fraud and has returned to his wife. He landed safely the same night he took flight in his ship but his machine got away and was lost in the dim heights. A darky gardener said that he saw the doctor's ghost go in and out once in awhile; Mrs. Hampton was at her mother's. On one occasion the doctor carried a parcel, the darky said, but he told no one. The 10 zede and the letters were purely a farce, and his motive was this: He calculated to pose as having returned from the dark planet, and was in no hurry to return to his wife; he arrived at Greenville just in time to settle the estate; the heirs agreed and it was settled up quickly, but he was out of funds and had to sell the stamps or return to his wife in order to obtain money. Had he stuck to one name and identity, he might have puzzled the servants. He found the letter addressed to him by Strange; that was real but the rest was the fabric of a disordered brain. No doubt, he ascended to a great height and for a time was unconscious; and it may be that he helped Morgan to fall through the trap. His wife will place him under restraint in a sanitarium, for a time, anyway. He paid me all that I am out and a bonus; and I returned him his collection which was composed of his own and Strange's stamps."

"His yarns and your pictures are about on a par."

"How so?"

"Too full of imagination and not carefully drawn."

"Well, it made an interest for you on your birthday."

"Perhaps it was he, Strange, no, I mean Hampton, who scared the cat," said Wilson.

"Yes, he looked in the window; I found the print of his feet, large traveling shoes, in the soft earth, but it was the dog which frightened the cat, and he roused the dog, to my belief. Did you think that there may be more truth in his story than we have credited it with?"

"Well, there are dark spots in space where light has never been. One of his tales is untrue, and both may be. There is certainly a little lapse of time between the death of Lawyer Strange and the flight of the Hampton machine; knowing human nature well, he may have concealed the real truth, which he might have thought no one would believe."

Some years afterwards, Dr. Hampton called one evening on Grill, and said: "A few years back, I was pronounced to be of sound mind, and resumed my avocation of inventor. After much labor I have produced an airship, superior to the first one I built, and I am about to take a journey in it. Before leaving, I wish to present you with my collection of stamps. If I never return it is yours; if I come back alive, I shall reclaim it. My wife is long since dead. I have taken no one into my confidence, except a few trustworthy and skilled men of science I have employed in making my ship."

"I follow you," said Grill.

"Further, I wish to confess that I am not exactly sure of what really did happen to me on my previous voyage in the air. The tale that I told you was a mixture of a clouded memory and a vivid imagination, but in spite of myself, I appear to have a memory of having touched the mountains of another world. However, I put the idea from me as I am unable to prove it; I now await the result of my coming flight."

"When do you start?" asked Grill.

"Sometime tomorrow night."

"Did you have the 10 zede stamp engraved yourself?" asked Grill.

"I do not remember having done so."

"Did you not write that letter you addressed Lawyer Strange on this earth?"

"I only remember finding his letter in my pocket, and none in the safe but I do not claim it is so; but that is to the best of my recollection."

"Will you take a passenger this time?" queried Grill.

"No, I go alone."

"Well, I wish you luck."

Not long after the departure of Hampton, Grill missed one of his carrier pigeons; and the following day, the bird arrived with a letter tied to him and returned with the 10 zede. The letter read: "I have attained a great height; the ship works well and I am in good health and spirits. If I am not far up, the pigeon will reach you; I have stamped the letter with the 10 zede that you may know it is genuine."

Time rolled on and Wilson and Grill awaited further tidings of Dr. Hampton but nothing further was ever learned. Grill never considered the Hampton collection his, but the 10 zede he regarded as his own.

"Grill," said Wilson, "I never found any notice or account of Dr. Hampton's voyage; and the pigeon was not overfatigued from his journey, you tell me. I believe that the doctor never left the earth but that his last was a crazy yarn, such as his first."

"Well, Wilson, I have verified the fact that he left his farm in an airship, but I judge he could see the spires of the town when he released the pigeon," said Grill.

"You will see some day that he will be after that collection," said Wilson.

"I have made inquiry, but up to this date, he is lost as far as I can learn."

At this point, the 'phone rang loudly.

"Hello," said Grill.

"There's no one on your line now," said central.

"That's strange," said Grill, "I am sure that I was quite prompt."

"I'll tell you who it was," said Wilson.

"Who?" asked Grill.

"That's Hampton; he's trying to reach you by wireless 'phone since he can no longer send you a stamped letter."

—The French Semeuse stamp is causing much fun. First the poor girl's sun went down and then even the ground was taken away from under her poor feet! The Frenchmen evidently expect her to sow her good seed in the dark and when she has not a grain of soil left of the whole earth! One of our European contemporaries depicts her as quitting the stamp and running away with the exclamation: "I'll not play alone any more!"

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centres. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—We shall be pleased to send reprints of the index published last week to any of our subscribers who apply for the same.

—The space taken advertising the Circular issued by the Scott Stamp & Coin Co. must certainly attract the attention of every reader of the WEEKLY. That two columns of space should be used to advertise this publication is an evidence not only of the value of the WEEKLY as an advertising medium, but as well of the virtues of this little monthly periodical that the Scott people will use as a medium for communication with their patrons.

—Chicago boasts of a postal employe who has canceled, during his connection of forty-seven years with the Chicago postoffice, the stamps of every perforated issue of the United States from the first; he joined the service June 1, 1860, and is now sixty-six years of age.

—William C. Stone informs us that an article appears in the Spectator for Feb. 9 dealing with "The Progress of Postage Stamps." It is quite readable.

—The Nassau Stamp Co. has written a contract for advertising space and their announcements will be found regularly in our columns. For the present space has been assigned at the top of column three on page 4. Our readers may be perfectly at ease in engaging in business relations with this company.

—We acknowledge receipt of clippings with thanks, from the following: J. R. Wilson, James M. Porter, W. W. Jewett, Thomas C. Keyes, Wm. L. Hamilton, Jr., W. G. Swart and T. S. Brophy.

—Henry J. Crocker, San Francisco, universally famous as a collector, was in Chicago recently.

—B. Max Mehl is sending out a very nicely printed catalog of his third mail auction sale ending March 16, 1907. There are listed over 1000 lots of coins, medals and paper money and over 100 lots of gold. A fine collection of rare encased postage stamps will be of especial interest to philatelists. Mr. Mehl gives a cordial invitation to all our readers to call upon him when "Down in Texas."

—Dr. Davis of Denver, Col., recently passed through the experience of losing from his overcoat an A. P. A. circuit consisting of ten books valued at close to $600 00. Upon advertising for the same in the daily press Dr. Davis was very much relieved by having a gentleman call upon him whose little girl had "found a number of small books containing stamps, but had sold them to boys and girls at school at 5c per book." Upon search being instituted all the missing stamps were recovered and the lot forwarded to Mr. Wolsieffer for examination. It was a narrow escape for the genial Dr.

—At the meeting of the Chicago Philatelic Society, held February 21st, a competition was held that excited much interest. Enlarged drawings, faithful to the small cuts in the catalogue of ten watermarks, were shown on cards; and a half minute was allowed for the writing of the name of the country that used the watermarks, shown in turn. The V. R., italics, watermark of British Bechuanaland and the quatrefoil ornament No. 88, in the watermark chart, assigned to Queensland, were especially difficult. No contestant had a perfect marking, but it should be added that the dealers present did not all compete. Prizes were won by A. Roterburg, H. A. Fowler and Leonard Michael.

—In the last installment of revenue matter sent in by Mr. Nast, reference was made to the condition of affairs existing until recently in the M. F. A. The paragraph stated "That friction in the past was caused mainly, to put it very mildly, by the incompetency of its chief officer." In justice to George W. Pepper, who served very efficiently and faithfully in the official life of this association, we wish to state that Mr. Nast intended no reference to Mr. Pepper. We are glad to clear the atmosphere of any suspicion of breach of official trust that might possibly have been placed upon this gentleman.

—At the meeting of the Chicago Philatelic Society held recently, Mr. Speakman favored the members present with blocks of the one-cent and two-cent, current issue, imperforate, which he purchased in sheets at the Chicago postoffice. A Chronicle reporter, who was at the meeting, in writing of the distribution of these stamps supplemented the account with a reference to the circumstances of the issue of the imperforates; the article was headed: "Fools Stamp Collectors. Young Man gets Imperforate Rolls of Two Cent Variety."

U. S. IMPERFORATE STAMPS.

Supplementing the information given in last week's issue of the WEEKLY we are now able to state that the post office at Chicago was supplied with both the 1 and 2c values as far back as Oct. 5, 1906 Postmaster Fred A. Busse states that the office has thus far received 1,000,000 of the 1c and 2,000,000 of the 2c.

In addition to this number supplied to the Chicago post office 50,000 of each value have been, as stated last week, delivered to the Washington post office. The total issue to date can thus be readily figured.

A. M. Travers, acting Third Asst. P. M. Genl., in reply to a query, informs us that "no applications have been received for unperforated stamps other than the 1c and 2c, but if other denominations should be desired in this form for actual postal purposes requests therefore would be given careful consideration."

We are under obligations to several of our readers who have kindly endeavored to render us assistance in ascertaining the facts in regard to the issue of these imperforate stamps.

EDITORIAL.

A Proper Perspective—In the desire of philatelists to spread their doctrine before the minds, varying in degrees of receptiveness, of the philatelically unknowing public, and in pressing a campaign of education that is now at floodtide, it is natural that philatelic partizans place stress on the sensational or spectacular features of the hobby. The wish to impress the layman and to command his interest and respect leads the philatelic advocate to present the most striking aspects of stamp collecting. It is not to be argued that it is unwise to quote, say the poetry of philately, but it becomes the more effective when it is alternated with some of the prose of philately. Collectors, dealers and all philatelic publicians are working for an admirable end, which may be the better attained if art as well as heart engages in the exploitation of the hobby. There is a possibility that the outsider may be entertained by what he hears of stamps and collections and their makers, without thinking of applying the suggestions of the information to himself and venturing on the philatelic path. He may judge that stamp collecting is for the classes instead of the masses; the tales of noteworthy philatelists and of collections of fabulous value may cause him to wonder if the hobby is to be pursued by one who is in an ordinary station in life. It is necessary to give the philatelic publicity a nicely human touch if the possibilities for good are to be expanded to the utmost. Philately is not composed wholly of superlatives; there are first issue Mauritius, Missionaries and Millburys it is true, but there are stamps that are closer to the ordinary collector, and these should be spoken of also, if the hobby is to be placed in the proper perspective to the eye of the non-collector who is a possibility.

In Point—Several instances of erroneous impression of philately made on outsiders may be cited; and the cases in question are typical of others. One gentleman of intelligence who learned that an acquaintance was a stamp collector, used these words, in effect: "I have seen a good bit about stamp collecting in the newspapers. It takes lots of money to collect, doesn't it? Some stamps are worth thousands of dollars, and a man over in Paris has a collection valued at over a million. I see that King Edward and President Roosevelt collect stamps; the King has every stamp there is." The collector explained briefly about philately, whereupon the non-collector said that he thought that only valuable stamps were collected, and that the ordinary stamps, such as might be had for little effort and money, had no standing as objects of collection. He added that he thought he would like to collect; and he was started on his philatelic career by his experienced friend. A boy said that he would like to collect stamps, but that he read that stamps cost so much money that only those who were very rich could afford to buy them. He was shown that he could buy a thousand stamps for a few dollars; a hundred for a few cents, or get a few stamps for nothing. He was told that the smallest sum that he might save by denying himself an occasional doubtful pleasure could be invested in stamps with some lasting satisfaction. He started to collect; his mother approved of his doing so, and has just subscribed to a stamp paper for him.

Sixty-Five Years Ago—A letter well worthy of attention has been received from Dr. S. E. Young, Baywood, Virginia, who says: "I have a copy of the postoffice department's 'Table of Post Offices in the United States,' on the 31st of January, 1842. It is an interesting old work, as it not only gives the name and location of each postoffice at that time, but also the name of the postmaster at each office, together with the distance of each office from Washington, and from the capital of the state in which the office is situated. Among the 'Instructions to Postmasters,' the following 'Rates of Letter Postage' appear: 'For every letter composed of a single sheet conveyed not over thirty miles, six cents; over thirty and not exceeding eighty miles, ten cents; over eighty and not exceeding 150 miles, twelve and one-half cents; over one hundred and fifty, and not exceeding four hundred miles, eighteen and three-quarters cents; over four hundred miles, twenty-five cents.' Only three classes of mail matter are specified: Letters, newspapers and pamphlets; on the last-named there are two rates of postage, under the classifications of periodical and non-periodical, respectively. To me, the most significant statement in the volume is this: 'Stamps will be furnished from the Department to those offices only, which collect in postage, one hundred dollars or more, each quarter.' Now, in view of the fact that we have no general issue of stamps before 1847, please tell me what kind of 'stamps' could be referred to in the notice quoted, which was printed in 1842, or five years before the first general or purely governmental issue appeared. When was the first annual postal guide issued?"

Explanation Made—To consider the last question asked in the preceding paragraph first, we may say that we have seen U. S. postal statistics in a gazeteer published in this country, about 1800, but they were of the baldest kind, as may be imagined when it is recollected that Congress did not organize the postoffice department until 1789, the date of the adoption of the Constitution. If by postal guide, our correspondent means a volume or pamphlet of the kind described by him, we cannot give him any information. To analyze the significance of the word "stamps," as used in the old postal guide for 1842, it is necessary to remember that in 1842 there was no adhesive stamps in use, except those of the City Despatch Post (Greig's Post) which was a letter-carrying company, established in New York City, January 1st, 1842. It is said that the Act of March 3rd, 1845, naming the uniform rate of five and ten cents, as originally drafted, embodied "provisions for the prepayment of postage and the use of adhesive stamps on letters to foreign countries; but neither provision was contained in the Act as passed." It is seen that the government was not supplied with adhesive stamps until 1847, and so could not have furnished such stamps to postmasters in 1842. The reference to the collection of postage in money in the sentence mentioning stamps, forces the conviction that "stamps" meant the dies used for stamping the letter-sheets "Paid" when the postage was prepaid in cash; otherwise, the postmaster would have to write the notice that postage had been paid. In 1842, the word "stamps," when used by our postoffice department, did not have the significance that it now carries, it is needless to say.

Dogs of War Let Loose—Despite the efforts of American mediators to preserve peace between the republics of Honduras and Nicaragua, war has been declared. An army that invaded Nicaragua has been repulsed with the regulation "great slaughter." Notwithstanding this set-back, the Honduraneans are represented as seething with military ardor; and "government employees are to go unpaid until peace returns. Whatever money can be got must go for military purposes." We trust that the postoffice officials of both the countries concerned are so filled with glowing patriotism that they will forget to take advantage of occasions to issue war stamps.

Climax—March is considered generally the best month on the philatelic calendar. It records the high-water mark of the season, as a rule. Indeed, philately may now be said to be at perihelion. The volume of the business done by dealers each March amounts in the aggregate to a figure higher than that reached any other month, we believe; and in the case of this present March, it may be that the total will be greater than it ever was before.

—Prof. Loewy favors us with a used specimen of Corea 5p green, Scott's catalog A6 with a surcharge in black and the entire outfit, stamp, surcharge and cancellation, is pronounced by C. A. Howes as a fake. Collectors will do well to beware of this counterfeit.

—In a letter just at hand P. M. Wolsieffer observes: "Demand for fine conditioned stamps greater than the supply." Our friend P. M. is a good judge of trade prospects, and we take this remark as a tribute to the improved trade conditions that have been prophesied during the past year.

QUERIES AND COMMENT.

Edited by C. E. SEVERN.

Our readers are cordially invited to ask the editor for any information desired concerning stamp collecting. Should a personal reply be desired kindly enclose postage. This department is for the beginner as well as the advanced collector. Address, C. E. SEVERN, 820 Oxford Bdg., Chicago Ill.

Two inquirers have asked regarding the stamps of Brunei that made their appearance early in 1895; and in view of the reference recently in a newspaper article—not circulated by the National Stamp Committee—to issues of stamps that were made without proper authority, to defraud stamp collectors, a few words of explanation may be timely. At the beginning of 1895, a set of ten stamps accredited to Brunei, ranging in denomination from ½c to one dollar, inclusive, was chronicled in the stamp papers, with more or less reserve. A communication addressed to the American Journal of Philately, dated in May, 1895, from a correspondent in Singapore, read as follows: "Since I wrote you yesterday morning I have heard from Labuan. It appears that the Sultan of Brunei has not been able to work the stamp business yet. He has only one clerk and the clerk's wife has been sick a long time so that business in Brunei has been at a standstill. This sounds absurd, but it is true. I shall make further inquiries before committing myself on your behalf." The following editorial comment was made at the time: "The letter goes on to state that the stamps are on the same footing as those of Sarawak and native states not in the postal union. We shall at least recognize these stamps until the clerk's wife is well." Evidently, the clerk's wife got well, for the stamps soon after were repudiated by philatelic investigators. We submit the following almanac statistics of the Sultanate of Brunei: A native state on the west coast of the island of Borneo. The total area is about 3,000 square miles. The territory was placed under British protection in 1888 The chief town, Brunei, has a population of about 5,000, and is built entirely on the water, communication being possible only by boat. Brunei is five hours by steamer from Labuan. It should be noticed that the first Brunei issue did not carry the necessary credentials, it not having been vised by the British authorities. We suppose that Brunei has made progressive strides since 1895, for now it is reported that the country is to have the stamps of Labuan surcharged for its use. When the catalogue had a section for speculative and fraudulent issues, respectively, the stamps of Brunei were listed under the category of the first named.

R.:—For the arbitrary arrangement of the stamps of Great Britain under the two divisions, line-engraved and surface printed, adopted by some cataloguers, the following premises as given in the preface to Westoby's catalogue of the stamps of Great Britain and Ireland, are presented: "It must be borne in mind that the line-engraved stamps were originally intended solely for internal use, and that it was not till after some years they were admitted to defray foreign postage. They never, however, entirely lost their exclusive character, and for forty years continued to be looked upon as a class distinct from those primarily issued for foreign postage, not only by philatelists, but by the public, owing possibly to the different manner by which they were produced by two separate firms. The division, therefore, into those produced from engraved plates and those printed typographically from casts, or by what is commonly known as surface-printing, has become a recognized one, the three embossed stamps being looked upon as temporary makeshifts, though they were the best that could be devised at a period when the science of stamp-making was in its infancy, unless line-engraving had been resorted to." (2) Stanley Gibbons' catalogue says of the ten pence red brown, 1865, Great Britain, watermarked heraldic emblems, that only some of the surplus sheets prepared for registration were issued to the public. The 1½ penny, 1860, lilac rose on bluish paper was prepared for use in 1860, but never issued; a contemplated change in the postal rate was not made and the stock of the stamps was destroyed, with the exception of a comparatively few sheets. The stamp was subsequently printed in rose red in 1870; three plates were prepared but the second was never used. Plate 1 is unnumbered. (3) All the British stamps, watermarked spray of rose, came in sheets of 240 stamps, divided into twelve panes of twenty stamps each; and this sheet arrangement prevailed for all the stamps that had been printed theretofore on paper watermarked with the four emblems, until the issue watermarked crown appeared. The 2½d, lilac-rose, 1875, was printed in sheets of 192 stamps, in two panes of ninety-six stamps each, in eight rows of 12. From the plating schemes just enumerated, the disposition of the check or control letters may be found.

P. G. G.:—All the stamps of the excessively rare first or 1850 set of British Guiana were initialled by the postmaster or one of his four clerks. (2) "Patimusque" of the motto on the second type of British Guiana is an error for "petimusque." (3) In one type of the 1868 issue, British Guiana, the space between the value and "cents" is one millimeter, while in the "wide space" variety, the distance is two millimeters.

According to Senf's Journal, the German imperial printery turns out on an average one and a half million post-cards, 20,000 postal-orders and twelve million postage stamps daily. When there is a rush on account of new issues, these figures become much larger. The printery produces also the necessary fiscal stamps.

CHRISTCHURCH, N. Z.

Christchurch is mentioned in No. 838 as the city in New Zealand where, on Nov. 1, 1906, an exhibition was opened for which a set of four stamps was issued that are described in the Chronicle of New Issues. It may please some of our readers to hear more of this city. It is the capital of the province of Canterbury, situated on the eastern coast of the South Island, 43 deg. 34 min. S. lat., and 172 deg. 35 min. E. lon.; on both banks of the small river Avon, about 5 miles from the sea. It is built upon the great Canterbury plain, which here is a dead level, though the monotony of the site has been much relieved by extensive plantations of English and Australian trees. The town is more than a mile square, and the streets, which are wide and well paved, cross one another for the most part at right angles. There are many fine buildings and modern improvements. Water is amply supplied from numerous artesian wells. The city is the center of the rapidly extending railway system of the province, and is connected with its port, Lyttelton, by a line eight miles in length, which penetrates the hills enclosing Port Cooper, on which Lyttelton stands, by means of a tunnel a mile in length. The population is near 60,000, and altogether the city is one of the important New Zealand centers.

As we learn from J H. Moore of Waimate, South Canterbury, N. Z., the stamps were obtainable at the exhibition grounds only, and are considered as likely to become scarce soon after the close of the exhibition. New Zealand collectors no doubt have laid in a fair supply, but whether this supply will be sufficient to satisfy the collectors of the world is a question.—REV. L. G. DORPAT.

You need this because it will keep you in touch with market values — The small cost of 12 cents should not stand in the way.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES.

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Any information regarding new issues will be gratefully received and acknowledged. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. The figures in parentheses refer to the previous number of the WEEKLY in which the same country was noticed

ANTIGUA.—Der Philatelist reports that the ½d and 2½d have appeared all in one color and on ordinary multiple paper.

Adhesives.

½d green.
2½d blue.

BRITISH GUIANA.—Der Philatelist reports that several values of the current set have appeared all in one color on white paper, with multiple watermark. The 12c has also appeared on the same paper in changed colors.

Adhesives.

2c red.
4c brown violet.
5c blue.
6c gray black.
12c orange yellow and lilac.

BRITISH HONDURAS.—Der Philatelist reports several new values of the current King's Head set. all on paper watermarked Crown CA and perforated 14.

Adhesives.

10c lilac and light green
25c dark lilac and orange.
50c green and red.
$1 green and dark red.
$2 green and blue.
$5 green and black.

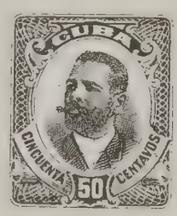
Ewen reports that the 1c King's Head stamp has been issued on chalky multiple paper.

BRUNEI.—The new pictorial set for this colony has been printed and specimen copies already circulated, according to Der Philatelist. A view of Brunei is printed in the centre, with the name of the colony at the top, "Postage and Revenue" at the sides with the value in words at the foot with figures in each corner. The stamps are printed on multiple paper and perforated 14.

Adhesives.

1c green and black.
2c red and gray black.
3c brown and gray black.
4c lilac and gray black.
5c blue and gray black.
8c orange yellow and gray black.
10c dark green and gray black.
25c light brown and blue.
30c black and violet.
50c dark brown and green.
$1 grey and red.

CUBA.—We give an illustration herewith of the new 50c stamp chronicled last week.



DENMARK.—Stanley Gibbons, Inc., and the North Shore Stamp Co. have shown us specimens of the new 20 ö. The design is the same as the previous issue excepting that the picture of King Frederick replaces that of King Christian while underneath are the letters "F. R." topped by a crown. The color is slate blue and the entire effect is quite pleasing.

Adhesive.

20o slate blue.

DOMINICA.—The North Shore Stamp Co. have shown us the half penny green on chalky paper. This makes the set issued to date consist of the following:—½d, 2d, 2½d and 2sh.

EGYPT.—L. Colucci sends us a copy of the current 5m stamp with the new service overprint, "O. H. H. S." with the usual inscription in native characters below, the whole being in two lines in black. The native inscription has an addition in the form of an upright stroke with ceriph only at top like a figure "1" but turned towards the right. Mr. Colucci says the official stamps appeared February 1 and included all values from 1m to 10m. They are to be used for the Government correspondence, which has been free hitherto, but for which the postal authorities will now have to pay annually to the Railway Administration £30,000. At present no unused official stamps can be obtained.

Sudan.—Mr. Colucci also sends us a copy of the new 4m Sudan stamp. The design is the same as the other values, though the centre appears to be from a lithographic transfer, though its muddy appearance may be the result of imperfect printing.

Adhesive.

4m olive brown and pale blue.

NICARAGUA — Stanley Gibbons, Inc., have shown us a number of varieties of the various surcharges chronicled in recent numbers. We note the following:—

15 ("c" missing) on 1c green.
20c (tall thin 0) on 2c rose.
20c " " " 5c blue.
50c " " " 6c slate.

PANAMA.—It has been claimed that the 2c Panama of the new set was issued not for Panama itself but for the purpose of being surcharged to use in the Canal Zone. In No. 836 of the WEEKLY we noted the fact that a specimen had been submitted evidently performing postal duty on a letter from Panama to the States and a correspondent in the Canal Zone is very much interested in this situation. Unable for obvious reasons to give his name we quote from his letter which reads as follows:—

"I have called several times at the Panama post-office for this stamp and been told that it was not for sale and was only to meet the needs of the Canal Zone. It appears to me that any that have gone out without the surcharge were obtained through favoritism. It is of course a perfectly regular and legitimate stamp and available for postage if one possesses it and desires to use it that way, but none of these stamps can be obtained by outside parties excepting what are called for in the requisitions made upon the Panama postal authorities. It is no business of the Zone what the Panama Republic does with its stamps. All the Zone has to do is to see that its stamps are surcharged as provided by treaty but everything purchased from the Panama people must receive the surcharge.

"You doubtless are aware that the domestic postage rate for the republic is 5 centavos or 2½ centesimos, therefore you will see the reason why the stamp is superfluous. It would correspond to a 4 centavos value in the old series while the new 8 centesimos would be 16 centavos and we know there have never been any such values. For this reason I am looking to see the 8c also withdrawn from sale by the Panama Republic and used solely for the Zone, but this is mere conjecture. There is considerable speculation going on down here in Panama stamps so it will not surprise me if the Republic is selling these 2c stamps to a few favored parties. There is one thing you may be sure of in this connection and that is that the Zone administration is conducted for purely postal needs and any errors in the Zone stamps were not preventable, those appearing in the Panama surcharging being beyond our control."

We are grateful to our correspondent for his observations upon postal conditions existing on the Isthmus, into which he seems to have a very clear insight.

PHILIPPINES.—While we have chronicled the new revenue set recently issued we take the liberty of quoting the following from a letter from Mr. Siddall: "The design of the revenue set is a modification of the old issue, but the stamps are slightly smaller vertically, and are engraved in a very artistic manner. The centavos values have a cocoanut tree in the center, and the peso values a copy of the same figure that appears in the center of the old issue, and the white spaces for the numbers are much larger than in the old issue. The frame of the stamp is something like the frame of the new Special Delivery stamp. The colors are very handsome, and the general effect of the stamps is very fine. The values are the same as in the old set.

"These stamps are not sold to anyone except those authorized by law to buy them. Each stamp has a serial number, of which a record is kept at the time of purchase, and the government is very careful to recover every stamp after it has been used, and has a large force of clerks comparing the halves of the stamps, after use, to see that no illegal use is made of the stamps, and that every stamp sold is returned to the government."

British Colonies, Single Watermark.

My new price-list of British Colonies, Single Watermark, is up-to-date in every respect and prices are as reasonable as quoted by any dealer. A copy will be mailed you on request. No dealer in the country can do any better by you than I am able to.

SARAWAK

A Complete History of Its Postage Stamps.
By Bertram W. H. Poole. Published by D. Field
(Fully Illustrated.)

I have recently published this volume dealing with the interesting and but little understood postal issues of Sarawak. It gives a very full description of all the minor varieties and types of the early issues, details the methods by means of which the stamps were produced, and tells all about the different styles of perforation and the various settings of the surcharges. It treats of a subject that has never been properly written up before and thus this volume is indispensable to collectors of Sarawak stamps and should also be in the possession of every active philatelist. You possibly have, quite unknowingly, some of the scarce types of Sarawak stamps and if you purchase a copy of this book you will learn how to identify them.

RARE STAMP SALE REALIZES $7,968.

High Prices Paid for Thorne Collection of Panama Zone Issues—Auction Realizes Highest Total Ever Received at a One-Night Sale Here.

Lovers of new issues will be interested in the prices realized at the Thorne sale held in New York City, Feb. 14. It was a notable sale, and had we the space we should be glad to publish in its entirety the prices realized as shown in a priced catalog with which we have been favored by Messrs. Morgenthau & Co. It will, however, be impossible for us to find the necessary space for so doing, and even though we were able to list the prices the excellent descriptions would necessarily be curtailed. We therefore advise all interested readers to procure a priced catalog of the sale. The following clipping from the New York Times appeared in its issue of Feb. 17, and is remarkably accurate for the general press:

A remarkably successful sale of rare American provisional stamps at the Collectors' Club, in West Twenty-sixth St., consisted of the noteworthy collections of the issues of Puerto Principe, Panama, the Canal Zone, and Coamo, owned by William Thorne, the well-known New York stamp collector, who died recently. Mr. Thorne was the son of Jonathan Thorne, the millionaire leather manufacturer and owner of famous trotting horses.

The Thorne collection of stamps of the Canal Zone was one of the best in existence. Practically everything was represented in blocks of fours, and the later issues were in entire sheets, the only way in which they can be properly studied, owing to the changes in the various stamps in each sheet. The highest price of the sale, $245, was paid for a block of four of the two-cent rose of the first series, issued June 24, 1904. They were from the centre of the sheet, two of the stamps having "Panama" reading up and two reading down. The words "Canal Zone" are inverted on all four of the stamps, one of them having double surcharge, both inverted. No other copy of the Canal Zone double inverted is known. It was sold to a Washington collector. Only a year ago Mr. Thorne bought this block of four stamps for $8.50, which shows how remarkable an increase in value of this great rarity has taken place in so short a time.

Another block of four of the two-cent rose, Canal Zone, June 24, 1904, "Panama" reading down, one of the stamps with accent on the final "A," and the Canal Zone surcharge inverted on all four stamps fetched $101.

The Thorne collection of Puerto Principe stamps was considered the best in America. A fine copy of the first printing, Dec. 19, 1898, a strip of five one-cent stamps on 1m, double surcharge, used and on an entire envelope, was sold for $151 to George H. Worthington of Cleveland, Ohio, one of the leading philatelists of America.

A five-cent on 1m of the same issue, inverted surcharge, used, on a piece of the original envelope, fetched $101. This was bought by Mr. Thorne at the J. M. Andreini sale in this city. Another Andreini rarity, a five-cent on 3m inverted surcharge, used copy on piece of original envelope sold for $101.

There were two fine rarities of the second Puerto Principe printing, Dec. 24, 1898. One of these, 5 cents on 5m, orange brown pair, used on piece of cover, brought $151. The other copy was 5 cents on ½m, double surcharge, one diagonal, used on a piece of cover. This copy is believed to be unique. It fetched $126.

On the fourth Puerto Principe, Jan. 11, 1899, the rarest of all these printings, the following fine copies were sold:

Three cents on 1m, pair, both types, unused, original gum, from the Olney collection, $110.

Three cents on 1m, blue green, inverted surcharge, used on piece of cover, from the Andreini collection, $102.

Three cents on 1m, inverted surcharge, used on piece of cover, one of the great rarities of the Andreini collection, $132.

Five cents on 1m, the "cents" spelled "eents," used, on piece of cover, from the Andreini collection, $130.

Five cents on 2m, "eents" instead of "cents," used, on piece of cover, from the Andreini collection, $134.

Five cents on 2m, used, on piece of cover, from the Andreini collection, $140.

Five cents on 3m, used, on piece of cover, from the Andreini collection, $101.

Five cents on 4m, "eents" instead of "cents," inverted surcharge, used, on piece of original envelope, $101.

Five cents on 8m, inverted surcharge, used, on piece of cover, from the Andreini collection, $140.

A block of 24 of the 20-cent violet of the first Colon issue sold for $130. Ten of these stamps have double surcharges.

A fine used copy of the one-cent green of the third series of "the Canal Zone on Panama" stamps, December, 1894, inverted surcharge, fetched $150. It was sold to Mr. Thorne last year for only $75. Only two other copies are known.

The total for the 400 lots was $7,968. The auctioneer, Walter S. Scott, said that this was the highest total ever realized in America for a one-night sale, and also the highest average.

Report of Library Committee.

Your library committee would report that during the past year, 6 books, 12 catalogues, 116 priced auction catalogues, 13 pamphlets, and 8 bound volumes of magazines have been added by purchase or donation. They have all been reported at the monthly meetings, with the exception of the following, received since the December meeting: Drew's sales Nos. 46, 57, 58, 61, 65-9, 73 4, 77-80, from Mr. Lewis, and Nos. 171-5 inclusive from Mr. A. P. Brown. J. W. Scott's Jones sale and Morgenthau's 6th from J. S. Rich, and Morgenthau's 5th from F. Putney, Jr. This makes our Drew's sales complete from No. 40 to date, with the exception of Nos. 42, 44, 95, 126 and 133, which we hope will be supplied by some of our members who read this report.

Our receipts and expenditures have been as follows:

Bal. from last year,	$ 5.85
Appropriation by the Society,	25.00
B. P. S. Auction,	26.66
		$57.51
Philatelic Journal of India,	$ 1.50
Printing catalogues,	35.00
Bookunit,	2.75
Books,	9.68
Binding,	8.50
Balance,	.08
		$57.51

Our bills are all paid to Jan. 1st.

During the past year but one more member has availed himself of the privilege of taking books out of the library than during 1905, the record standing 18 this year to 17 last. More of the members have, however, availed themselves of the privilege of consulting the books in the Library.

The following papers, including the leading ones in the English and German languages will be on file the coming year: The London Philatelist, The Philatelic Record and The Philatelic Journal of India, subscribed for by the Society. Der Philatelist, The Vertrauliches Korrespondens-Blatt and MEKEEL'S WEEKLY STAMP NEWS, which are due the Society as the official organs of the B. P. S., and the International Verein, of which the B. P. S. is a member, and The American Journal of Philately, The Metropolitan Philatelist, Stanley Gibbons' Monthly Journal and Gibbons' Stamp Weekly, generously contributed by the publishers.

We hope and expect that our expenses will be light the coming year, but we have a lot of good magazines and pamphlets which should be bound to be preserved, and we may ask the members for donations to an auction for our benefit, as we have done the past two years.

Respectfully submitted,
E. M. CARPENTER,
For the Committee.

CONTINENTALS

Continental Mixture, 25c per 1000.

This mixture of European "Continentals" contains stamps from a large number of countries, having been imported from Belgium, France, Germany, Holland and Hungary, and then mixed without being picked over, sometimes good Colonial issues are found but we sell as it comes, 25c per thousand (5000 ordered at one time $1.00), and are sure it is the best assortment of stamps of the cheap class in America, over 200 varieties in every lot. (Some have found 400 different.)

Important. In clearing up Stock Envelopes, many torn and slightly defective copies of good stamps are thrown out, a large number of stamps of this kind from all parts of the world have been added to this mixture recently.

COMMITTEE ON PHILATELIC LITERATURE.

February 21, 1907.

Since the annual report was submitted at the convention in August the following works have made their appearance:

"The Philatelic Index" by Wm. A. R. Jex-Long is the most important attempt yet published of indexing the articles in philatelic journals. Fourteen of the leading English periodicals have been indexed, in all 122 volumes The book contains VII–114 pages, is bound in cloth and published at $1.00 by Douglass & Co., 10 Waterloo St., Glasgow Scotland.

"Notes upon United States and Confederate Stamps and their Varieties" by Geo. L. Toppan is the best guide to the different types and minor varieties of our own country ever published and it is especially fortunate that the low price places it within the reach of all. 120 illustrations apear in its 27 pages. Scott Stamp & Coin Co., New York City. Price 10 cents.

'German-Swedish, English-Swedish and French-Swedish Philatelic Dictionary" is by Hilmer Djurling and L. Harald Kjellstedt. Published by Swedish Philatelic Society and can be had for 27 cents of Mr. Kjellstedt at Scranton, Pa.

"Priced Catalogue of Railway Letter Stamps of Scotland and Ireland," by H. L'Estrange Ewen, contains 90 pages and can be had of its compiler, at 32 Palace Square, Norwood, London, S. E., England, for 2sh 6d (62 cents).

"Priced Catalogue of Railway Newspaper and Parcel Stamps of the United Kingdom" is by the same hand and costs the same and contains 100 pages.

"Countries and Stamps" by Harriet E. Colvile is being published in parts at 2½d (5 cents) by Chas J Endle & Co., Boscombe, Bournemouth, England, and when completed can be had bound in cloth for 3sh (75 cents) net.

"Catalogue Illustre des Timbres Fiscaux de Grande Britange, Ireland and Ecosse" is a valuable work on the revenue stamps of the United Kingdom. 148 pages. Published at 2fr 50c (50 cents) by Gilbert & Koehler, 51 Rue Le Peletier, Paris.

"Orignale und Neudrucke von Helgoland" is a valuable monograph on this country published by Arthur Wulbern, Neuer Steinweg 73, Hamburg, at 1.60M (40 cents) postpaid.

"Catalogue Universal des Timbres de XXe Siecle" is a list of stamps issued from Jan. 1, 1901, to Oct. 1906. 104 pages. Th. Lemaire, 16 Avenue de l'Opera. Paris. Price 50fr (10 cents).

J. M. Bartels Co., Boston, Mass, have issued a "Check List of Canal Zone Stamps."

The various standard catalogs for 1906-7 have appeared and can be had of several American dealers.

In periodicals the Chicago Stamp News has been absorbed by the Columbus Philatelist and the Perforator, having failed to appear for several months, has probably suspended. The Inland Stamp Collector appeared at Renville, Minn., in August, the Stamp and Post Card Collector in December at Milwaukee, Wis. (3406 Linden Ave.) and Chicago Collectors Monthly (Official Organ C. P. S.) at Chicago (1100 Spalding Ave.) in January. The British Guiana Philatelic Journal appeared at Demarara, B. G., in December, but not having seen a copy can give no further particulars.

SCRANTON PHITATELIC SOCIETY, BRANCH No. 19, A. P. A.

The first regular meeting under the new charter was held in the Y. M. C. A. Building, Tuesday, February 19, 1907. The election of officers for the current year resulted as follows: President, L. Harald Kjellstedt; Vice President, Wallace B. Grubb, and Secretary-Treasurer, C. Everett Lancaster. It was decided to form a philatelic library and to call on P. M. Wolsieffer for the arrangement of a club circuit for the Scranton Society. President Kjellstedt gave an interesting talk on the dealings of the Vienna dealer, Rudolf Friedl, with the Austrian postoffice, whereby he has obtained a liberal stock of the latest Bosnia-Herzegovina issues cancelled to order. Mr. Kjellstedt also spoke on the recent appearance of the current U. S. 1 cent and 2 cent imperforate about which there seems to be so much guessing The whole matter is explained by the following communication from the Third Asst. P. M. General, dated December 31, 1906:

"THE POSTMASTER, WASHINGTON, D. C.

Sir: In response to your requisition of December 29th, instructions have been given to supply you 50 000 two-cent postage stamps in unperforated sheets of 400 stamps each, which it is understood are desired by purchasers who will use them in automatic stamp affixing machines. They will be invoiced January 3" The above applies equally to the 1c stamps. The speaker acknowledged his indebtedness to Geo. L. Toppan of Washington, D. C., for the interesting points he was able to explain in connection with these imperforates.

The Scranton Philatelic Society will meet the last Tuesday of each month.

C. EVERETT LANCASTER, Sec'y.

AN OPEN LETTER.

Fellow Members of the N. Y. Stamp Soc.:

When I was elected Exchange Supt I was conscious of the possibilities of that office and therefore urged the members to contribute their books of duplicates for circulation. I have made important sales of many of these books, firstly on account of the contents and secondly because the prices marked were reasonable. New York collectors are in the heart of the philatelic market of America. Auction sources, chiefly, enable them to enter attractive books in circuits. Members desiring to receive these books please write their requests on a postal card. Special requests of countries and groups will be heeded.

Those having good duplicates may send them in books that I will supply at 2 cents each.

I shall occasionally state here the special wants of members as stated to me. Non-members may also send these on approval, subject to 10% discount. At present, owing to our exhibition, Bulgaria is in demand. A few copies each of Scott's Nos. 19–22, 41, 42, 67–73 154 and 158 are wanted.

Regular meetings 2nd Friday in each month at Y. M. C. A. Bldg., Room 6, Providence, at 8 P.M.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Feb. 15, 1907.

The 22nd annual meeting, banquet and election of officers was held at Gelb's Parlors. About 30 members and friends enjoyed one of the best dinners ever held by the Society.

The principal entertainment of the evening consisted of the display of Hawaiian stamps by L. L. Green, treasurer of the Boston Philatelic Society. His collection is one of the most valuable in the world. The members enjoyed with great interest Mr. Green's display and historical sketch. The Society extended him a vote of thanks for his exhibition and kindness of giving the Society such a rare treat.

At the conclusion of the exhibition, the business meeting was called to order by Pres. Perry. Letters of regret were read from members not being able to attend. Minutes of previous meeting were dispensed with. The Sec'y's report was read, showing a good gain in membership. The report of the Treas. shows that the Society is in a prosperous condition. The Nominating Committee presented the following for officers for 1907:—

President, Joseph B. McIntyre; Vice President, Jerome Fleischer; Sec'y and Treas., W. Irving Cox; Librarian, Alfred Dawson; Auction Committee, F. M. Mason, M. W. Baker, Jr., Geo. C. Arnold; Exchange Manager, W. H Congdon. They were duly elected to serve the ensuing year.

A. Perry, the retiring President, thanked the members for sustaining help during his term of office In the absence of the newly elected President, Vice Pres. Fleischer was escorted to the chair by W. H. Congdon

By an unanimous vote MEKEEL'S WEEKLY was again made the Official Organ. Mr. Dawson and Mr. Mason was appointed to investigate and purchase a suitable bookcase for our new Society room. On motion it was voted to hold the March meeting on the 3rd Friday as several members would be unable to attend the regular night. A motion was made to hold all the meetings on the 3rd Friday in each month and according to the constitution it will be acted upon at the next meeting.

Mr. Mason, as Banquet Committee, was duly thanked for his great effort in providing the entertainment and fine menu. A short auction sale closed a most delightful evening. Adjourned.

W. IRVING COX, Sec'y.

St. Louis Stamp Collectors' Society.

F. R. CORNWALL, Pres.; J. H. HUMES, Vice Pres.; WALLACE DELAFIELD, JR., Treas.; CHESTER MYERS, Sec.; S. B. HOPKINS, Exch. Mgr. and Lib.; Governing Board: above named officers, DR. J. W. HIGSON, F. MILLHOUSE and G. SCHELLHORN.

The fifty-first regular meeting of this Society was held Tuesday, Feb. 19, 1907, at usual time and place, thirteen present.

The entertainment for the evening was furnished by the competitive exhibition of the stamps of Austria, which resulted as follows:—1st prize, Humes; 2nd prize, Higson; 3rd prize, Malin; 4th prize, Millhouse. The prizes (gems, each one) offered by President Cornwall, distributed with fitting remarks by Mr. Diamant, were awarded on this basis:—50% for completeness, 25% for condition, 25% for arrangement, the highest average—Mr. Humes'—being 71%. President Cornwall's superb collection, tastily mounted, on exhibition though not in competition, was highly admired and praised from all sides. Messrs. Diamant, Hopkins and Schoeman kindly acted as judges.

Our Exchange Manager, Mr. Hopkins, is telling one on all the other members, which goes something like this: For several weeks just before the new Catalogue was issued, there was offered a set of three Nicaraguas for 50c. This famous set circulated among the members at each meeting and was even given out in circuits. No one wanted it. But now—now we are informed that the cheapest stamp of this much despised trio is catalogued at $2.50. For shame! It is hinted that several members are taking turn in administering physical punishment to one another as a result of this incident.

Prize contests announced:—For next meeting, exhibition of Jamaica. Second meeting in March, prizes for best original "Stamp experience," truth or fiction, not over 200 words in length, written on one side of paper. For first meeting in April, grand exhibition of U. S. No P. M. stamps, revenues, locals, telegraphs, envelopes, carriers nor Confederates. Prizes offered by Messrs. Cornwall, Diamant and Hopkins, who will not compete. The usual impromptu auction closed the evening. Next meeting Tuesday, March 5th.

CHESTER MYERS, Sec'y.

SOME BRITISH POSTAL MATTERS.

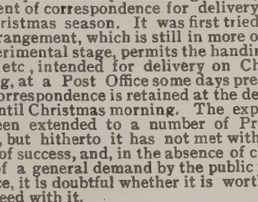
BY ARTHUR W. LINE.

Advance Posting.

Some months ago I received in my periodical batch of postal curios, postmarks, etc., from England, a new postmark bearing the wording, "Posted in advance—for delivery on Xmas Day—M. R.—1905." A request to my correspondent for further copies and particulars brought the answer that no more copies had been seen, and nothing was known as to the use of the postmark. I then wrote to the G. P. O., London, for full information, enclosing my postmark and requesting a clear copy, and duly received a reply from the Secretary from which the following is quoted:

"I am directed by the Postmaster General to inform you that the system of 'Advance Posting' of correspondence was initiated by this Department with a view to relieving in some way the enormous pressure experienced generally in the treatment of correspondence for delivery during the Christmas season. It was first tried in 1902. The arrangement, which is still in more or less of an experimental stage, permits the handing in of letters, etc, intended for delivery on Christmas morning, at a Post Office some days previously. This correspondence is retained at the delivering office until Christmas morning. The experiment has been extended to a number of Provincial Towns, but hitherto it has not met with a great degree of success, and, in the absence of clear evidence of a general demand by the public for such a service, it is doubtful whether it is worth while to proceed with it.

I am to enclose the accompanying impression of the date stamp used at Manchester (M. R. being the Telegraph code letters to indicate Manchester) in dealing with 'Advance' correspondence at the Christmas season."



Prepayment in Money.

At the time I wrote to London there had been a good deal in the WEEKLY on the subjects of Precancelled Stamps, Permits and Prepayment in Money. The privilege of prepayment in money, while quite recent in this country, has been in force for many years in the United Kingdom. Thinking that some might be interested in knowing the conditions under which this privilege is operated on the other side of the Atlantic, I requested such information in my letter already referred to and quote the remaining portion of the reply:

"As regards your request for information respecting the prepayment of correspondence in money, I am to explain that the modern system under which postage on all classes of inland correspondence except newspapers may, in certain circumstances, be prepaid in money, instead of by affixing postage stamps, was restricted to the Chief Office, London, between the years 1852 and 1870. It had survived at that Office as part of a very old system of prepayment in money which was abolished at all other Offices in the United Kingdom during the years 1851 and 1852.

In the year 1870 the system was introduced at several large Offices in London, and subsequently at the Metropolitan Offices in Edinburgh and Dublin. It has since been gradually extended to certain of the larger provincial Post Offices.

I should point out, however, that prepayment in money is not now allowed in the case of correspondence intended for places abroad. The present regulations on the subject are set forth in the accompanying extract from the Post Office Guide:—

'As a rule the prepayment of correspondence can only be effected by means of postage stamps; but in London at the General Post Office (St. Martin's le Grand and Mount Pleasant), the Head Offices of the principal Metropolitan Districts (W. C., W., Paddington, S. W., S. E., E., N., and N. W.), and the Bedford Street, Charing Cross, Gracechurch Street, Lombard Street, Ludgate Circus, Mark Lane, Throgmorton Avenue, and Battersea Post Offices, and at the Head Offices in Edinburgh, Dublin, and certain large towns in the provinces, every kind of inland correspondence, other than newspapers, may be prepaid in money, provided that the articles are chargeable with a uniform rate of postage, that the amount paid is in no case less than £1 and that the correspondence is tied in bundles representing a postage of 5s each (or, in the case of exceptionally bulky packets, 2s 6d each), with the addresses arranged in the same direction. Prepayment, however, cannot be made partly in money and partly in stamps, and the money must be paid at the time the correspondence is handed in at the Post Office.

'Postage on inland letters, postcards and halfpenny packets may also be prepaid in money at many of the smaller towns in the provinces (including all Head Post Towns) provided that at least two clear days' notice be given in writing, and that the conditions of posting as described above be complied with. Applications arising in England and Wales must in these cases be sent direct to the Comptroller and Accountant General, G. P. O., London, E. C., those in Ireland and Scotland to the Accountant, G. P. O., Dublin and Edinburgh respectively, and must state—

(1) The name of the Post Office at which the correspondence will be handed in.
(2) The exact date of posting, and
(3) The approximate number and rate of postage of the correspondence to be posted.

'Correspondence prepaid in money cannot be received on Sunday, Christmas Day, Good Friday, or Bank Holidays.'"

It will be seen that this privilege is more far-reaching than in this country, as the minimum limit is as low as £1, or about $5.00, and no permits are necessary.

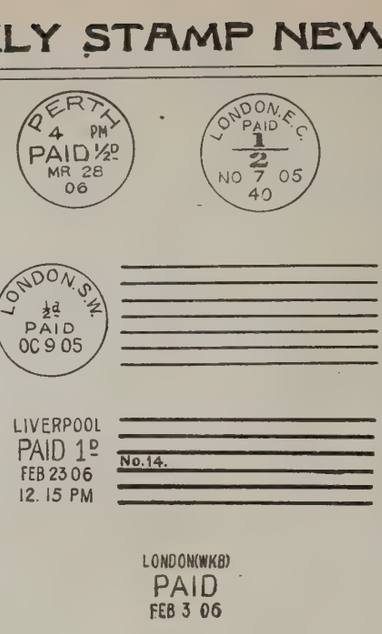
For marking matter prepaid in money hand-stamps have been in use for many years. They bear the value, and red ink is used to make the impression.

The Perth and London, E. C., postmarks here shown are typical examples.

Since the general introduction in 1905 of cancelling machines in the provincial cities of the United Kingdom, special dies for "red" postmarks have been made, of which three typical forms are shown. At first sight, and especially in the case of the London, S. W., die, it would seem that the horizontal bar or "killer" portion of the postmark is superfluous, there being no stamps to "kill". This is however probably left on the machine to save the trouble of removing it. With the Liverpool postmark the "killer" is evidently used to show the number of the cancelling machine used. The cancelling clerk of the London, W. K. B. (West Kensington Branch) office evidently believed the bars to be superfluous.



This last example is unique in being the only "red" postmark that I have seen in twenty years of postmark collecting which did not state the amount of money paid. In view of its similarity to the Liverpool die I am inclined to believe that the value was unintentionally or accidentally omitted in this case.

COMMUNICATION.

To the Editor:

As a stamp collector I desire to call the attention of your readers, and especially of all collectors of United States envelopes, to an advertisement published in your issue of February 16, 1907, stating that a dealer who holds at the present moment a quantity of the four cent envelopes (blue and buff) informs the philatelic world that as soon as he has got from the sale of these envelopes the money paid and 20% profit, he will destroy all left on his hands, thereby enhancing their value.

It is difficult to take such a statement seriously, knowing as all readers of your valued journal do, that the following quantities have been sold at a recent auction sale and distributed among various persons, i. e., 4c green on blue 4008, 4c green or buff 4036.

But there is a much more serious aspect to this matter, as I view such statement. What confidence can philatelists have in the value of any stamp of which the same number of copies has been issued as the 4c on blue and buff paper, if a dealer who happens to possess a quantity in order to enhance artificially the value of such stamp will destroy any unwelcome number?

I know that in the times of the Roman Republic some of the Sibylline volumes were destroyed to enhance the value of the remaining books. Have the shades of a remote antiquity overshadowed the business principles of our modern dealers of postage stamps? If so, gentlemen, go on and destroy, tear up and enhance values, and I feel sure that collectors will look with intense pleasure for the next publication of the Standard Catalogue!

"Risum teneatis, amici?"

Victor M. Berthold.

—The catalog of the Falk sale, recently received from Morgenthau & Co., is written in the Morgenthau style, which is a sufficient guarantee as to its attractiveness and readability. This sale will be held March 26, 27 and 29, at the Collectors Club.

Philippines on U. S.

Nothing ever advertised by our firm met with a more ready sale than these Philippines. Most dealers' stocks were exhausted long ago. Prices have been pushed up on what few are left. The exact number issued of each stamp was published in this paper Feb. 9th. Of the 4c yellow brown only 30 sheets were surcharged. Our price for a fine one is $1 50 which is still cheap. All previous quotations are now cancelled and we offer as follows:

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centres. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—A Stillman story, prepared under the auspices of the National Stamp Committee, and dealing with the Jamestown Exposition stamps, is having a very wide reading through the general press. A. H. Hoffman kindly favors us with the Woman's National Daily containing this article. Mr. Hoffman also sends us a clipping in relation to the Boyce proposition for better postal facilities.

—Henry N. Mudge, chairman of the board of vice-presidents, American Philatelic Association, and president of the Chicago Philatelic Association, left Chicago March 6th for a ten days' trip to Cuba.

—Receipt of newspaper clippings from the following are acknowledged with thanks: James M. Porter, Geo. L. Toppan, T. R. Hungerford (2), S. A. Klemmer, A. C. Stewart, Norman E. Horn, John A. Solomon (6), Peter A. Brannon, Carl Rauschenberg, Paul Zimmerman, Hugo Kuenstler (5), James A. Black (5), W. May (2), Wendover Neefus and W. R. King.

—The French Chamber of Deputies has been asked to issue a new stamp to be sold for double face value, half going to the state and the other half to support indigent consumptives. A person wishing to send a letter would buy a "humanitarian" stamp, as it would be called. J. M. Wall submits this from the Minneapolis Journal.

—J. M. Andreini has been traveling in Puerto Rico and Cuba for some time, having left New York several months ago.

—N. H. Withee, LaCrosse, Wis., was in Chicago recently. Mr. Cook of St. Louis, of prominence as a collector with a penchant for Australians, was also a visitor.

—The philatelists of Utica, N. Y., have organized the Utica Philatelic Society with the following officers: President, Lambert Grant; Secretary, Lyle B. Chapman; Treasurer, Jesse Kelley. The first regular meeting was held Feb. 21, and after the regular business stamps were shown and exchanged. All collectors residing in and near Utica may obtain blank applications for membership by apply to L. B. Chapman, 186 Park Ave., Utica, N. Y.

—The Dane Company of Mazomanie, Wisconsin, later of Chicago, Illinois, has transferred its stock and good-will to the Eben S. Martin Company, a new Illinois corporation. The directors are Eben S. Martin, Virginia P. Martin and Seth F. Crews.

—A price-list just received from H. Cormack, Port Ewen, N. Y., deals entirely with the stamps of Central and South America. Not only are wholesale offers made but single sets as well, making the list valuable for the collector as well as the dealer. Few if any dealers can show a better line of these stamps than Mr. Cormack.

—E. Russell Jones kindly favors us with a restaurant advertisement issued by John Wanamaker, Philadelphia. It is a Japanese conception, and at the top of the circular are five Japanese stamps, the whole making a very attractive announcement.

—The Chicago Record-Herald, of March 1st, contained an interesting editorial headed "American Coins and Postage Stamps."

—The monthly calendar issued by Warren H. Colson, dated March, will be found just as convenient for desk use as its predecessors have proven. The card at hand shows a very handsome half-tone of the France 1863–70 4c gray tete-beche.

—Pres. Stone, of the American Philatelic Association, was entertained at dinner by a number of officers and members of the B. P. S. on Monday evening, Feb. 25.

—We have been shown Vol. I No. 1 of the Boston Junior Stamp News, a manuscript paper, published by Day Kimball, 343 Beacon street, Boston, Mass. The publisher regrets the limited circulation the number is given, due to the fact that each copy has to be written out separately. The number before us has an article by Mr. Kimball on the "Collecting of Plate Numbers," while an article on "Permits" is promised in February. Departments of "Information" and "Our Review" are noted, while the advertising of several Boston and New York dealers completes a number that is of more than ordinary interest. The WEEKLY appreciates the column advertisement that is given to sound the praises of our publication. No doubt Mr. Kimball would accommodate some of our subscribers who would like to inspect this product of philatelic genius.

—Paul Mason favors us with a clipping from the Ohio State Journal giving an account of the Feb. 27th meeting of the Columbus Collectors Club. The stamps of Argentine Republic were displayed and discussed, the collection of C. B Duffy proving a particular attraction. The stamps and postal cards of Austria will be the subject for the next meeting.

DON'T KICK.

Should the paper be a day or two late don't kick. Neither the managing editor nor the printer bears any special grudge against you and your paper is mailed at the same time that the other fellow has his mailed.

Should the index be printed in a regular issue don't kick. Reprints will be provided and all who desire this most useful adjunct to a bound volume will be made happy.

Should there be a notice of arrearages in your paper don't kick until you are satisfied that the managing editor has had time to change the whole number on the label. This takes from ten days to two weeks in most any newspaper office.

EDITORIAL.

The Jamestown Set—The two designs selected by the postal authorities for the exposition issue are very appropriate and will no doubt give general satisfaction. It did not seem possible that these stamps could see the light of day without a portrait of Capt. John Smith appearing upon one of the two values. The small boy in philately will truly have his innings in the new set and many of maturer years will look with feelings akin to pleasure upon the recognition by the postal authorities of three personages so notable in the early history of Virginia. While the set contains only two values this very fact will be commended as an indication that pecuniary profit is not back of the issue.

In the Collecting Eye—That many of our readers are interested in the single CA watermarked stamps, British colonies, is apparent by the inquiries that are received concerning these stamps. Queries come to us in different forms; they range from the question of the desirability of collecting them to requests for prices on certain of the stamps. When the British colonials first began to appear on multiple paper, we gathered from the expressions of different collectors that they did not regard the watermarked difference as sufficiently vital to make it necessary to gather the two varieties of watermark. However, as time went on, the volume of favorable attention centered on the single CA's developed and those who at first gathered the stamps without decided conviction became more confirmed in their collecting, perhaps because they saw that many of the specimens which had been purchased at small fractional advances over face were not long in taking bounds in price. Other collectors, who at first did not make any effort to get the single CA's as such, have become consistent collectors of the stamps; no doubt they feel that inasmuch as the range of the CA singles is limited and that their collecting is cotemporaneous with the life of the stamps, now is the accepted time, if any, to secure the stamps. So policy as well as preference has entered into the question and has had its influence in giving single CA's their ascendancy. As the single CA's king's head, in most cases have passed out of postal circulation, their short time of use and the small number of many of the stamps prepared, allow of so restricted a supply that it cannot withstand any general demand without sensational advances in prices. Evidences of these increases are not lacking to those who turn their attention to the stamps in question.

As to Prices—In answer to correspondents who ask that certain single CA's be given a specific price, we say that it would be unwise for us to name quotations, for the reason that available data is not uniform in its findings in this regard. What may be called the rarities among these stamps seem to afford a fairer basis for price quotation than some of the stamps that are yet in the scarce division. The unanimity of opinion as to the desirability of the stamps in question and the high prominence that their prices have attained seem to have established prices rather more settled than the quotations on many of the more ordinary stamps that are on an advancing plane. Almost at once the shilling values of Lagos were rare; a German catalogue recently published lists the one shilling at about $7. The two shilling, six pence, of the same issue is held at about $20, while the five shilling is offered for about half that price. The rarity, the twenty shilling, is priced at $60, in a catalogue. The one pound, Southern Nigeria, catalogued at $40 may sell somewhat under that figure. The Cyprus, nine, eighteen and forty-five piastres, which, like the Lagos, were scarce at the outset, when difficulty was experienced in getting them by regular new issue patrons of the large importers, are staple at five dollars each. In the instances of stamps such as certain denominations of Gambia, Grenada, Cayman Islands, Morocco Agencies, Sierra Leone, Saint Lucia, Cyprus, two piastres, etc., we do not care to quote prices, which, while authoritative at the moment, may be erroneous a short time after.

As Reported—From different English papers we gather information of a general nature concerning the single CA's which, considering its sources, must be based on solid estimates. Of the Cayman set, we read: "These will all become scarce, as the printing was a very small one for all the values." Of the six pence and the one shilling Cayman only 1,440 of either denomination was issued. Ceylon is regarded as "a good investment, and likely to be quoted much higher." Grenada: "The stock of these has been burnt, and we consider they will go much higher." The higher values of Hong Kong "should prove a good investment." The set of Saint Lucia is described as a really rare little set, "and we have had difficulty in getting a small supply." Regarding Seychelles, it is said: "As a large stock of these is now on the market, we do not quote prices which might be deceptive and subject to reductions." Sierra Leone is signalized: "A really good set. We find every value scarce." Of Southern Nigeria, "many of the values are getting very scarce." Straits Settlements: "We consider the stamps from 10c upwards are all scarce, and likely to be a good investment." The authority for the remarks that have been quoted is Stanley Gibbons' Monthly Journal. The foregoing testimony is submitted as being of recent origin; readers may draw their own conclusions. If they are keen after single CA's, and find that they are unable to find premises on which to base their individual estimates of value, they may decide, nevertheless, that they cannot be far out of the way, judging from the indications of the present, if they buy at current prices; but these prices are not fixed ones, it seems, but shifting, and the shift is upwards, almost without exception.

Dealers are Fair—We hold no brief for the single CA's, but speak of them in response to the interest in the stamps that is shown by readers. In this connection it may be said that if a collector buy from a recognized dealer, that fact carries with it a guarantee of fairness and in a sense protection for the buyer. In other words, such a dealer takes an interest in his customer that would not permit him to knowingly make a drastic overcharge, or to violate canons as they prevail in the business world of reputability. If prices of single CA's are high, it is not because they are boosted artificially. We verily believe that the commercial circles of philately are refreshingly free from trade agreements or understandings, which could work no good for the collector; the temptation of large transient profit is one that the stamp dealer does not yield to; and stamp collectors, in number, appreciate that sturdiness of character.

For Consideration—A valued reader makes the suggestion that in view of the perplexity that besets one in arriving at estimates of value of stamps that are listed but not priced, the WEEKLY give attention to this phase and inaugurate a department similar to the one of which Dr. Hetrich had charge in the WEEKLY some years ago, of auction prices of stamps not priced but catalogued. He advises that only those stamps without catalogue quotation that are sold at auction be listed with the prices realized; and that further, a record be kept in the WEEKLY office of these tabulations as they appear in the paper, so that we can furnish upon the request of any reader the last known auction price of any stamp of the kind that has been offered at public sale. We readily see how such a department would be of value, and the WEEKLY, wishing to be of all service to readers, will try to arrange for the operation of the plan if the idea meets with commendation.

He Is No Philatelist—A reader of a Denver newspaper asks the editor of its inquiry department: "Who manufactures the stamps used by the federal government on letters, etc.?" The answer given is: "The American Bank Note Company, with plant in Hartford, Conn. The contract calls for 27,000,000 postage stamps a day,—one stamp for every third person in the United States," etc. It is said that the company, because of the fact that up to 1894 it had furnished our stamps, is "thoroughly prepared to take up the immense order received from the United States government, the execution of which began February 7, 1907." It is needless to say that the Bureau of Engraving and Printing is still grinding out our stamps at Washington.

QUERIES AND COMMENT.

Edited by C. E. SEVERN.

Our readers are cordially invited to ask the editor for any information desired concerning stamp collecting. Should a personal reply be desired kindly enclose postage. This department is for the beginner as well as the advanced collector. Address, C. E. SEVERN, 820 Oxford Bdg., Chicago Ill.

Iberia:—The embossing of a stamp is that part of the stamp that stands forth or is in relief. "Embossed printing is a method in which the design is sunk in the metal of the die and the printing is done against a yielding platen such as leather, which is forced up into the impression of the die, thus forming the design on the paper in relief." Embossing may be blank or in color. "Grilled" and "embossed" are sometimes used synonymously. (2) There have been no reprints of the stamps of Liberia, Salvador, Guatemala or Nicaragua; a few of the early stamps of Ecuador have been reprinted, as described in the catalogue. Counterfeits, usually printed from wood-blocks and of early manufacture exist of the stamps, in a few cases, of the countries named. (3) "Are United States revenue stamps liable to rise in price in the future? If so, what U. S. revenue stamp is most likely to get rare within a few years?" We do not hesitate to answer the first question of this double-barreled interrogative, in the affirmative, but even the most serious student of U. S. revenues would be stumped by the second. (4) The $500 revenue, second issue; the $5 proprietary; some of the J. C. Ayer & Company medicine stamps; the Thos. E. Wilson 4-cent black; the Caterson, Brotz & Co., playing card, etc., are examples of great rarities in United States revenue issues. (5) A collection of types is recommended to the beginner in match and medicine stamps, U. S.; the cheapest paper variety will suffice to show the type. It is easy to extend the limit of such a collection to include all the paper varieties as catalogued, when it is wished to do so.

E. L. W.:—This correspondent addresses us: "I should like to know through your column whether the late Holton sale brought near as much as the stamps were catalogued. Will not this sale reduce the price of stamps, or at least stamps of which there were large numbers sold?" The elasticity of the stamp market has impressed many observers as being little short of marvelous, and those who ponder the subject well, know that a sale such as the one named has practically no effect on the values of stamps that are to be included under the main division of collecting. The growth of philately is so rapid and healthy that it demands sustenance by periodical inroads into the great stamp stocks or reserves. The stamp market has a wonderful absorptive power that seems never to have been taxed to the utmost; it has been tested much more drastically than on the occasion of the sale referred to, only to show that it can enfold everything that is offered and ask for more. Now and then the placidity of the market is disturbed by the dumping of a large lot of certain stamps upon it, but soon there is no indication remaining of the temporary unsettlement. It is an axiom that good stamps bring good prices at auction or elsewhere. Stamps that are miscellaneous in character sell for mixed prices. A sale excites an amount of interest commensurate with the importance of the stamps sold. Good stamps are always staple; the larger the number of them offered, the better the prices that are obtained. The LeRoy D'Etiolles sales in Paris, at which huge numbers of stamps are being sold at strong prices, furnish evidence of this contention. An occasional variation of this rule merely calls attention to its general inviolacy. The collector need not have any fear of demoralization of stamp values by the sale at auction of large stocks of stamps. Without attempting any analysis of the results of the Holton sale, we say that prices taken on the average were reflective of the inherent values of the stamps disposed of; isolated instances of erratic price tendency in some cases were to be expected.

A. P. H.:—The re-engraved one-cent brown lilac, 1867–73, Newfoundland, No. 30a in the catalogue, differs from the original stamp in size; it is somewhat smaller, measuring 19 by 23½mm, instead of 19 by 24½mm, and it has the letters N.F. closer to the scroll enclosing "One Cent." The ends of the scroll ribbons stand forth further from the sides of the stamp in the re-engraved, and there are further differences in the ornamentation at the lower sides and bottom of the stamp.

J. R. W.—The 1867 issue of Egypt was lithographed on white wove paper; there are four varieties of each value repeated in blocks of four throughout the plate. The varieties, like many lithographic differences, are slight and do not loan themselves readily to description, evidently; and a search through different catalogues does not reveal any description of the varying types.

C. L. C.:—References to the special issue of the Netherlands "charity" stamps have appeared in later issues of the WEEKLY. The stamps in question, good only for inland postage, were sold in Amsterdam alone for a period of several weeks at double face, the excess amount having been applied to an anti-tuberculosis fund. Cataloguers that list the charity issues of New South Wales, Victoria, etc., no doubt will give place to this issue in forthcoming editions of their catalogues. (2) It is not probable that the imperforate one and two-cent, present issue, imperforate, will ever become scarce. (3) We do not feel competent to name a valuation for the envelope that Siddall of Manila sent you, with the statement: "I will use one of the rare one-cent envelopes on amber paper, of which only one thousand are in existence."

O. W. B.:—The stamps that you describe are listed in the catalogue, under the firm names of Jno. F. Henry; Johnson, Holloway & Co., and A. L. Scovill & Co.; The average catalogue price of the stamps is about ten cents, cheapest paper variety.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES.

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Any information regarding new issues will be gratefully received and acknowledged. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. The figures in parentheses refer to the previous number of the WEEKLY in which the same country was noticed

UNITED STATES.—As will be seen by reference to our news columns the designs for the 1c and 2c Jamestown exposition set have been approved by P. M. Genl. Cortelyou. The 1c will be in green and bear a vignette of Capt. John Smith and the dates of his birth and death, 1518–1631, with profiles of Pocahontas and Powhattan. The 2c stamp in carmine will show a fine engraving of the landing of the first settlers at Jamestown

The Precancelled Stamp Club reports the following new precancels:

Red Oak, Iowa, 8c 1902, diag. up in small letters, diag. down in larger letters.
Marshall, Mich., 1c 1902 inv.
Binghamton, N. Y., 12-06, 1-07, 2-07, both 1 and 5c 1902.
Ashland, Ohio, Type IV, 4c 1902 down.
Bellows Falls, Vermont, in three vertical lines, between lines. 3c 1902 up.]

CANADA.—C. W. Cruickshank sends us copies of the 1c King's Head, precancelled "Brockville—Ontario," and the 5c King's Head, precancelled "Toronto—Ontario," both in the latest type, but with the precancel inverted.

CANAL ZONE.—Harry E. Huber writes as follows:

"I have within the past week received certain of the new stamps of the Canal Zone, direct from Ancon, and among them I find an unused vertical pair of the 8c violet and black, in which the top stamp has the bar of the second 'A' in 'Canal' missing, making it appear an inverted 'V.' I think, however, that it must be a broken letter, rather than the latter. The new 10c stamps must not as yet have been supplied to all the post offices in the Zone, as I have received an unused pair of the 10c stamp, Bartels' No. 24, this being purchased at the same time as the other stamps, from the Ancon post office. The date of the letter containing these stamps, which is the same as the day they were purchased, is Feb. 12, 1907."

Geo. L. Toppan, and as well a correspondent at Pedro Miguel, kindly favors us with the latest novelty, a 2c carmine Panama post card in map design with overprint in black reading up in two lines "CANAL ZONE." In the centre of the stamp is the overprint "1ct." It has been known for some weeks that this issue was contemplated and it is expected that stamped envelopes will be next in order.

Post Card.

Canal Zone "1ct." on 2c Panama.

COSTA RICA.—Der Philatelist reports two new post cards, but no particulars are at hand.

Post Cards.

2c red.
4c lilac.

GERMAN COLONIES.—The list of colonial stamps on watermarked paper is given by Ewen, as follows:

East Africa—2½h, 4h, 7½h, 15h, 60h.
Southwest Africa—5pf, 10pf, 5mk.
China—1c, $2½.
Kamerun—5pf.
Kiautschou—1c, $1, $1½, $2½.
Levant—¼pi, ½pi, 1pi, 1¼pi, 1½pi, 2pi, 2½pi, 4pi, 5pi, 10pi 25pi. This completes the list except the 15pi on 3mk.
Morocco—3c, 5c, 10c, 25c.

None have yet been issued on watermarked paper for New Guinea, Karolinen, Marianen, Marshall Islands, Samoa or Togo.

HONG KONG.—Der Philatelist reports two values of the current set as printed all in one color on multiple white paper.

Adhesives.

4c red.
10c blue.

ITALY.—The double card of 15c, formerly printed with 7½c on each part has been changed and now appears with a 5c green stamp on the first part, and 10c rose on the second part.

Post Card.

5x10c green and rose on gray.

MONACO.—Mr. Schachne has received the double card of same design as the last issue (Senf No. 8) and same color as the single card (Senf No. 9) 1901 issue; also the new letter card at the reduced rate, which is like the 15c of 1891 (Senf No. 4) in all except value.

Post Card.

10x10c rose on pale blue, T. 3.

Letter Card.

10c carmine rose on light gray.

NICARAGUA.—Edmund de S. Brunner reports that he has received the 1c, 2c, 3c, 4c, 5c, 10c and 15c in the new Waterlow print. He also reports having received the 5c surcharged "Costa Atlantica C" instead of "B" as previous copies have been overprinted. This value is the only one thus far seen with "C" instead of "B" and the query naturally arises whether this takes the place of the old "Cabo" surcharges, as the "B" presumably replaces the "Dpto Zelaya B."

PARAGUAY.—Of the new set we have thus far chronicled the 5c, 10c and 1p, all upon the authority of foreign papers. These stamps have the date 1904 but colors are changed and what year they are intended to represent is difficult to determine. The J. M. Bartels Co. have shown us specimens of these three values and as well a 1c in carmine which has not been previously noted in the philatelic press.

Adhesive.

1c carmine.

SWITZERLAND.—Stanley Gibbons, Inc., have shown us the 15c value with the new watermark.

TURKEY.—The current stamps, with surcharge "B," are said by Le Journal des Philatelistes to have been so surcharged to indicate that they were sold to foreign merchants at 20 per cent discount from the face value, the "B" signifying "Beiye" or "discount." Only four values have been seen thus far, as noted in No. 842.

A Collection of 4000 Varieties

Largest Stamp Dealers in Canada.

MILAN EXHIBITION, 1906.

The Highest Possible Award at the above Exhibition was received by THE WEST-END PHILATELIST (Edited by Bertram W. H Poole). Published by D. Field. "The West End Philatelist" is published on the 15th of each month and forms the brighest and daintiest of the journals issued for Stamp Collectors.

Each number is full of original matter, written in an interesting style, that should appeal to all philatelists. There are articles on the stamps of various countries, and a serial paper in which the collector is told all about papers, watermarks, and perforations; how stamps are made, and the thousand and one other things every collector ought to know if he wishes to collect on intelligent lines.

It Is Well Illustrated.

Subscribers reap many advantages in being able to purchase really good stamps at bargain prices. Send for particulars.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—Notwithstanding the fact that the Burroughs bird story appeared three months ago, the Los Angeles Herald of as late a date as Feb. 24 contained the article. It shows the value of the work being done by the National Stamp Committee. Our thanks to Arthur W. Line for clipping submitted.

—Day Kimball favors us with a news item from the Boston press which states that by the will of Mrs. Harriet F. Warren the Boston Public Library comes into possession of a very complete postage stamp collection that has taken over 30 years to accumulate. The collection is valued at $2000.00. Mr. Kimball also sends us in common with many of our subscribers a clipping dealing with the Jamestown Exposition issue.

—The New York Sun article on "Confederate Stamps," to which reference was made a short time since, is being very widely reprinted, as might be expected, in the Southern press. The Roanoke, Va., World, and Knoxville, Tenn., Journal and Tribune have been shown us with the above mentioned story.

DIVORCE O.K., BUT STAMPS CAUSE SUIT

PARIS, Feb. 23.—M. Lebon and his wife have spent $15,000 on law in Paris in a wrangle over the possession of a collection of postage stamps.

The two decided to procure a divorce and everything was arranged amicably as regards the division of their money and and household effects. But both were ardent philatelists, and when the stamp collection was mentioned, M. Lebon claimed it, because he had started the collection when a boy at school.

The courts decided that an expert should be engaged to divide the collection equitably.—St. Louis Post-Despatch.

STAMPS FOR JAMESTOWN.

What the Commemorative Issues Will Look Like.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—Postmaster-General Cortelyou has approved the designs for the series of stamps commemorative of the Jamestown Exposition. The denominations of the stamps will be 1 cent and 2 cent.

The stamps will be rectangular in form, the 1 cent being green in color and the 2 cent carmine.

The 1-cent stamp will bear a vignette of Capt. John Smith and the dates of his birth and death—1580 and 1631. In the upper left hand corner will be a profile of Pocahontas, and in the upper right hand corner will be a profile of Powhatan.

The 2-cent stamp will bear a fine engraving of the landing of the first settlers at Jamestown.

The stamps are being made at the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, and will be placed on sale at postoffices throughout the United States on April 26, the day of the opening of the Jamestown Exposition.

SAN FRANCISCO RELIEF FUND.

It will be remembered that just after the great disaster at San Francisco the New York Stamp Society generously offered to hold an auction sale and give the receipts to sufferers from the earthquake who were at all connected with philately. A nice sum was realized and Secretary Klein sent a check for nearly $300 00 to the office of the WEEKLY with the request that it be distributed as indicated above.

Unable to give our personal attention to the distribution of the fund and feeling that some one on the spot would be better able to know what the needs were, and how they could be best served, an invitation was sent to H. B. Phillips, the well known philatelist, to undertake its distribution. Mr. Phillips has done this in a very satisfactory manner, the following letter having been received by the WEEKLY, accompanied by an itemized statement, approved by the New York Society which voted its hearty thanks to Mr Phillips:

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., Jan. 22, 1907.
MR. C. E. SEVERN, Chicago, Ill.
My Dear Sir:—

I have yours of 18th inst. making inquiry about the status of the fund sent on for the relief of Philatelic sufferers, from the New York Society.

This matter has been administered to the best of my judgment and knowledge, but owing to the pressure of other duties a report has not been forwarded; I fully intended to have sent in a report at the end of the year and wipe the matter off the slate with the outgoing of the old year, and hardly realize it is now well along the first month of the new year.

When the money was received the time for immediate relief of physical suffering for food and shelter had passed, and it could only be distributed as and how in my opinion and knowledge it would do the most good. A report and account is herewith enclosed.

On behalf of the philatelists of San Francisco and vicinity I sincerely thank all who contributed to this fund, and can assure them while we may not find a present breathing place in our strenuous life, since the fire, to stop and individually thank them, this fraternal link forged in the awful heat of our devastation will never be forgotten.

Sincerely yours,
H. B. PHILLIPS.

Mr. Phillips is entitled to and will receive the thanks of every American philatelist for his kind offices in this matter.

STEAMER DUE, POSTAGE STAMPS OUT.

LAS PALMAS, Feb. 23.—Owing to the lack of foresight on the part of the Spanish Postoffice authorities the supply of postage stamps in the Island of Grand Canary gave out, and on the departure of the mail steamers for Europe not a stamp of any description could be obtained.

For some time before the departure of the steamers a long line of people waited their turn outside the municipal offices to have their letters franked with the official stamp of the Mayor.—St. Louis Post-Despatch.

SALES SUPERINTENDENT'S REPORT.

SAN ANTONIO, TEXAS, Feb. 25, 1907.

I have rec'd for circulation 25 books, value			$875.19
Less returned to owners (from which have been sold $93.32),	10	" "	379.32
Remaining in circulation,	15	" "	$495.87

It is strange that so small a number of our members are represented in the Sales Department that it is impossible to start new circuits as frequently as would otherwise be desirable. Members who do not patronize the Department do not know what a snap they are missing as fully fifty percent of the stamps in circulation are marked at less than auction prices or dealers' special inducements, and here the buyer can examine each stamp before making the purchase. I therefore renew my invitation to the members of the T. P. A. to send in their name at once so as to be placed on circuits.

CHARLES ROEMER, Supt.

NEW APPLICATIONS.

As soon as your name has been published as an applicant you will probably have unsolicited selections of stamps sent you on approval. As a great many collectors object to this practice the Association desires to break the practice up. Please aid us and help protect yourself and others against further imposition, by holding such selections without purchasing any, until sufficient funds have been sent by the dealer to return it to him by registered mail. Also please report the names of such dealers to the Secretary of the Association.

EDW. DE Z. KELLEY, Sec'y.

BOSTON, Feb. 26th, 1907.

The one hundred and sixty-third regular meeting of the Society was held in Elks' Hall on Monday evening, February 25th, with 75 members and guests present.

Applications for membership were received from the following gentlemen:—

MR. E A KING, Wollaston, and MR. P. C. KIMBALL, 2nd, Wollaston; both proposed by Mr. J B B Smith.
MR. DAY KIMBALL, Boston, and MR. E. R. JACKSON, Boston; proposed by Mr. J. M. Bartels.

Applications for reinstatement were received from Mr. F. A. Fowler and Mr. H. V. Roberts.

These resignations were received and accepted with regrets: Mr. D. H. Bacon, Mr. S. T. S. Doncyson, Mr. A. A. Haserick, Mr. E. A. Stevens.

The Chair announced the death of Mr. R. R. Bogert and a vote of condolence was passed, which our Secretary was instructed to forward to our late member's family.

Mr. Henry Schuhmacher, Jr., Roslindale, was admitted to membership as No. 467.

Communications were read from A. H. Weber, San Francisco, relative to this Society taking up "The War Issues of Peru," and from Mr. H. A. Davis, Denver, Secretary of the new Revenue Society, asking Boston revenue collectors to join the new organization.

The gift of a copy of its recent publication, "Philatelic Side Lines," from the Springfield Stamp Club was announced and on motion by the Secretary a vote of thanks was passed to the Springfield Stamp Club in appreciation of the courtesy shown this Society.

This being the occasion of the "Annual Jollification" the meeting was turned over to the Entertainment Committee at an early hour to provide time for the interesting program arranged. The philatelic spread and the caterer's spread seemed to receive equal and close attention until adjournment at a late hour.

The judges of the Competition announce the following results:—

Adhesives: To Mr. Sawyer a blue ribbon; to Mr. J. B. B. Smith a red ribbon; to Mr. F. S. Cook a white ribbon.

Envelopes: To Mr. Sawyer a blue ribbon; to Mr. Barthold a red ribbon.

Postal Cards: To Mr. Carpenter a blue ribbon; to Mr. Linnemann a red ribbon; to Mr. Morse a white ribbon.

UNITED STATES REVENUE SOCIETY.

Pres., GEO. J. CARTER; Vice Pres., C. H. EAGLE; 2nd Vice Pres., W. S. ALDRICH; Sec. HOLLAND A. DAVIS, 1622 Welton St, Denver, Col.; Treas., WM. T. KIMBALL; Sales Mgr., GEO. R. TUTTLE; Atty., H. D. WATSON.

OFFICIAL.

Members of the United States Revenue Society will help matters very materially if they will observe the following rules:

Members should mount their stamps on the slips which will be provided by the Secretary for the circuit in alphabetical order, putting the price at which they wish to sell above each stamp and the catalog number, paper or other remarks immediately below the stamp.

Members should mount their Match and Medicine stamps on separate sheets as this will help the sales superintendent keep track of them, and Revenues should also be on separate sheets so that they may be kept in different circuits.

Members desirous of receiving circuits should so notify the sales superintendent and state which class of stamps they desire to see. Unless this is done, stamps will not be sent them.

There are several other matters which will be taken up at the next meeting of the officers, which will be held in the course of a few days, and I will notify you of the action taken at that time.

The matter of insurance will be taken up at this meeting and members notified as to the action. It is probable that the rate will be 1% of the value of the stamps sent in, which will be deducted by the sales superintendent and turned over to the Secretary.

Parties desiring to join the Association may send their applications with references to the Secretary.

GEO. J. CARTER, Pres.

First V. P. Clarence H. Eagle is out with a slip asking for uncatalogued varieties or anything new, strange or unusual in M & M. He wishes scarce pairs, ultramarines or varieties of paper not listed, or any information that would be serviceable or of interest to members concerning either M & M or regular U. S. revenues, perf., part perf., or imperf. Mr. Eagle may be addressed at 57 Broad St., N. Y. City.

REVENUE NOTES.

By CHARLES A. NAST of Denver, Colorado.

Jayne on Laid Paper.

To H. A. Henkels belongs the credit of bringing to light a new variety of the 1c blue Jayne, die cut, namely on laid paper. This gentleman sends two copies, one on horizontally laid and the other vertical. As I am always a little skeptical about new varieties being discovered at this late day, I wrote to several prominent collectors regarding this. Among the answers received was one from Dr. Hetrich of Birdsboro, Pa., in which he says: "I have known of this variety for several years, in fact bought one at a Chicago auction some three years ago. I believe at the time five or six copies were disposed of."

Only one private proprietary is listed in Scott's as being on laid paper, the 1c black Alvah Littlefield priced at $50.00. Well, if one, why not others? Surely if the one be genuine, it stands to reason that more of this kind of paper was used than just enough to print a sheet of Alvah Littlefields. One or two correspondents suggested that a stamp moistened and pressed against laid paper might effect this appearance. I entertained the same general suspicion, especially as I heard of the experiment of wetting a stamp and placing it under a letter press against a ruled piece of paper till thoroughly dry, and its coming out with "ruled lines" on the back. Unfortunately for this contention, on going to my own collection I found an unused o. g. copy of this stamp with the vertical laid effect clearly defined. I have an idea that I observed this peculiar marking before but laid no great stress on it till now.

Who Were "Truesdell & Co."?

While reading the Boston Stamp Book the other day, I found on page 10 the following item relating to the different kinds of paper which Mr. Carpenter, the government contractor, was using in Feb. 1871: "No. 2 special cotton and linen rag paper, white (2c H. Brown and 1c Truesdell & Co)." What stamp did he mean? Who were Truesdell & Co.? Since the paragraph refers to big stamps and wrappers, did he have "Burdsall & Co." in mind, or is it possible there was such a die as the Truesdell?

Mexican Revenues.

We all like our stamps uncut and unpunched but sometimes these cuts and perforated cancellations add to the value of a stamp. Take for instance the documentary stamps of Mexico which have been used for customs duty. The only proof of their having been thus used, is the perforating of the name of the entry port in the stamp. Most specimens so used have "Vera Cruz" through the stamp, and these are so listed in Mendoza's Catalog of Mexican Revenues. But other ports of entry so punched and of which I have specimens are "Laredo" and "Tampico." Sometimes it is printed on the stamp in the form of a surcharge in red ink. These are all legitimate varieties of the regular series, and should be collected distinctly and apart from the normal.

Mr Stockder of this city (Denver) has shown an unperforated pair of the 1 cent brown 1900-1901, "Federal" issue, with the talon above the stamp, instead of below as is usual. I apprehend that this variety is easily enough attained by sacrificing a row of stamps only at the top of a full sheet and then severing them accordingly. But since the specimens bear evidence of having been used they are interesting. Major Brewster C. Kenyon, who is a specialist in these, writes to say that "A. G. Mexico" means "Administracion General" and is done to keep certain revenue accounts within the city separate from the "Mexico D. F." (District Federal) accounts.

"Philatelic Side Lines."

The Springfield Philatelic Society has issued a neat brochure entitled "Philatelic Side Lines" being devoted to listing beer, snuff, cigarette, tobacco, lock seal and hydrometer stamps, etc. A splendid check list and should be in the hands of every collector. I have only words of praise for this booklet, but being a natural born critic, if not crank, I note that several hydrometer stamps are marked with an asterisk. A footnote says: "These have not been seen but probably exist." Well I will assume they do not exist, so, until they do come to the surface, who has the better of the argument? I see in the first issue of beer with the word "Stamp" the society lists the 33⅓c value. Is this an assumption also, or has some member of the club really a copy of it? No cataloguer ever listed it before, and personally I do not think it exists. There is one item I note with pleasure and that is that the series of beer stamps with burele lines is listed only as "violet" and "yellow" lines. That is good. Some cataloguers have made three varieties here, adding, variously, to the two mentioned, either red. mauve or purple. This violet color is tricky and those with red or blue tinge are simply results of variations of the ink. I can add one variety not listed, the 50c beer of the 1878 series on silk fibre paper.

The N. Y. Stock Transfer Stamps.

The daily press has lately given us a good story to the effect that upwards of $5,000,000 worth of New York Stock Exchange stamps were ordered destroyed, because they had been printed on poor paper which was easily counterfeited, and that the only assurance the Controller's Office had that the stamps really were destroyed was the honesty of a $2500 per annum clerk. Well, if the clerk had received twice or ten times the salary would his assurance be worth any more? In other words is the scale of honesty in clerks gauged by the amount of salary paid? The U. S. government never has any difficulty in this respect since the destruction by burning or masceration is done in the presence of three witnesses. Should the Albany stamps be in hiding somewhere, they will be uncovered sooner or later.

Mr. Eagle's Wonderful Collection.

Clarence H. Eagle has lately acquired a vertical pair of the 25c life insurance part perforated. The part perforates of this denomination are common enough as "singles," but for years he has been looking for a vertical pair, perforations at the sides and imperforate horizontally. The finding and recording of pairs legitimatizes all the single stamps and gives them a standing in court they never had before. Mr. Eagle is happy now in the fact that his collection contains everything in revenues that is listed in Scott's Catalog. Of course he has many things not listed besides innumerable pairs, blocks, strips, shades, etc. But while he retains his copy (the only one in existence) of the 4c Wilson, the red, green and purple Ayer, and the Moore & Talcott on pink, it will be impossible for any other collector to hope for completion. Suffice it to say his friends all rejoice with him. He needed the 4c purple Ayer, die cut, and the 1c Maryland Match on watermarked paper at the time of the Phelps sale, and these two he added at a cost of $310 and $202 respectively. If this collection should ever be for sale, which is not likely, I suggest the United States government is the proper party to possess it. The only thing the government has in this line is the frame of proofs hung up near the elevator in the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, but this is made up mainly of proofs of early beer, tobacco, opium and other "Tax Paid" stamps. A U. S. Postal Museum may come some day such as they have in Berlin, Germany.

In Relation to "Permits."

H. E. M.:—No, it is not customary for firms to have more than one permit number. In fact some of the earliest patrons of this mode of posting, though varying the wrappers and covers occasionally, still adhere to their original number. There are exceptions of course, since all postmasters do not adhere strictly to the letter of instructions. Take Weinstock, Lubin & Co. for instance, located at Sacramento, Cal. Their monthly bulletins bear a different number with each edition. I have seen Nos. 20, 28 and 29. As an indication of what the future may have in store for the postal service, it is noticeable that some publications are now dispensing with wrapper as well as stamp by printing along with the reading matter the "permit" itself. Thus the department house of Hale, Sacramento, No. 31, sends out a 16-page paper with the permit printed in the right hand corner and it goes through the mails without any wrapping. Again, Burrows Bros., Cleveland, No. 14, send out a catalog of rare books with the permit printed on the front cover. This is somewhat similar to the clever fac simile edition of the Silver Standard published by Roger Bros., Meriden, Conn, No. 1, being a reproduction of articles from Godey's Lady's Book and the Scientific American of 1847. Here the permit is printed in red ink right in the center of the back cover. To cut these square would result in the ruin of the whole. I note increasing interest in this side line. C. T. Russell of Sterling, Ill., has shown me Sterling No. 3, issued by H. Abschuler, being "fourth class" with frame.

Experimental Silk Paper.

Prof. Watson of Columbia University, N. Y, has the 1c and 4c Henry in experimental silk. He agrees with me that a careful search will disclose many of the Match and Medicine stamps in this experimental silk variety.

PROOFS, SPECIMENS AND ESSAYS.

Recently the Metropolitan Philatelist contained an editorial by J. W. Scott on the subject of proofs and essays of United States stamps. Shortly after its appearance, we received a letter from a most prominent dealer, suggesting that the dissertation in question be reprinted in the WEEKLY; he made the statement that his firm was constantly in the receipt of letters asking information as to kind and character of proofs and essays, tentative stamps whose nature and object are not widely understood. The suggestion was gladly received and favorably acted upon; we, too, have found that inquiry as to proofs and essays is a staple interrogation, and there is scarcely ever a time when there is not some form of question regarding these items on file in our "Queries and Comment" department. The following full and yet concise explanation should relieve us of the necessity of speaking of proofs and essays at length for some months to come:

One of our most highly esteemed subscribers has asked for some information about proofs with their associates, specimens and essays. We have some idea that we have written on this subject before within the last five years, but there are always new students, new readers, and new collectors. There is quite a difference between the man who studies his stamps and the one who studies the entire subject of his hobby. The owner of one of the finest collections in the world, thoroughly studies the postal affairs of the countries he is interested in, commencing with the law authorizing the making of stamps and only ending with the stamp after they have been used by the public. The birth of a stamp may commence with some rude diagram made by the Postmaster General. This idea is given to an artist to carry out and perhaps results in several drawings treating the subject in different ways. These sketches may be in pencil, pen and ink or may be moulded in part from portions of other stamps or perhaps may be a reduced photograph from a large picture. Drawings would be submitted for approval and would probably convince the Chief that he did not know as much of the subject as professional artists, and most likely they would be returned with a request to the engravers to submit designs of their own. These would probably consist of sketches, perhaps quite a number would be sent for choice and one or more ordered to be worked out in detail. Sometimes a rough engraving would be made and if it found favor would be carefully copied on steel. While these essays were being engraved a number of proofs would be taken of the partly finished work. Most of these would simply be taken for the use of the engraver and would be thrown away after examination. We now reach the stage where a practically perfect stamp has been made, proofs taken and submitted to the chief engraver, he may return it with some criticisms such as ordering heavier or lighter shadings or certain points to be brought out more prominently, letters enlarged, or reduced or more or less ornamentation. The artist may think the alterations are simply spoiling his work and may take a few proofs to show his friends and demonstrate how much more he knew than his official superior. Presuming that the finished article satisfies the authorities, orders may be sent to print the stamps in various colors, perhaps only a few primary colors are submitted, or if the actual color has been determined on, it may be struck off in every possible tint. We have seen proofs of the U. S. 2c 1883 in fifty different shades of red, commencing at very pale rose-vermilion gradually darkening up to deep mahogany brown. Finally plates have been made and the color chosen and the printing started, but then it may be found that the plate is not suited to the color or the color to the plate, one or the other must be altered, perhaps the shade is changed or perhaps it is decided to make some alterations in the plate, deepening some lines or etching a background to hold the ink. All of these changes have necessitated the taking of proofs. Those from the dies singly or by dozens, whereas the plate has furnished one hundred or more at each impression. It will thus be seen that plate proofs under any circumstances are at least one hundred times commoner than those taken from the dies. It is quite impossible to quote the different degrees or rarity, thousands have been made of which no single specimen remains, others owing to some peculiar circumstances may appear quite common, but this is more apparent than real. It is probably quite within the bounds of truth to say that in no case has there ever been more than one thousand proofs made of any stamp. To our mind proof collecting is the most fascinating branch of philately. The collector who works the hardest will get the most varieties and be the best posted on the subject, moreover every amateur will have some specimens not possessed by any of his competitors. The field is within reach of anyone with moderate means and offers the surest investment in the stamp line. It is very difficult to estimate the actual number of any variety in existence. Frequently the same identical stamp may be resold three or four times in a year, or a rare variety may be offered by half a dozen different dealers. The collector thinks the stamp is getting common, whereas not one of the dealers offering the stamp for sale owns it but all know where the solitary individual is and all are offering for sale the same stamp. The best list of essays, proofs and specimens in existence is the auction catalogue of the collection of the late William Alexander Smith, Jr., which was sold by us a few years ago. Mr. Smith never lost an opportunity to purchase any one of these stamps not in his collection. His collection would today realize three or four times the price it sold for.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centres. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—P. M. Gen. Cortelyou has directed that all bids received under the recent advertisement for the furnishing of stamped envelopes and wrappers be rejected and new bids called for. We can find no reason assigned for this. March 14 is the date for opening the new bids.

—Phillips' bargain bulletin number 5 has been received. Its pages are filled with seasonable offers, and will no doubt prove a "business bringer."

—We acknowledge receipt with thanks, of clippings from Ebersole Gaines, James A. Block, Theo. Siddall, Geo. E. Salt, W. W. Jewett, J. T. Hermansader, Dr. E. C. Martindale, O. S. Hart and Ira T. Fisher.

—Edw. de Z. Kelley recently addressed the Montrose (Mass.) Reading Club, giving a most interesting and instructive stamp talk, illustrating his address with the exhibition of rare and valuable stamps.

—Announcement is made elsewhere of the purchase by F. W. Pickard of the very fine collection of U. S. proofs and essays of H. B. Seagrave of Pontiac, Mich. To enumerate the rarities in this collection would take considerable of our space. Suffice it to say that it has been exhibited in many cities, and proven a great educational factor in the interests of philately. In the marvelous lot of revenue rarities is included the famous $5000 proof. Mr. Seagrave is too enthusiastic a collector to remain outside the ranks, and will shortly begin again along specialized lines.

—We are compelled to announce the death of one of our subscribers, Lieut. Col. John W. Coyne, who died at East Orange, N. J., a few days since. He was employed as disbursing officer at the New York Custom House. He was the first Union officer to capture a rebel flag on a battlefield, for which feat, while with the 70th New York Volunteers at the battle of Williamsburg, he was given a medal by Congress.

—The meeting of the Chicago Philatelic Society, held Mar. 7, was an interesting one. The entertainment committee featured a contest that proved perhaps the most successful of the many that have been held heretofore. Enlarged illustrations of surcharges, peculiar to a stamp or stamps of a single country were shown, and thirty seconds' time was allowed members for writing the name of the country claiming the distinctive surcharge. The highest marking was ninety, secured by F. N. Massoth, not in competition, he having named nine of the ten surcharges correctly. All the contestants were tripped up by the surcharge M. B. D., on the official stamps of Nangaon. Dr. Rogers and F. Michael, each with a marking of seventy, got first and second prizes respectively; Mr. Fowler was third and Mr. Hardy fourth; in all, six prizes were awarded.

—We have received from H. F. Colman a very handy price-list of stamps of the U. S. and its colonies, including also card board and India paper proofs, envelopes, packets and philatelic supplies. There is considerable information to be found in this little book of nearly 50 pages, as might be imagined with Geo. L. Toppan as the author. For instance under Philippines are given the figures indicating the number issued of some of the values which many of our readers will no doubt be glad to have in handy reference form. The pages devoted to Canal Zone indicate the work of a master hand. For specimen copy apply to H. F. Colman, 725 11th St., N. W., Washington, D. C.

—The stock of S. V. Saxby has been sold to the Eben S. Martin Co., Inc., of Chicago, Ill. This latter firm is certainly doing considerable in the way of "absorbing." Originally in Mazomanie, Wis., under the firm name of The Dane Co., the business has been moved to Chicago where a nice office has been opened in the First National Bank Bldg. under the firm name of the Eben S. Martin Co., Inc. This firm will certainly be heard from in coming months.

—The catalog of Drew's 181st sale is at hand. It contains a nice line of 20th century stamps, together with a goodly lot of U. S., including entire and cut square envelopes.

—The 5th of the Bernichon sales realized nearly $28,000. The five sales have thus far brought a grand total of $97,057, and the end is not yet.

—The current number of the Philatelic Journal of Great Britain contains a sketch of J. Read Burton, Vice-President of the City of London Philatelic Society. Mr. Burton is an enthusiastic collector, and at the present time is busily engaged in collecting and studying the early imperforate Chile. He is advertising for original covers, as will be seen by our Trade Column.

—L. Harald Kjellstedt has become a "Fellow" of the Royal Philatelic Society, having been elected at the meeting held Feb. 21.

—We have received a copy of the Reformed Church Visitor, published at Lehighton, Pa. It tells the story of the Mission Stamp Enterprise of which the Rev. D. A. Winter is the originator and manager. During the past fifteen years he has amassed several million of stamps which have been sold for the benefit of missions. A Mr. Yano, at present time a student at Princeton, has been able to take advantage of an American education as one of the results of this work.

—The new Philippine stamps are as pretty as any ever made and will help to embellish many an album in the United States, but what the feelings of the Philippines may be, when they look at some of the portraits on these stamps, is quite another matter. They are decidedly not Philippine stamps, but U. S. stamps for use in the Philippine Islands.

—We have received the catalog of the 3rd sale to be held by the Boston Stamp Exchange on Tuesday evening, March 12. As at the previous sales an open exchange will be in order from 7 to 8 o'clock, in which local collectors are invited to parcipate.

—The Denver Stamp Club is circulating each week among the pupils of the Denver public schools 15 copies of the WEEKLY with packages of stamps, with the intention of making Denver a regular hot-bed of philatelic enthusiasm. Many new recruits are expected from among the older pupils.

—It seems as though the charge of Pan-American Exposition stamp graft will not down. Dr. J. C. McGuire sends us a clipping from the Washington Times in which former Third Asst. P. M. Gen. Madden admits that his resignation was not voluntary. It is very evident that P. M. Gen. Cortelyou is determined to overhaul the department and sift the charges of irregularities in which postal card and stamp grafts are alleged. Further developments are promised.

OUR PARIS SPECIAL.

Your attention is called to the fact that our issue of March 30 will be a superb number; one that will be widely circulated and very widely read. It will be guarded jealously by the philatelists into whose hands it may fall and advertising inserted in this issue will have a permanent value.

As an advertiser you cannot afford to miss this number. Our advertising dummy is being made up and you should indicate at once space desired. We can thus give you a good assignment.

Should a sample copy of this week's issue come into your possession, read its contents carefully and especially our announcement on page 5. Our 25c offer is one that should prove very attractive. If you are a collector of stamps without MEKEEL'S WEEKLY you are in the same situation as a ship without rudder, chart or compass.

EDITORIAL.

Onward—The past few weeks have been advantageous ones for philately in the public prints. The hobby has been mentioned favorably or brought engagingly to the attention of readers, not alone in newspapers but also, in publications of pretensions. We know that when non-philatelic readers see references to stamp collecting often enough in print, they are likely to believe in it, finally. The "paper profits" that philately has made particularly since the advent of the National Stamp Committee are huge; and each person who now is a collector may be said to have participated in the distribution of what may be called the intangible increment. Perhaps, we are prone to dwell too much upon the advertising benefits that are being conferred on philately, but all who realize the value of proper publicity will understand that the subject cannot easily be dismissed with a few words of rejoicing.

Stamps Should Lead—In the Saturday Evening Post of March 2nd, is an article, "A Middle-Aged Business Man's Health," by Woods Hutchinson, M. D. In the course of the article the business man is adjured to have a hobby; if he has none, he is enjoined to beg, borrow or hire one, preferably, two, one for indoor occupation and the other for the open air. In the list of hobbies of worthy end, stamps have their place. The insistence with which the necessity for a hobby is proclaimed, shows how important a factor it is in conserving or vitalizing the physical and mental economies of the middle-aged man. The hobby is lauded as an artistic avenue, apart from the monetary and material course of life, and is held to be an inspiration whose suggestions prolong youthful thought and feeling. We trust that we are not prejudiced in saying that stamps, of all the hobbies in the list, appeal most invitingly, not alone because of their accessibility and portability, but because they offer the most refreshing and attractive aspect, with a dash of mental piquancy. [illegible] 3.T.8

Ideal as a Hobby—Another writer in addressing married women advised them to encourage their husbands in their indulgence in some hobby, merely on the score of keeping them interested in home occupations. While it is remarked that the encouragement of a hobby is attended with some self-sacrifice on the part of the wife, yet the returns from her self-abnegation are ample compensation. Stamps, it should be pointed out, do not occasion the "clutter" nor demand the space that some hobbies do, and thus they overcome what are deemed some of the objections of a hobby, in the estimation of the writer; and it would seem that stamps were in mind, when it was suggested that the preferable hobby was one in which the younger members of the family might become interested.

Praise Indeed—The Chicago Record-Herald recently printed an editorial on the subject of our coins and postage stamps, in which our stamps were spoken of with appreciation; and as what may be called the philatelic references of the article are marked, we quote its observations, as follows: "The designing of coins and postage stamps may not be high art, but it is a most difficult art, and if the greatest skill is not employed, it is impossible to get results which will be considered attractive either by artists or by amateurs. It is a peculiar fact that the United States, with all its 'commercialism,' has achieved very high rank among the nations for the beauty of the designs both of its stamps and of its coins. . . . Not long ago the English weekly, the Spectator, discussing the artistic phases of a great exhibition of postage stamps which had been held in the hall of the Horticultural Society at Westminster, said very positively that whereas all other countries had been steadily degenerating in the beauty of their stamps since their earliest issue, the United States had shown steady improvement, till now our stamps were in a class superior to those of all other countries, with the exception, perhaps, of an occasional issue here and there. The praise went to design, to color and to workmanship. The Spectator found difficulty in explaining our superiority, and the best answer it could give was that the superiority lay in the 'superabundant vitality of a nation, which, like a busy man, still has more time to devote to apparently unimportant business.' If the study of postage stamps really leads into a 'by-path in the study of national character,' as the Spectator thinks, we have plenty of reason to cheer up, however doleful our dumps, for we are certainly not among the decadents." It looks as though it will not be long before the study of stamps, or philately, will be considered worth while, even by those who have no inherent or temperamental liking for stamps; and when that day comes, philately certainly will have achieved an impregnable position. Then, instead of having to explain philately on every possible occasion, we shall merely have to expound it.

Worth Our Eye—It is a fact that collectors living abroad, and particularly in Great Britain, have been rather freer in their praise of the beauty and excellence of workmanship of our stamps than we have ourselves. It is known that there are great specialists of our issues in foreign countries and words of commendation of American stamps are often seen in the press; and all this is significant, as the historical suggestions in which our stamps are so rich, naturally do not appeal so strongly to the men of other nations than to those of our own.

Needed—If there ever was an advertisement in this paper that should have brought replies, it was that which appeared recently, in which the advertiser offered to send at a nominal price, certain United States issues, properly classified on National, Continental and American Bank Note Company papers, and showing the varieties of the three puzzling papers. A continuous round of questions is received by the WEEKLY on the subject of these papers, and explain as we will, the queries come. In the past, we have advised collectors to buy paper varieties, represented by the cheapest stamps in the sets, to serve for purposes of comparison and identification. We do not know whether many of our readers acted upon the invitation of the advertisement, but, at least a "long-felt want" was offered; and if it was not accepted generally by our newer readers, it goes to prove that, as we have observed before, students do not want to have their tasks made too simple.

Germany's Expansion—An old collector in looking at one of the modern albums expressed surprise upon seeing Germany represented so well in the colonial division; in his collecting day, that country had no stamp issuing possessions. We know that Germans, as a rule, are proud of their comparatively recently acquired colonies, and it is natural, in consequence, that philatelists be particularly engrossed, as Germans, in the stamp issues. The colonial ambitions of Germany are regarded as significant by many, and its acquirement in the space of two decades of many colonies shows how the trend of empire lay. Within the last twenty years, Germany has gained control of six groups of islands; the Bismarck archipelago, the Marshall archipelago, part of the Solomon group, the Caroline and Pelew archipelago, the Marianne or Ladrones, excepting Guam, and German New Guinea. The African interests of Germany are well known; and in other directions, Germany is trying to enlarge its sphere of influence.

A Press Triumph—H. L. Ewen, publisher of Ewen's Weekly Stamp News, is heartily congratulated upon his successful defense of a suit for damages brought against him in a London court. The plaintiff held that he had been slandered when practically charged with having been concerned in the circulation of certain South African surcharges that according to expert opinion were counterfeit. We shall refer to the action in a a ter ssue.

Lot of Filled Approval Sheets FOR DEALERS

A lot of filled approval sheets all in perfect order and all ready to send out. The sheets contain 50 stamps each, priced according to catalogue and running as high as 25 cents and over that. Here and there a 35c, 50c stamp. There are about from 30 to 40 sheets in the lot and contain large variety. Stamps both used and unused, no U. S., no cut envelopes, no postal cards. A very fine lot for anyone doing an approval sheet business, as you can send them out the day you get them. Have never been folded nor soiled in any way. This lot of sheets price up to $70 00, and they usually run a little over that but not below. Price $6.75. You can give 50%, 60%, 75% or even 80% discount and still more than double your money.

This is a great bargain and almost every order has been duplicated or trebled in a very short time. [H as well as Mr. Seagrave's large accumulation of United States and foreign stamps. The philatelic press has had much to say regarding this remarkable collection of U. S. proofs and essays, which is one of the finest extant, and collectors in these lines are now offered, in the breaking up of this magnificent lot, an opportunity which may not be duplicated in the next five years. Everything is to be sold, and at a reasonable price, though this is not a forced sale nor are slaughter house prices promised. Only collectors of proofs and essays can properly appreciate the extreme rarity of Mr. Seagrave's treasures.

Pricing will be completed this week, and correspondence with earnest collectors is invited.

SPECIAL DELIVERY STAMPS.

The Senate has passed the House bill permitting the use of stamps to the value of 10c of any denomination in place of a special delivery stamp, the only requirement being that the additional stamps must bear an endorsement in writing of the words "Special Delivery." Feeling that information would be welcome as to the possible supplanting and discontinuance of the present special delivery stamp the WEEKLY has made inquiry, receiving the following letter from A. M. Travers, acting third assistant postmaster general:

"In reply to your recent letter asking whether it is intended to discontinue the issue of special delivery stamps in view of the legislation authorizing the use of ordinary postage stamps for special delivery service, you are advised that the law mentioned does not provide for any discontinuance of the stamp referred to, and no consideration has yet been given the question as to whether its discontinuance is advisable."

As we go to press a communication is received from Joseph A. Steinmetz, which contains a letter from Postmaster Ashland of Philadelphia, from which we quote the following: "So far as I know the new regulation will not become effective before June 30, 1907, although it may be that the Postmaster General may issue orders putting it sooner. I think it likely no action will be taken before that date."

FREAK POSTALS BARRED.

Orders by Postmaster General Which Will Hurt Them.

WASHINGTON, March 10.—An order has been issued by the postmaster general providing new regulations governing the size, form and weight of private postcards entering the mails. Such postcards must be made of an unfolding piece of cardboard, not exceeding three and nine-sixteenths by five and nine-sixteenths inches, nor less than two and three-fourths by four inches. They must be in form, quality and weight of paper substantially like the government postcards. They may be of any color, not interfering with a legible address and postmark.

Thin sheets of paper may be attached to them on condition that they completely adhere to the card. Cards bearing particles of glass, metal, mica, sand, tinsel or other similar substances will not be accepted for mailing except when enclosed in envelopes.

A NEW STAMP ISSUING COLONY.

Toward the close of last year a new stamp-issuing country took its place in the albums and catalogues of collectors. This was Brunei, a native Sultanate on the northwest coast of the island of Borneo. Many philatelists will perhaps remember that about a dozen years ago a set of stamps bearing this title was heralded in the new issues columns; but investigation proved them to be impostors and they are now seldom seen or heard of. Brunei was once not the insignificant state that it is at present. During the first half of the last century nearly all of North Borneo was subject to its Sultan—the larger southern part having become a Dutch possession. But the Sultan's power dwindled, and in 1841 he signed away the larger part of his dominions toward the southwest to an English adventurer, named James Brooke, whom we know under his title of Rajah of Sarawak. In 1846 the English obtained the cession of the island of Labuan, at the mouth of Brunei Bay, as a basis of operations against the Malay pirates. Finally, in 1877, an English chartered company obtained the cession of the larger part of his remaining possessions in the northeast of the island, and the Sultan was reduced to a small slice between Sarawak and British North Borneo, guarded off the coast by the Colony of Labuan. On May 12, 1888, all these territories, including Brunei, were made British Protectorates.

Hitherto Brunei seems to have gotten along very well without special stamps, those of Labuan, but six miles away, doubtless being used if any were employed. But October 1906 Labuan was incorporated with the Straits Settlements, and the opportunity seems to have been taken to make up for Brunei's previous deficiencies by overprinting all the discarded stamps of Labuan with the name of the Sultanate. Hardly had this been done, when specimen copies of a definite issue appeared, and it is one of these we have figured above.

The new stamps are very neat, the main feature being a view of what is probably a portion of the capital town. This is also called Brunei (pronounced Broo-ni), and is situated some fifteen or twenty miles inland on the Lampong - more often called the Brunei—river. Like most places on the coast, it is an "amphibious" town—a "Venice of the East," as most travellers describe it. The river at this point has a lake-like expansion to a width of more than a mile, and the vast collection of houses is built on piles in the water. The branches of the river form the four principal streets, in the main one of which good sized vessels can lie at anchor, while innumerable canoes move about in every direction, their occupants generally almost naked. Each house, which is built of wood and mats, has a ladder to the water, and all exit must be made in boats. The town was formerly much larger, but at present has perhaps some ten thousand inhabitants. A British Resident has been stationed there as advisor to the Sultan since October, 1905.

SAVE MONEY

Several thousand collectors are buying stamps on approval at 50% discount, not any better, if as good, as those we give 60% discount on. They pay $5 net for $10 cat. value, which they could get from our books for $4. Are you one? Do you know that for the average collector our non-duplicating series of 60% books cannot be beat? If you spend $1 or more at a time and are interested, let us hear from you. Our money saving lists are free. We give 60% discount on sales of $2.50 catalog value, or $1 net from all our 50% books. Is really a straight 60% as we do not send out for less sales. Here are a few of our books. For list of others write us.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES.

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Any information regarding new issues will be gratefully received and acknowledged. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. The figures in parentheses refer to the previous number of the WEEKLY in which the same country was noticed ARGENTINE. — Le Collectionneur de Timbres-Poste chronicles a new set of wrappers, which it says is the beginning of a complete new series of stamps and stationery for Argentine. The new series has a portrait of Gen. San Martin, the wrappers having a round frame like the old series.

Wrappers.

½c red.
1c dark blue.
2c brown lilac.
4c green.

BAVARIA.—Quite a number of additions to the list of the provisionals are reported by Mr. Schachne. To simplify matters we will include all varieties known to us at this time, part having already been noticed in Nos. 827–830 and 835. For easy reference we put it in tabular form. The column headed "Dots" refers to the cards without the heavy address line, the "60" and "90" to the length of the said line.

	Dots	60	90	No Arms	No Watermark
2 plus 3pf	00	01	01	03	03-04-05-06
Double	00-01	01	01-02-03	03	03-05-06

Double	00 01	01	01-03	03	03-05-06

BELGIUM.—A correspondent of Le Collectionneur de Timbres-Poste announces that changes are to be made in the frame of the coupon on the current 1c, 2c and 5c newspaper stamps.

BRAZIL.—Der Philatelist adds several values to the list of new postage due stamps noted in No. 836. The color of the 300r was incorrectly given before.

Postage Due Adhesives.

20r violet.
300r brown.

CANAL ZONE.—H. Leonard favors us with a copy of the new post card, and states that 50,000 were issued.

Our correspondent at Pedro Miguel submits a specimen of an official seal patterned after that issued for the U. S. but bearing in the lower half of the stamp the inscription "Canal Zone Government." The color of the stamp is pale blue. With the exception of the inscription and color above referred to the seal is a perfect counterpart of the U. S. regular issue. It is supplied in blocks of eight, two vertical rows of four.

Official Seal.

Pale blue.

CYPRUS.—New post cards have been issued for the Island according to Der Philatelist.

Post Cards.

10pa orange.
10x10pa orange.

DOMINICA—The North Shore Stamp Co. have shown us the 1sh value on chalky paper supplementary to the values listed in No. 844.

DENMARK.—Another value of the current set has appeared with portrait of King Frederick, the frame being the same as the previous issue. The New England Stamp Co. has shown us this stamp.

Adhesive.

100 ore yellow brown.

ECUADOR.—According to El Coleccionista the following quantities are to be printed of the new 1907–08 set: 1c, 1,000,000; 2c, 1,000,000; 3c, 1,000,000; 5c, 2,000,000; 10c, 1,000,000; 20c, 500,000; 50c, 100,000; 1s, 50,000.

EGYPT.—The "Service" stamp, which has just become obsolete, is reported to have been printed on chalky paper.

GREAT BRITAIN.—Morocco Agencies.—In addition to the registration envelope noted in No. 842, the following stationery is reported by Ewen and Der Philatelist:

Post Cards.

5c on ½d yellow green.
10c on 1d carmine, buff paper.

Wrappers.

5c on ½d yellow green.
10c on 1d dark red.

GRENADA. — The 3d lilac and orange King's Head stamps has appeared on chalky multiple paper, according to Ewen's Weekly.

NEW ZEALAND —Rev. L. G. Dorpat informs us that on Jan. 18 New Zealand issued the current set of stamps surcharged "OFFICIAL" for the use of government officers in lieu of the franking privilege. The following values are known to exist: ½, 1, 2, 3, 6d and 1, 2, 5sh.

The ½d of the exhibition set is sold out and the other values will no doubt be exhausted before the exhibition closes in April.

NICARAGUA.—Hermann Focke sends us the 15c, 20c and 50c, in the new Waterlow print, and all without surcharge of any kind.

PANAMA.—Our correspondent at Pedro Miguel, C. Z., writes as follows: "I was at the Panama city post office the 22nd and found that the 2c without the surcharge had recently been placed on sale there. I expected this would be the final outcome of the matter, but not so soon. The contents of the letter that I sent you recently were based on the latest information that I could obtain. I cannot give you the exact date, however, upon which this stamp was placed upon sale."

The above sustains the original contention arising from the copy shown us on a cover by Mr. Focke. The latter writes that he has read with interest the recent statement regarding the issue of this stamp without surcharge. However, the specimen submitted to the WEEKLY came on the business mail of a prominent house with Central American connections, and was used by a party in Panama who certainly has no time to bother with stamps for the franking of his letters.

SURINAM.—The New England Stamp Co. has shown us the full set of the higher values of the new set. The 10c is in the 1907 catalogue, and we give the balance of the set with colors.

Adhesives.

15c brown.
20c olive.
25c violet.
30c red brown.
50c claret.
1g purple.
2½g blue green.

TUNIS.—Two letter cards are chronicled by Der Philatelist, the stamps being of the same design as the current adhesives.

Letter Cards.

10c rose on green.
15c violet gray on green.

WURTEMBERG.— Champion's Bulletin reports that the 2pf gray, 3pf brown, 5pf green, 10pf rose and 25pf orange, type of 1875, and 10pf rose, 20pf blue, 25pf orange, 40pf carmine and black and 1m violet, type of 1881, official stamps have been issued on paper watermarked Cross and Circles.

TONGA.—Ewen reports that the current 2½d pictorial stamp comes in two distinct shades, dull blue and dark blue.

PHILIPPINES STAMP BONFIRE.

All Damaged Stock on Hand at Post Office Burned.

A committee of three has been appointed for the purpose of destroying all the damaged stamps on hand at the bureau of posts February 10. The committee consists of Colonel Bandholtz, Examiner Easthagen and a member of the force at the executive bureau.

The damaged stamps will include practically all of the two surcharged series. Up to the date mentioned, any person desiring to purchase any of this old stock can do so by making out a list of the stamps desired and submitting it to the director of posts. Such lists must be accompanied by a cash deposit equal to the total amount of the stamps ordered. The committee will be instructed to lay aside such stamps as they may find of those ordered.

The only stamps in good condition on hand of the first issue are the 4c and 6c. Of this issue, there are no 1c, 5c, 15c, 50c, $1.00, $2.00 or $5.00, and but a very few 2c, 3c, 8c and 10c, all adhering to each other or to the oiled paper.

Of the second issue, there are many 1c, 2c, 5c, 10c, 13c, 15c and 50c, with about 3,000 $1.00, 2500 $2.00 and 500 $5 00. There are no 3c, 4c or 6c, and a very few 8c of this issue, and none in good condition.—Manila Times.

QUERIES AND COMMENT.

Edited by C. E. SEVERN.

Our readers are cordially invited to ask the editor for any information desired concerning stamp collecting. Should a personal reply be desired kindly enclose postage. This department is for the beginner as well as the advanced collector. Address, C. E. SEVERN, 820 Oxford Bdg., Chicago Ill.

Two readers are informed that many of the recent issues of stamps are not priced in the catalogues in used condition for the reason that quantities of canceled specimens of the certain stamps have not yet become available for importation, and so have not reached the hands of the dealers issuing the catalogues. Consequently, they forbear pricing the stamps in used condition until they can proceed, basing their estimate on actual stocks on hand or on seasoned data that they have gathered concerning the stamps in question. Some of the stamps that are unpriced in the recent editions of catalogues in the "used" column may now be very common.

S. L.:—Most of our information concerning the single CA, British colonies, king's heads, comes from the English stamp papers, which reflect continually augmented interest in the stamps and advancing prices for many of the stamps. The single CA's seem to have attained a popularity that perhaps even those who welcomed the change to multiple paper did not anticipate, and one that greatly transcends that predicted for the singles by those who minimized the distinction between single and multiple paper.

E. T. B.:—The printing of advertisements on the backs of the New Zealand stamps, 1892 issue, was begun in 1893 and discontinued in 1894. The plan was adopted to raise revenue for the government, and was in no wise a philatelic expedient on the part of the authorities. Ewen's Weekly Stamp News, London, some years ago published lists of the varieties of the advertisements. We think that no collectors gather these advertisement varieties consistently; in these days of big philatelic game, collectors do not waste their shot on tame varieties of this sort.

W.:—The newspaper article that you refer to contained several inaccuracies, one of which you point out. The article in question was not sent out by the National Stamp Committee, we make haste to say.

C. C. L.:—So soon as the bill that has been introduced into the House of Representatives, and referred to the proper committee to authorize the use of any stamps to the amount of ten cents in payment of the special delivery fee, becomes a law, notification to the public will be made by the postoffice department at what date the law becomes operative. (2) See the issue of February 16th, editorial column, for remarks on the one-cent and two-cent, current issue, imperforate. While other values imperforate are not a probability they are a possibility.

G. K.:—Your one-cent current issue in blue, instead of green, is a changeling. The stamp was not issued in blue but the green color of your specimen was changed into blue, no doubt, by chemical action. Green is easily altered to blue; immersion in sea water will effect the result in some instances.

T. T. R.:—We assume that the variety of Queensland, nine pence, 1903 or current issue, with "Queensland" in large letters, is not considered of sufficient importance by the compilers to warrant cataloguing. The last number of the Australian Philatelist says that the variety is not appearing in the sheets as formerly, one in each sheet; it quotes a correspondent, who says that all the stamps in later sheets are uniform or in the smaller type.

D. R. C.:—We do not recognize the label that is referred to by our reader, who says: "I have got a stamp with Lord Baltimore's picture and name on it. It is imperforate and in two colors, red and bluish gray, with a wreath around the picture. Is it valuable or not?" Our correspondent may be describing a label of some kind that is commonly in mind of some of our readers; if so, as a matter of curiosity, we should like to know what specimen of non-postalic kind fits the description given.

COMMUNICATION.

FRESNO, CAL., Feb. 26, 1907.

TO THE EDITOR:

I have read with approval the remarks of Maj. E. B. Evans, E. P. Buvinger and others in your columns in regard to minor varieties. I think the only disappointment collectors have felt in the last edition of the Scott catalogue is the dropping of certain varieties previously listed, notably the U. S. envelopes. It necessarily requires a very sound judgment to determine just what minor varieties shall enter into the catalogue, but once catalogued, collectors demand that they shall always be catalogued. Only the discovery that a stamp is bogus warrants its withdrawal after it has once been listed. It is particularly untimely that the catalogue should drop these varieties just at the time when an era of great interest in U. S. envelopes is beginning. One of the most interesting, if not actually the most interesting, articles that has appeared in the stamp press for years is the series of lists being compiled by Louis G. Barrett. That all these different types should be listed and arranged while in actual use is a great advantage to having to delve in past lore and widely scattered material for them. The catalogue has taken the liberty to insert various new minor varieties of shade, always a distressing subject for collectors, while variation in the type and design is often evident to the casual observer.

With regard to the many types of the current 2 cent envelope, it seems to me that the department's attention should be called to it. While there is not so much danger of the counterfeiting of a stamped envelope as of an adhesive, still with over 100 varying types all readily distinguished by the unaided eye, it would seem as if even a government expert would have hard work in deciding whether any given envelope stamp were genuine or a counterfeit. Almost anything that looks somewhat like the current 2-cent would probably pass, so great is the variation in the types.

SALES SUPT.'S REPORT No. 24.

401 Ft. Dearborn Bldg., CHICAGO, March 9, 1907.

In my last report, No. 23, I called attention to the fact that the many requests for circuits required the establishment of a "Waiting List" and a decrease in the frequency of all regular circuits, especially the Weekly Circuits.

Since then the Waiting List has about doubled and I regret the delay very much, especially as the majority on the waiting list are new members, many having informed me that they joined the Association on purpose to take advantage of the benefits of the Sales Department.

The retirement of many old books in addition to the many new members is the cause to a very large degree, but matters would be greatly improved if the members will push along the circuits as rapidly as possible.

There is a constant demand for good books of 20th Century Stamps, British Colonials and moderate priced stamps. Very high priced stamps or very cheap stamps do not sell so well. Books hold 120 stamps and should be valued at not less than $10 per book to make a good showing.

Some members have a very good idea as to prices and their books sell from 60% to 80%, while others hardly sell enough to pay cost of insurance. It is this latter class of books that keeps the average sales of the Dept. down, in comparison with the amount sent in and retired. Many members only buy decided bargains.

The attention of members is called to the fact that the bunching of circuits, receiving two or more within a few days, is caused by delays of other members along the route. This fact can be readily seen from the dates on the White Circuit Route Sheet, when it started and where it was detained along the line. The Superintendent can not regulate the movements of a circuit after it leaves his office, and is in no way to blame if you do not get a circuit for six weeks and then get three all at once.

Do not forget to use only the very best hinges and forward the wrapper of any circuit you may receive that was not mailed to you SEALED and REGISTERED, postage being 22 cts., as provided by the rules. There have been many violations of this important regulation, several members having written on the wrappers "3rd Class" in order to save a few cents postage and thereby risking several hundred dollars' worth of fellow members' valuable property.

If those Branches that have their Branch Managers take care of circuits will notify me in time the dates of their meetings, I will try to have one or more circuits there for them to look over.

P. M. WOLSIEFFER, Sales Supt.

MEMBERSHIP.

MILWAUKEE, WIS., March 4, 1907.

While Mr. Rosenthal was Chairman of the Recruiting Committee he sent out requests for the names of prospective members. From the replies received it appears most of our members are acquainted with many collectors in their immediate localities who are not members of the American Philatelic Association.

While it is of course the duty of the Recruiting Committee and all officers to show stamp collectors how and why it is to their advantage to join the principal philatelic association in America, it is also hoped and expected each and every member will make an effort to get at least one new member into the Association. Considering the large number of collectors in this country, we should have a membership of at least 2000. All that is necessary to induce collectors to join is to explain the manifold benefits which are received at a cost of only TEN CENTS per month. This can be done by letter but when possible a personal interview is usually better.

I will be glad to send Booklets and Application Blanks to all who will make an effort to secure new members. Collectors are at liberty to write any member of the Recruiting Committee for information in regard to membership.

We now have but 43 members in 10 Southern States, viz:—Alabama 2, Arkansas 2, Florida 1, Georgia 3, Louisiana 4, Maryland 7, North Carolina 2, South Carolina 5, Texas 11, Virginia 6, and this is far more than we have had.

If any of our members know collectors in the South whom they can induce to join I wish they would make an effort to get them into the fold.

If this notice is seen by a Southern collector (or any other) I trust he will not hesitate to write and make inquiries in regard to membership.

C. C. JOHNSON, Chairman.

UNITED STATES REVENUE SOCIETY.

Pres., GEO. J. CARTER; Vice Pres., C. H. EAGLE; 2nd Vice Pres., W. S. ALDRICH; Sec. HOLLAND A. DAVIS, 1622 Welton St., Denver, Col.; Treas., WM. T. KIMBALL; Sales Mgr., GEO. R. TUTTLE, 116 Nassau St., New York City; Atty., H. D. WATSON.

The Board of Governors announce the appointment of the following Committees. It is hoped each member appointed will serve the Society in this capacity.

Constitution and By-Laws—P. M. Wolsieffer, chairman, Max Isenstein, Prof. F. D. Sherman, W. O Wylie, A. F. Henkels, W. S. Aldrich.

Publication and Literature—Jos. A. Steinmetz, chairman, Wm. C. Stone, Clarence H. Eagle, Dr. Geo. Hetrich, C. A Nast.

Press and Publicity—W. O. Wylie, chairman, L. T. Brodstone, A. F. Boehm, Karl Sherman.

Obituary—C. E. Severn, chairman, A. P. Hosmer, Herman W Boers.

Expert—C. A. Nast, chairman, Clarence H. Eagle, H. D. Watson, Geo. J. Carter, A.G. Bishop.

Application blanks will soon be in the hands of the members. If each member will secure one new applicant within the next five months our membership will total 200 at the time of the 1st Annual Convention in Denver next August. Let us set the mark then, at 200. There is not a member of this society who cannot accomplish this much. Our success depends on each individual member. A little enthusiasm, coupled with the determination "I will" and we will land the 100 new members, and come in under the wire with flying colors "on a trot."

It is not intended that our Revenue Society should conflict with the American Philatelic Association. Most of our members belong also to the A. P. A. In our zeal for the success of the U. S. R. S., let us not neglect the duties we owe to our larger National Society.

F. R. CORNWALL, Pres.; J. H. HUMES, Vice Pres.; WALLACE DELAFIELD, JR., Treas.; CHESTER MYERS, Sec.; S. B. HOPKINS, Exch. Mgr. and Lib.; Governing Board: above named officers, DR J. W. HIGSON, F. MILLHOUSE and G. SCHELLHORN.

The fifty-second regular meeting of this Society was held Tuesday, March 5th, 1907, at usual time and place. In absence of President Cornwall, Vice President Humes occupied the chair. 15 members were present. Mr. George Wood, 3920 Maffitt Ave., was elected to membership. The competitive exhibit of the stamps of Jamaica resulted as follows:—Millhouse first, Higson second, Delafield third. Highest average 73 points. Messrs. Higson and Delafield tied for second honors and by mutual consent decided which should occupy that position by the flip of a coin, Dr. Higson winning, not by the proverbial "nose" but by a head. A copy of "The Stamp King," purchased for the Society's library by 16 members, has been placed in circulation, the order being that in which subscriptions were received. The customary informal auction brought this highly enjoyable evening to a close. The contest for next meeting, March 19th, has been changed from "Essay prize contest" to exhibition of Norway. Messrs. Cornwall, Diamant and Hopkins will not compete.

CHESTER MYERS, Sec'y.

REPORT OF SECRETARY.

The following is the result of the canvass of votes cast at the recent election: Total votes cast, 19. Pres., S. Schachne 19; Vice Pres., H. E. Deats 11, A. D. Mayo 7, H. E. Carpenter, Jr., 1; Sec'y, S. M. Edwards 19; Treas., J. N. Morse 17, J. T. A. Hosbach 1; Ex. Com., W. G. Saxton 15, H. E. Carpenter, Jr., 17, Paul Lazarus 7, F. A. Knoll 6, W. C. Stone 8, N. H. Withee 1, Dr. Dimmock 1, A. D. Mayo 1, S. Schachne 1; Official Organ, WEEKLY STAMP NEWS, 19.

I hereby declare the following the officers for the society for the ensuing year: For President, S. Schachne; Vice President, H. E. Deats; Secretary, S. M. Edwards; Treasurer, J. N. Morse; Executive Committee, W. G. Saxton, H. E. Carpenter, Jr., and W. C. Stone; Official Organ, MEKEEL'S WEEKLY STAMP NEWS. The votes received are from Nos 39, 82 proxy to 39, 68, 7, 42 proxy to 62, 48, 83, 29, 58, 70, 35, 79, 84, 85, 10, 8, 61, 34 and 6.

Dues rec'd since last report from Nos. 48, 8, 32, 70, 42 and 45 for 1906; 10, 48, 8, 32, 29 and 34 for 1907; total $12.00, which with January receipts I have remitted to the treasurer, $19.00. There are still seven members delinquent, whom the secretary will address for the third time, and if he does not receive a favorable response from them, they will be dropped from membership.

Applicant for Membership: Alfred E. Fritz, room 532, 154 E. Lake St., Chicago. References: C. E. Severn and S. Schachne. Proposed by Pres. Schachne. New Member: 88, Kinell, Rev. A. Reinstated: 28, Arnold, W. D., and 38, C. B. Duffy. Resigned: 12, Guy A. Bryant. Changes of Address: H. E. Carpenter, Jr., to P. O. Box 553, W. C. Stone to 21 Princeton St., C. H. Valentine to 619 McDonough St., all in the same cities as before.

It is with sincere regret and sorrow that we are obliged to chronicle the death of our fellow member, 78, R. R. Bogert, on the 23d of January. Mr. Bogert became a member of this society in June 1892. Resigned April 1900, while in France, again became a member in August 1906.

Annual Report.

" " " 1906 "	29 00
" " " 1907 "	7 00
" applicants, balance of 1906 dues,	3.00
" " 1907 dues,	11.00
Total receipts,	$52.00

The secretary will shortly get out a revised list of members. If any member desires his address different from that on the present list, kindly apprise the secretary at once. The changes of address as noted in this report will be as stated therein. Now is the time for new members. Let us have a good list to start with. If each member will send in a new one—that doubles our present number. Thanking all for their courtesy toward the secretary and charity for his short-coming, he is, sincerely,

S. M. EDWARDS, Sec'y.

NOTES ON UNITED STATES STAMPS.

BY H. A. DAVIS.—No. 2. THE 2c STAMP.

Being one of a series of papers distinguishing the different issues read before the Denver Stamp Club.

The first two cent stamp printed by the United States Government was issued July 1st, 1863, this was nearly two years after the regular issues of this set. It is said by many to be the ugliest stamp ever issued by the United States. It is printed in black to grayish black on hard paper. It has a full faced portrait of Andrew Jackson by the artist William De Leftwich Dodge, so most histories of U. S. Stamps inform us. But as Dodge was born in Liberty, Va., in 1867, four years after the issue of this stamp, this is hardly possible, and I am unable to say who was the artist.

The portrait covers nearly the entire stamp, the numeral 2 in each upper corner and U and S in each lower corner with the words two and cents in the right and lower corners respectively, with U. S. Postage just above the portrait in a curved line.

We have five stamps to compare comprising five different issues, but of the same design. They were all printed by the National Bank Note Co. We have to distinguish then between the issues 1863, three varieties of 1867-8 and the reissue or reprint of 1875. The three stamps of 1867-68 were merely different size grills. There were 300,705,050 of these stamps issued comprising the 1863-68 issues. Of these, 46,440,000 were issued with grill. I am unable to find any record of the number issued of the reprints.

The 1st, or 1863 is on slightly tinted yellowish or buff hard paper without grill, the 2d, 1867 is the same but has a grill measuring 12x14 mm. The 3d, 1867-8 is also the same, but grill measures 11x13, the 4th likewise but with grill 9x13 mm. The reissue of 1875 is on pure white hard paper without grill and without gum as usual.

The next issue is that of 1869, is printed in brown and bears the famous design of postman on horseback. This stamp is square in form about 20x20 mm and has a grill about 9 to 9½ x 9 to 9½; 114,058,000 issued. This is to be distinguished from the reissue or reprint of 1875. The reissue has no grill and the paper is very white instead of the yellowish tint of the original 1869. It must be remembered also that there was issued also the original without grill. It is rather difficult, sometimes to distinguish between the original without grill and the reprint unless both stamps are clean and in good condition; the reprint may be picked out by its pure white paper. It will be remembered that the originals were coated with a brown gum, while the reprints if they have gum is of pure gum arabic and therefore colorless; however most of the reprints were issued without gum.

The original without grill is quite rare, cataloged at $40.00, while the reissue is cataloged at $7.50.

The next issue is that of 1870. This is also printed in brown. Bust of Andrew Jackson in profile to the left after Hiram Powers. Powers was a sculptor born in Vermont, 1805, died in Florence, Italy, in 1873. His portrait bust of Jackson was executed probably about 1835. The bust is on a shield with vertical ground colored lines, curved at the top with diagonal corners. "U. S. Postage" at the top, "two cents" below, divided by the large numeral 2.

This group comprises five issues, three regular and two reissues all of the same general design and are to be distinguished as the corresponding one cent stamp, by the paper, grill, gum, shade, secret mark, etc. 1870 or National print, grilled, 1871 or National without grill, 1873 or Continental print, a special printing of 1875 and another reissue of 1880 by the American Bank Note Company.

The 1870 by the National Company is on thin hard paper slightly buff tinted and has a grill 8½ to 9 x 10½ to 11½ mm; 208,375,550 issued with grill. The 1871 also by the National Company is the same, but without grill. The 1873 by the Continental Bank Note Company is the same, but there is a small diagonal mark running from the ball of the scroll to its frame, on the left side of the stamp between and over the U and S of U. S. Postage. This can be seen only on very clearly printed copies. I want to quote here from Mr. Jno. N. Luff as follows:—"But if at this point (that is where the mark is to be found) the space between the ornamental outline of the panel which is inscribed 'U. S. Postage' and the first vertical line of the background

A Testimonial:

1000 Continentals received. It was the best mixture for 25c that I have ever received.
I am a small dealer myself and get much enjoyment as well as a little profit out of it.
H. N. HAAS, Saratoga Spgs., N. Y.

Above is only one of many received from readers of this paper who liked the Continental Mixture recently offered, so it is repeated.

CONTINENTALS

Continental Mixture, 25c per 1000.

This mixture of European "Continentals" contains stamps from a large number of countries, having been imported from Belgium, France, Germany, Holland and Hungary, and then mixed without being picked over, sometimes good Colonial issues are found but we sell as it comes, 25c per thousand (5000 ordered at one time $1.00), and are sure it is the best assortment of stamps of the cheap class in America, over 200 varieties in every lot. (Some have found 400 different.)

Important. In clearing up Stock Envelopes, many torn and slightly defective copies of good stamps are thrown out, a large number of stamps of this kind from all parts of the world have been added to this mixture recently.

(counting towards the left) is blurred or partially filled with color, it may be accepted as an indication of the presence of the mark. On all stamps printed by the National Bank Note Company the space is quite clear and white."

The 1875 reissue is also by the Continental Company, but is on pure white paper and usually without gum. The other reissue of 1880 by the American Bank Note Company is easily distinguished by being on soft porous paper and of a black brown color; 176,830,000, National, no grill, Continental and American were issued.

The next group comprise 1875 regular issue by the Continental Company, 1875 special printing or reprint by the same company, and the regular issue by the American Bank Note Company of 1879.

This group has the same design as the previous group and are to be distinguished by the color and from each other by the color and paper. The 1875 regular is printed in vermilion on hard white paper; the reprint of this issue is also on hard white paper but is carmine vermilion in color; the 1879 by the American Company is on soft porous paper printed in vermilion; 661,829,150 hard and soft paper issued. There was also a special printing by Am. Bank N. Co. on soft paper in scarlet vermilion issued in 1880.

The next group is that of 1883 and consists of the regular issue and a reprint. This stamp has a bust of Washington by Houdon, is printed in red brown and is the first two cent stamp to bear the words in full, United States Postage. The reprint is to be distinguished from the regular issue by being printed in a pale red brown color, nearly orange brown, instead of the deep red brown of the original. This stamp marks the reduction of letter rate postage from 3c to 2c. The color was afterwards changed in September, 1887, red-brown or metalic red to green, which distinguishes the issue of 1887. 4,870,788,300 red-brown issued.

We now come to the issue of 1890 in which we find the stamps smaller and uniform. It is not necessary to proceed further as we can all easily distinguish the issues from 1890 to the current issue which comprises just 20 more stamps that have not been mentioned.

In closing, I want to mention a few minor varieties, specimens of which I have here to show you; these are mostly varieties in paper and color, and in some cases, oddities.

These all bear the Continental control mark. A 2c on double paper, 2c brown so called ribbed paper, 2c brown on soft thick paper, a soft thin paper, medium soft paper, soft paper bronze, medium, thin, soft and thick paper vermilion, chemical paper vermilion, etc. An article could be written on these minor varieties alone.

A GOOD ENDORSEMENT.

Just to show the value of the WEEKLY as an advertising medium, kindly read the enclosed from a letter received from Whitfield King & Co. It is an unsolicited testimonial to the value of the WEEKLY as an advertising medium:

"As regards the result of our advertising, it may interest you to know that up to date we have received 518 applications for our 1906 catalogue and have despatched that number to as many different American collectors. We have in addition received a number of applications from people who omitted to enclose the 8c for postage, and some even asked for them on postcards, all these have however been put into the waste paper basket unanswered; there were also a number of letters prepaid only 2c instead of 5c, which were refused. Although we have discontinued advertising the free catalogues we shall continue to send them to every American collector who sends us 8c in stamps for the postage as long as we have any left. We have about a thousand on hand at present."

A NOTABLE OFFERING.

Our readers cannot fail to note this week the advertisement of the New England Stamp Co. on page 5. This collection of Confederates is without doubt the finest lot ever offered for sale. Indeed, one purchase has already been made from it running into several thousands of dollars.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centres. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—The Clayton (Ind.) Philatelic Society gave a banquet March 8, 1907. This society was quite recently organized by twenty-two ardent philatelists in and about Clayton. Any collector residing in this vicinity may obtain blank applications for membership by applying to Maurice Worrell, Clayton, Ind.

—A Stillman story dealing with the provisional stamps used in emergencies is being seen in the general press, sent out under the auspices of the National Stamp Committee. Our first glimpse of this story reaches us from W. R. King who clips it from the Omaha Bee, March 10.

—The United Stamp Co. will sell part two of the Evans collection, Thursday, March 28. Sale number 100 is slated for early in April.

—We are informed of the death of W. F. Lambert, a former member of the A. P. A., residing in Alexandria, Va. Mr. Lambert was once actively interested in the commercial end of philately being associated in business with J. M. Bartels in Alexandria.

—C. A. Nast, our revenue editor, has been elected a member of the Fiscal Philatelic Society. C. R. Warrell has also been elected for membership.

—Auction catalog No. 1 has just been received from the Nassau Stamp Co. It is a substantial well written book of some 40 pages and offers several properties including the collection of Henry A. Dixon. This sale will be held April 4 and 5 at the Collectors Club, in N. Y. City. A very nice general line of stamps is offered and the catalog is well worth perusal.

—Colonel H. H. Bandholtz, Manila, has sent us a set of three values of the handsome new postal savings bank stamps of the Philippine, together with the following information concerning the stamps. All the sheets are watermarked, P. I. P. S. in large capital letters. The five centavos come in sheets of 64, the ten centavos in sheets of 24, and the twenty centavos in sheets of 15. They will be placed on sale some time between February 20th and March 1st. The scene on the 10 centavos is the "Parian Gate" to the "Walled City" of old Manila. The 20 centavos depicts a typical Filipino landscape with a rice "paddy" in the foreground and a native "shack," cocoanut trees and mountains in the distance.

—At the meeting of the Chicago Branch One, American Philatelic Association, further nominations were made as follows to the Chicago ticket: Board of Vice Presidents, H. W. Wolseley, F. Michael and C. F. Mann, all of Illinois; Secretary, F. W. Coning, New Jersey; Treasurer, D. T. Eaton, Iowa; Director, J. W. Prevost, Massachusetts. Two additional directors are to be nominated later to complete the ticket.

—In the Philatelic Journal of Great Britain for February is a sketch of Ernest R. Ackerman under "Well Known Philatelists." The sketch is accompanied by a cut. We hope we shall be able to reprint this sketch later on.

—Henry Jonas sends us a clothing trade journal in which is a page of "Stamp Notes."

—F. D. Goodhue favors us with a sample of the Norfolk, Va., post mark booming the "Jamestown Celebration." It consists of the two words in a flag shaped design with the date 1907 at each end in a vertical position reading up at the left and down at the right.

—S. Valentine Saxby, Rockford, Illinois, who long has been an advertiser in the WEEKLY and the announcement of whose sale of his stamp stock appeared last week, was forced to relinquish the business because of the necessary work that was taxing his eyes too severely. Further, increasing cares of business in other lines made it advisable for Mr. Saxby to withdraw from the dealers' ranks. Mr. Saxby who never lost his collecting instinct will now devote more time to his albums.

—No less than six or eight stamp articles have appeared in the New York Sun

H. F. COLMAN,
GEO. L. TOPPAN, Mgr.
725 Eleventh St., N. W., WASHINGTON, D. C.

during the past winter, the article upon the Confederate States rarities recently printed being one of the most successful. These articles though not written under the authorization of the National Stamp Committee have nevertheless been written from facts supplied largely by Messrs. Putney and Rich of the Scott Stamp & Coin Co. Joseph F. Negreen has also rendered valuable assistance to Mr. Adams who has shown very creditable work in promoting our philatelic publicity campaign.

—The managing editor of the WEEKLY spent a couple of days last week in New York City in the interests of the National Stamp Committee. It was his privilege to meet many patrons of the paper, but the time was so short that it was impossible to do all that he would like to have done. Nearly all the dealers express themselves as well pleased with trade conditions. Mr. Power of the Stanley Gibbons, Inc., in particular expressed his keen satisfaction at the handsome increase that his business shows over a year ago.

—Receipt of clippings is acknowledged, with thanks, from the following: G. G. Bergman, Hugo Kuenstler (8), H. N. Haas (2), Wm. L. Hamilton, Jr., Chas. R. Trowbridge (2), Carl Rauschenberg (2), James A. Block, John A. Solomon (5), A. H. Hoffman, E. L. Willsey, J. H. Houston, Wallace B. Grubb, E. Swedenborg and R. H. Nichols, Jr., (3).

—The 1c stamp booklets of 24 specimens was placed on sale at the Boston Post Office, March 12. This stamp appears in this one form only.

—John D. Carberry, Secretary and Treasurer of the Section on Philately of the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences, has decided to dispose of the major part of his fine general collection of postage and revenue stamps at auction, devoting his effort in future to specializing. The Nassau Stamp Co. Ltd. has the same in charge and is preparing the catalogue for the sale.

—Simon Strauss, Chicago, has presented the Chicago Philatelic Society with a postal ornament that becomes easily the chief of the souvenirs in the society's club room. Mr. Strauss has reproduced in miniature a camp scene, every object of which is carved or created out of pieces of the demolished temporary post-office of Chicago, in the form of wood, paper or what not. Adequate justice could not be done Mr. Strauss' product in a few lines of description; the handiwork teems with philatelic suggestion in different forms, and in its glass case the wonderful creation indeed is an ornament of unique distinction for the room of the society.

—L. Frieri in business for sometime past on Nassau street, New York City, will early in April remove to 39 Broad street, where he will be pleased to meet his many patrons.

—March 13 the Columbus Collectors Club considered the stamps of Austria. The collection of C. B. Duffy being much admired. March 27 C. A. Schenck will exhibit some British West Indies.

—The Philocartist News & Camera Craft has suspended publication and all unexpired subscriptions will be filled by the Columbus Philatelist.

—The 6th in the series of auction catalogs being issued by Jules Bernichon has just been received and deals with English colonies. 1300 lots are listed. There are five pages of half tone plates picturing the gems of this sale which will be held March 22–28.

—A number of Chicago collectors propose to promote the publication of an album for United States stamps, including revenues and those of the American colonies, that, it is claimed, will embody all the modern advantages in methods of illustration and general press work.

—The Perforator is at hand dated Feb. 15. No copies were issued for Oct., Nov., Dec. and Jan. owing to the illness of its manager.

—We have just received a manuscript by Louis G. Barrett in continuance of his envelope article that has appeared in installments in the WEEKLY. We shall hope to use this in our issue of March 30, surely April 6.

—We thank L. H. Kjellstedt, Scranton, Pa., for a postal card picturing the elegant quarters of the Swedish philatelic society, at Stockholm. The sumptuous surroundings must add to the philatelic enjoyment of the members at meetings.

—At the annual meeting of the directors of the United Stamp Company, Chicago, the annual dividend of ten per cent. was paid. The report of the general manager, F. N. Massoth, showed a very satisfactory condition of affairs.

—In a short story in the Workers' Magazine of the Chicago Sunday Tribune by C. E. Severn, a clerk who was suspected of living beyond his means, in naming side lines of profit to the boss, that swelled his salary and established his case as accounting for the expenditures that excited suspicion, mentioned foreign stamps that were received by the firm on the small machinery parts, particularly from South Africa, and sold by him to a stamp dealer, as a source of revenue.

—Not long ago the English weekly, the Spectator discussing the artistic phases of a great exhibition of postage stamps which had been held in the hall of the Horticultural Society at Westminster, said very positively that whereas all other countries had been steadily degenerating in the beauty of their stamps since their earliest issue, the United States had shown steady improvement, till now our stamps were in a class superior to those of all other countries, with the exception perhaps of an occasional issue here and there. The praise went to design, to color and to workmanship. The Spectator found difficulty in explaining our superiority, and the best answer it could give was that the superiority lay in the "superabundant vitality of a nation which, like a busy man, still has more time than the idle to devote to apparently unimportant business."—Chicago Record-Herald.

All stamps offered in this adv't are in very fine condition and used postally. Some are finer than any postally used stamps that I have seen of these varieties and therefore at my price

Lot of Filled Approval Sheets
FOR DEALERS

A lot of filled approval sheets all in perfect order and all ready to send out. The sheets contain 50 stamps each, priced according to catalogue and running as high as 25 cents and over that. Here and there a 35c, 50c stamp. There are about from 30 to 40 sheets in the lot and contain large variety. Stamps both used and unused, no U. S., no cut envelopes, no postal cards. A very fine lot for anyone doing an approval sheet business, as you can send them out the day you get them. Have never been folded nor soiled in any way. This lot of sheets price up to $70 00, and they usually run a little over that but not below. Price $6.75. You can give 50%, 60%, 75% or even 80% discount and still more than double your money.

This is a great bargain and almost every order has been duplicated or trebled in a very short time. [H

EDITORIAL.

Just Award—The Berlin philatelic society has awarded the Lindenberg medal, an honor bestowed yearly for personal pre-eminence in scientific investigation and meritorious philatelic authorship, upon L. F. Hanciau, "editor of the former Timbre-Poste and author of the well-known and highly esteemed philatelic monographs and catalogues issued by the firm of J. B. Moens, Brussels." Of the inestimable value of Monsieur Hanciau's services to philately, there is only unanimity of opinion. M. Hanciau was editor of Moens' Le Timbre-Poste, until the suspension of publication and his work in this capacity was of a brilliant and telling kind. He had the truest philatelic instinct, and his hypotheses, sometimes attacked when presented, almost uniformly were proved to be founded on fact. As a protector of philatelic purity, he was fearless in his denunciation of fraud and trickery in philately. Though now in his seventy-second year, M. Hanciau has been contributing articles of classic character to some of the foreign philatelic papers. By name, M. Hanciau may not be so well known to collectors in this country as some of the other trans-Atlantic celebrities; but of his sterling philatelic attributes there can be no question. The honor was worthily conferred by the jury of the Berlin society.

To Emulate—The Lindenberg medal that has been spoken of is bestowed yearly, according to the regulations elected by Judge Lindenberg, for excellence in philatelic research and well doing and is a crystallization of a most encouraging impulse; and the influential London stamp papers are now suggesting that the Royal Philatelic Society present a medal annually to the one whose philatelic merits as displayed during the year, bear the palm. In fact, the idea of such a course was broached some years ago,—that the London society award one or more medals but the seed of suggestion still is germinating. It is not unlikely that in the future, Great Britain, as well as Germany, will recognize in tangible form, exceptional services to philately. We believe that the American Philatelic Association, at one of its past conventions discussed the policy of adopting a modified plan of the kind; the writer of the most able philatelic treatise during the year was to be presented with a medal by the association, under the provisions of the plan which, needless to say, was never reduced to effect. Perhaps it would be worth while to speak of the advisability of the American Philatelic Association bestowing a medal annually, under dignified conditions, at the next convention of the leading national society of America. The inspiration that such a reward of merit would carry would be generally beneficial, in result.

Association Subjects—Reference to the American Philatelic Association allows of several observations that may be made fittingly at this time. The year-book, the annual publication of the association has been received. It is a work of 130 pages that is distributed gratis to members of the association. The year-book for 1906 follows the style of this publication for some years past. The by-laws of the association as last amended are given precedence in the book. A list of members, alphabetically and geographically, follows the main section of the book, the stenograper's report of the convention held at Boston in 1906. The book is a substantial looking publication and naturally is of particular interest to the members of the association. Another topic of association interest is the coming Denver convention. We have been told that Denver already has begun to arrange for the accommodation of the expected philatelic visitors next August. Plans of entertainment are being discussed and it is the intention to make the 1907 convention a revelation of western hospitality. We have no doubt that those who journey to the convention from the farthest point will feel amply repaid for having made the trip.

Quoted—The London Philatelist, the official journal of the Royal Philatelic Society in commenting upon a list of American members of the society, compiled by the WEEKLY, says: "Our American brethren are very welcome, and we can but hope, under the present auspicious circumstances of the Royal Philatelic Society, to see their number considerably increased." The London Philatelist quotes from our remarks in the issue of January 12th, on the subject of the recognition of philately by King Edward, through his gracious grant of permission to use the appellation, Royal, by the Philatelic Society, London, and says: "As was to be anticipated, the honour conferred upon the London Philatelic Society has been highly appreciated wherever stamp collectors are gathered together, and the comments in the American papers are especially gratifying. From among a number we select a paragraph that appeared in MEKEEL'S WEEKLY."

Merely Deferred—The philatelic exhibition in conjunction with Lady Minto's fête was not attempted; and the stamp display has been postponed for the reason that the support given the fête committee of the Philatelic Journal of India was so generous that it entirely over-rode the restrictions necessarily imposed on an exhibition in connection with the fête. So important and so numerous have been the responses of intending exhibitors at Calcutta that a display is planned for a future date, when ample provision will be made for all exhibits, on the score of protection and proper display. The Prince of Wales has promised to be represented at this coming Calcutta display. It may be added that philatelic interest in India is of the keenest and most intelligent kind; the monthly publication of the Philatelic Society of India is a journal that presents a most varied and valuable range of reading.

A Triumph for Philately—H. L'Estrange Ewen, London, has the courage of his convictions, and, as we remarked in the preceding issue, is to be congratulated upon having successfully defended a suit for damages. Mr. Ewen had reason to believe that certain Transvaal and Orange River Colony stamps, overprinted C. S. A. R. (Central South Africa Railway) were fraudulently surcharged. The stamps in question were sold by a firm, that, in effect was a Mr. Lowden, the plaintiff in the suit, and Mr. Ewen did not mince matters in referring to the firm but boldly named it as having uttered the counterfeits of a so-called second type of C. S. A. R. surcharge. The jury after some deliberation decided that Mr. Ewen had indulged only in such comment as was justifiable under the circumstances as proved, and that in consequence, it returned in favor of the defendants. When threatened with the suit for libel, Mr. Ewen manfully stood his ground and would not compromise his position. It was fortunate that the judge before whom the case was tried had so clear an insight into the philatelic details; his instructions to the jury showed that he had a grasp of the salient philatelic points. The verdict was a triumph for Mr. Ewen and a triumph for philately; what Mr. Ewen thought was the right he defended and the results were happy.

5-CENT POCAHONTAS STAMP.

Postmaster General Decides to Add It to the Exhibition Series.

WASHINGTON, March 18.—The Postmaster Gen'l has decided to add a five-cent stamp to the one and two already determined upon to constitute the commemoration series for the Jamestown Ter-centennial Exhibition. The five-cent stamp will bear a likeness of the head of Pocahontas and be printed in blue. Eight million stamps are to be issued of this denomination, to supply the demand for foreign postage.

The head of Captain John Smith is to decorate the one-cent stamp, of which 10,000,000 are being printed, while a descriptive scene, "The Founding of Jamestown," representing the first landing on that island, is pictured on the two-cent stamps, of which 14,000,000 are to be issued.

WHY DO I COLLECT?

Through the kindness of A. J. Palethorpe, a member of the A. P. A. residing in England, we are able to launch a contest to which the young readers only of the WEEKLY are eligible. We want the boys and girls 18 years of age and under to send us brief articles of not more than 300 words answering the question "Why Do I Collect Postage Stamps?" Mr. Palethrope kindly donates six of his gold posthorn badges to the six contestants sending in the best articles.

L. HARALD KJELLSTEDT.

We have referred to these badges several times in the past. They are very handsome, and very appropriate for a philatelist to wear. May be used as a recognition button or as a watch charm. Baron A. de Reuterskiold, the well known philatelist and author of the celebrated work on the Postage Stamps of Switzerland, says, "I think the badge a most successful and a very suitable emblem for philatelists of all countries. It is most noticeable. I hope you will be successful in getting it adopted as I think such a badge is much needed and I should like to see it extensively worn."

CAPT. E. K. RODEN.

The WEEKLY will print the winning entries and in addition, to make the contest more interesting, will give a Gibbons' Ideal Album ($3) to the one awarded the highest honors. Album will be sent to winner carriage extra. The judges who have kindly consented to serve are L. Harald Kjellstedt and Capt. E. K. Roden both of Scranton, Pa. The work of Mr. Kjellstedt is well known to our readers and we are greatly obliged to him for his kind offer of co-operation. Capt. Roden is principal of the I. C. S. School of Navigation and is a well known author of books on nautical science. He is a member of the A. P. A. and as well the Swedish Society.

Conditions of Contest.

Age of Contestants.—18 years or younger.

Length of Entries.—300 words or less.

Confederate States of America.

We are breaking up one of the finest collections of stamps ever put together. It contains about everything obtainable, and offers an opportunity to collectors of those rare Provisionals that comes literally but once in a lifetime!

We mention a few of the rarities. If you wish to secure some of these choice things, write and write NOW.

Athens, Ga., pair tete beche.
" strip of four, cover, probably unique.
" 5c red, one of the great rarities.
Baton Rouge, 2c green on cover, one of the greatest rarities.
Beaumont, 10c pink " " " "
Danville, Va., 5c red.
Goliad, 5c and 10c, very rare.
Jonesboro, 5c on orange, entire.
Macon, superb lot, singles and pairs.
" 2c gray green on cover, great rarity.
Pittsylvania, 5c red, unused, very rare.
Pleasant Shade, 5c blue.
Pair and block of six, unused, unique.
Rheatown, 5c red on cover.
Richmond, Texas, 5c red, entire.
Statesville, N. C., 5c black, entire.
Tellico Plain, both types, 5c and 10c.
Uniontown, Ala., 5c on both papers, covers.
And others too numerous to mention.

Of those less rare, there are used and unused, pairs and strips, both on and off the cover, a wonderful collection.

Note how few good Confederates are offered in Auction Sales, and you will get some idea of the real scarcity of this very desirable group.

Send us a list of those you lack.

A PERMANENT POST CARD EXHIBITION.

Every collector of postal cards will be interested to learn that a complete collection of all obtainable specimens are to be brought together for permanent public exhibition in the spacious halls of the Pennsylvania Museum and School of Industrial Art, which is located in Fairmount Park, Philadelphia, Pa.

The project has been under consideration for some time, but not until recently has it been determined upon. The Curator of the Museum, Edwin Atlee Barber, A. M., Ph. D., and the directors, are greatly interested in the undertaking, as the collection will be the best of its kind in any public institution in America. Edward Russell Jones, who holds a responsible position with the world-renowned dental manufacturing house, the S. S. White Dental Company of Philadelphia, is the honorary curator of the Section of Philately of the Pennsylvania Museum, and he is possessed of the true spirit of a collector, whether it be postage stamps, postal cards, antiques, or anything else. It is his purpose to make the postal card collection worthy of careful study by philatelists and those who contemplate entering the ranks.

There is something peculiarly fascinating in the collecting of postal cards. The varieties are not so numerous that a representative collection cannot be made up without the expenditure of a fortune, as is the case with postage stamps, and the result is therefore more encouraging to the collector. The new issues can be readily purchased through the Purchasing Department of the Postal Card Society of America at little more than the actual cost.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES.

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Any information regarding new issues will be gratefully received and acknowledged. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. The figures in parentheses refer to the previous number of the WEEKLY in which the same country was noticed

UNITED STATES.—By reference to our news columns it will be seen that a 5c value is to be added to the Jamestown set. This will give satisfaction to those who desire this stamp for foreign correspondence.

AUSTRALIAN COMMONWEALTH. — The Melbourne Herald reports that the Postmaster General of the Commonwealth is considering the question of issuing a uniform stamp. He is contemplating the appointment of a committee of experts to go into the whole subject. A conference of the Postmasters General of the different states is to be held this month.

BARBADOS. — A correspondent reports to Ewen's that a second printing of 24,000 of the Kingston Relief Fund stamps has been made, the stamps being overprinted in sheets of 60. The overprinting is done on the 2d orange and black, single watermark, and the stamps are sold to the public at 2d each, but have a franking power of only 1d.

BRUNEI. — Through the kindness of Whitfield King & Co. we are able to give the number printed of the first issue. It seems that many of this issue have been bought up by speculators in Singapore and only a small proportion has reached either Europe or America. The figures are as follows:—

1c, 5000; 2c on 3c, 15,000; 2c on 8c, 5000; 3c, 5000; 4c on 12c, 20,000; 5c on 16c, 5000; 8c, 8000; 10c on 16c, 9000; 25c on 16c, 2000; 30c on 16c, 2000; 50c on 16c, 2000; $1 on 8c, 2000.

There appears to be many varieties of the surcharges on Labuan stamps, arising from the fact that the name of the colony was printed from a different plate than the value, that the bar over the word "Labuan" varies in length, and that there are various defects in the type and printing.

CANAL ZONE.— Our correspondent at Pedro Miguel informs us that the provisional post card recently chronicled has been seen with a double surcharge and several copies are known to exist.

EAST AFRICA AND UGANDA. — The London Philatelist reports that the 3 rupees stamp has been issued on chalky multiple paper.

EGYPT.—Ewen reports that the 1m, 2m, 3m and 1pi stamps have appeared with official overprint as noted in No. 844. A new provisional postcard is also reported, the overprint being "2 milliemes 2" in black on the 3m, both double and single cards being used.

Post Cards.

2m black on 3m brown violet.
2m on 3x3m brown violet.

Sudan. — The Deutsche Briefmarken Zeitung reports that the 3m brown violet post card has been overprinted "O. S. G. S." in black.

FRANCE.—A correspondent of Le Journal des Philatelistes says that the current 5c stamp will shortly appear in the Semeuse type.

French Offices in the Levant.—The current "1 piastre 1" on 25c is reported to have been seen without the final "1" after "Piastre."

French Offices in Abyssinia.—A French post office has been established at Harar, Addis-Ababa, Dirre-Daoua and other places in Abyssinia since November 1, 1906, the French Levant stamps being used until a special series can be prepared.

French Offices in China.—Champion's Bulletin gives the following as the number of stamps that received the surcharges recently chronicled:

Canton—1c, 18,000; 2c, 18,000; 4c, 15,000; 5c, 15,000; 10c, 15,000; 15c, 1500; 20c, 9000; 25c, 15,000; 30c, 6000; 40c, 6000; 50c, 3000; 75c, 450; 1fr, 3000; 2fr, 1500; 5fr, 900; 10fr, 900.

Hoihao—1c, 9000; 2c, 9000; 4c, 9000; 5c, 9000; 10c, 9000; 15c, 1500; 20c, 6000; 25c, 9000; 30c, 6000; 40c, 6000; 50c, 3000; 75c, 450; 1fr, 1500; 2fr, 600; 5fr, 300; 10fr, 150.

Mong-tseu—1c, 12,000; 2c, 12,000; 4c, 12,000; 5c, 12,000; 10c, 12,000; 15c, 1500; 20c, 6000; 25c, 9000; 30c, 6000; 40c, 6000; 50c, 3000; 75c, 450; 1fr, 1500; 2fr, 600, 5fr, 300; 10fr, 150.

Pakhoi—1c, 9000; 2c, 9000; 4c, 9000; 5c, 9000; 10c, 9,000; 15c, 1500; 20c, 6000; 25c, 9000; 30c, 6000; 40c, 6000; 50c, 3000; 75c, 450; 1fr, 1500; 2fr, 600; 5fr, 300; 10fr, 150.

Tchong-king—1c, 9000; 2c, 9000; 4c, 9000; 5c, 9000; 10c, 9000; 15c, 1500; 20c, 6000; 25c, 9000; 30c, 6000; 40c, 6000; 50c, 3000; 75c, 450; 1fr, 1500; 2fr, 600; 5fr, 300; 10fr, 150.

Yunnan-Fou—1c, 12,000; 2c, 12,000; 4c, 12,000; 5c, 12,000; 10c, 12,000; 15c, 1500; 20c, 6000; 25c, 6,000; 30c, 6000; 40c, 6000; 50c, 3000; 75c, 450; 1fr, 1500; 2fr, 600; 5fr, 300; 10fr, 150.

Kouang-Tcheou-Wan — 1c, 9000; 2c, 9000; 4c, 9000; 5c, 9000; 10c, 9000; 15c, 1500; 20c, 6000; 25c, 6000; 30c, 6000; 40c, 6000; 50c, 3000; 75c, 150; 1fr, 1500; 2fr, 600; 5fr, 300; 10fr, 150.

FRENCH CONGO.—The Deutsche Briefmarken Zeitung reports that a third printing of the 1c of 1900 has been made, this time in red brown and gray, the previous printings having been in lilac brown and chocolate brown.

GERMAN COLONIES.—The $\frac{1}{2}$ German China and 45h German East Africa must be added to the list on watermarked paper, printed in No. 845.

GIBRALTAR.—Ewen reports that the 2d green and carmine has appeared on chalky multiple paper.

GREAT BRITAIN.—According to Ewen the familiar registration label, an "R" in a circle is to be superseded by a label similar to that in use in other countries. It is a long oblong stamp, with a large "R" at the left, and the name and number of the office and the number of the packet in the body of the stamp, the frame is entirely of rule work. Some of the smaller offices are said to have a variety with "R" to the right and number below, with a blank place at the left for the post mark. Some offices are using a temporary substitute, reading "Registration Labels—not yet supplied."

INDIA.—Jhind.—The London Philatelist reports two King's Head stamps, with official overprint for this state.

Official Adhesives.

3p blue gray.
1r carmine and green.

ITALY.—Offices in Crete.—The Deutsche Briefmarken Zeitung reports the following post cards of the 1903 set, overprinted "La Canca":

Post Cards.

7½x7½c brown rose on rose.
10c brown rose on white.
10x10c brown rose on green.

JAPAN.—Offices in China.—L'Echo de la Timbrologie reports that the two new stamps of Japan received the usual surcharge for use at the Japanese offices in China.

MALDIVES.— According to Ewen the number of stamps overprinted on the Ceylon issue were as follows:

First supply— 2c, 2400; 3c, 600; 4c, 1200; 5c, 4800; 15c, 1200; 25c, 1200.

Second supply—2c, 2000; 3c, 3000; 4c, 1000; 5c, 14,000; 15c, none; 25c, none.

NEW SOUTH WALES.—A correspondent of Ewen's calls attention to the fact that there are two distinct types of the "OS—NSW" official perforation, to be distinguished by the differing number of holes forming each letter.

QUEENSLAND.—We have been shown by the North Shore Stamp Co. the 9d in the new watermark Crown A.

REUNION.—The long promised stamps for this colony have at last appeared according to L'Echo, and for ugliness and general lack of beauty of design certainly exceed anything yet attempted by the French artists. L'Echo says "their ugliness defies all description." The designs were made by Messrs. Chauvet and Puyplat, well known artists, there being four types.

The first type, for the stamps from 1c to 10c, gives a map of the Island; the second, a picture of the harbor, with the arms of the colony and the motto, "Praeter omnes angulus ridet"; while the third for the frame values, shows another view in the Island, with a map showing the geographical position of Reunion. The ideas are not so bad—it is in the arrangement that the artists have failed to make a harmonious design.

The fourth type is reserved for the postage due stamps, and as L'Echo says, reminds one of the worst days of Colombia.

We are not able to give the denominations and colors, but L'Echo says they are printed in "villainous shades."

RUSSIA. — According to the Deutsche Briefmarken Zeitung, two new post cards have been issued, the 3k having the stamp in a new design, and the 4k with design as before.

Post Cards.

3k rose red on cream.
4k carmine on straw.

SOUTH AUSTRALIA.— Another value with thick POSTAGE has been added to the current set. It is none other than the 4d red orange, a specimen of which has been shown us by the North Shore Stamp Co.

ST. VINCENT.—The North Shore Stamp Co. has shown us the 1d on chalky paper.

TRINIDAD.—A new value has been added to the current set, a 2d stamp having been issued, printed on ordinary multiple white paper. This is the only 2d stamp ever issued in the Island, except the Commemorative stamp of 1898.

Adhesive.

2d black.

QUERIES AND COMMENT.

Edited by C. E. SEVERN.

Our readers are cordially invited to ask the editor for any information desired concerning stamp collecting. Should a personal reply be desired kindly enclose postage. This department is for the beginner as well as the advanced collector. Address, C. E. SEVERN, 820 Oxford Bdg., Chicago Ill.

S. C.:—Your two reales vermilion, 1863, Costa Rica, surcharged "Official" in black capitals is not catalogued as it is a fraud. The stamp is genuine as you say, but in this instance the surcharge is the thing. The surcharge was one of what have been described as "pleasantries" on the part of an Englishman, who bought the remainders from the Costa Rican authorities in 1883. The Catalogue for Advanced Collectors says: "He soon found that there was no surcharged stock of 1881 and 1882, and as he had relied upon these in great measure for his profit, he requested the government to have a number of the 1863 issue surcharged, and with the usual complacency of Spanish American governments his request was not denied. However, when the order for the surcharge was given to the government printer he had forgotten the style of type that he had used before." The result was various fanciful creations of surcharges. "At the same time Mr. Ross induced the printer to place the surcharge 'Oficial' on a number of the stamps of the issue of 1863, and as a result" a further complement of frauds were foisted on the market and handled for some time by dealers who were unaware of their spurious character.

E. W.:—That there is basis for the contention is shown by the following answer to a correspondent of Stanley Gibbons' Monthly Journal, a paper that is very carefully edited by Major Edward B. Evans: "It is generally recognized that an obliteration does not alter the nature of a stamp; stamps used in a German postoffice at Samoa are as much German stamps as those used in a postoffice at Berlin." It is fair to apply this ruling to the stamp in point.

G. W. V.:—The following letter of our correspondent is representative of a kind that reaches us somewhat frequently, and we answer its questions with some detail, asking that those who have referred similar questions to us, should consider the remarks as applicable to their own cases: "I am, practically speaking, a beginner, although I have been interested in stamps for the past six years. From a speculative standpoint what country or countries do you consider the most promising? and which would you advise collecting, considering that one had only a limited amount of money to spend on stamps?" First, let collecting groups be suggested, even though it is inferred that it is the disposition of some to believe that with a curtailment of the collecting supply of countries, a corresponding decrease of expenditure results. This premise is sound, however, only when the general idea of collecting is maintained as applying to a few countries, as, on the contrary, the collecting, with attention to the specialistic side, of only several countries may be attended with an outlay such as would compare with that needed for the general collecting of all the issues of the world. In a way, many countries fall naturally in collecting divisions. One of the best lists of groupings that we have seen, is as follows, and though it was published years ago, yet it, with its preface, as quoted, holds good to-day: "Looking at the multiplicity of new values, new emissions, and new stamp-issuing states which confront us every year, is it not probable that many of us will shortly be obliged to content ourselves with collecting the stamps of some particular country? Many lines of collecting thus suggest themselves to the members of the stamp world, but any of the following combinations would seem interesting: England and colonies. Europe. Italy, with component states, Parma, Tuscany, etc. Germany and the whole Teutonic race. Asia. West Indies. North America. Australia. Spain, colonies and Mexico. British Asia. British West Indies. Central America. South America, and Portugal and colonies." To this list could be added countries at will, the United States and colonies; Netherlands and colonies; and Sweden, Norway and Denmark and colonies come to mind on the instant. To make these geographical divisions effective, it is apparent that the stamps of the countries specified must be collected only in a general way, and as the general collector gathers, ordinarily, the issues of the world; if they should be collected with exhaustive attention to detail, specialism of a form is indulged in. The financial side of the question of our correspondent is one that inasmuch as it is based on the speculative idea will admit only of speculation as to an answer. We shrink from prophecy of this kind. We have seen the predictions of authorities unverified and the unexpected happen too many times to attempt any serious forecasting. The old issues certainly are safe as an investment; they are becoming fewer in number as the years pass on; but, on the other hand, many new issues have appreciated greatly in value. One authority will say that the stamps of Guanacaste are worth much more than they are catalogued and that the time will come when they will be given their just deserts; another will voice his opinion that the early Dominican Republics are much more scarcer than is realized generally. Others will take the common-place stand that the queen's heads of the British colonies will have to increase in value, or that any issue that becomes obsolete naturally advances in value. However, in the great philatelic ocean there are so many under-currents that even under the most favorable conditions, prediction is not to be regarded as an exact calculation. We believe that any stamp of good philatelic antecedents is a safe financial asset, and that the countries that count the most specimens of the kind in their issues, are the best to buy, speaking of the future,—but even an innocent statement of this kind has been known to have been subject to fluctuation or revision.

S. G.:—There is no simple rule that can be given for the detection of counterfeits. If you get your stamps from recognized sources, you are unlikely to be imposed upon. The cheaper stamps, barring a few exceptions, have not been forged, but if you have any scarce stamps of whose character you are doubtful, it is advisable that you submit them for examination to someone who by experience is qualified to act as a counterfeit detector.

T. R. C.:—The stamps in question were not canceled to order by the government but merely by an obliging postal employee. The Liberia stamps described were canceled to order.

E. B. M.:—The WEEKLY in the course of the next few months will have several articles of the stamps of the United States. (2) The peculiarity that you mention is one that is found frequently in the issues of the U. S. revenues, civil war period; it is due to a creasing of the paper before it was printed on, and when the crease is straightened out, the uninked lines that you describe are the result.

CONVENTION OF 1907.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS., March 15, 1907.

Members of the Association are hereby notified that upon the recommendation of the local committee of arrangements at Denver the Directors have selected July 30, 31 and August 1, as the dates for the twenty-second annual convention. As the call for the meeting together with the ballots for the election must be sent out not less than sixty days previous (May 29) it is hoped that nominations for officers, etc., will be sent to the secretary promptly that they may receive due publicity in the official journal.

Fraternally yours,
WM. C. STONE, President.

THE DENVER STAMP CLUB.

C. A. NAST, Pres.; O. K. CARSTARPHEN, Vice Pres.; H. A. DAVIS, Sec'y, 1622 Welton St.; W. G. SWART, Treas.; S. SCHWERZMANN, Sales Mgr.; Trustees, A. M. BALLAU, J. S. DAVIS and W. W. BIGLER.

DENVER, COLO., March 6th, 1907.

The 16th regular business meeting of the club was held at the regular time and place with Vice President Carstarphen in the chair. Minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved. Communications were read from the Sprague Publishing Co. and the Century Publishing Co., in which it was stated that subscriptions to American Boy and St. Nicholas had been presented to the club through the courtesy of their representative, W. A. Greenbaum, member of our Press and Publicity Committee. Secretary was instructed to convey thanks and appreciation of the club to the publishers and a resolution of thanks was unanimously passed to Mr. Greenbaum.

Mr. Ed. H. Hall entertained the club with a display of a portion of his superb collection. This was a treat enjoyed by every member, and a display but rarely seen in its completeness. The usual auction was held, prices ruled strong. $91.55 was subscribed by individual members towards A. P. A. Convention Fund for use of A. P. A. Arrangement Committee. Stamps were donated to the club by H. F. Behneman, F. E. McCabe and H. A. Davis. Meeting adjourned 10.30.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

In expressing my sincere thanks for the renewed confidence placed in me, I beg to assure my fellow members that, as heretofore, I shall do my utmost for the welfare of our Society. We have made considerable headway during the past year. Let us hope that this will be the stepping stone towards future greatness. I confidently expect that each member will be the means of bringing at least one new adherent to our hobby and hope you will not disappoint me.

S. SCHACHNE.

SECRETARY'S REPORT.

Application: Miss Frances Voltz, 65 Nicholas Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.; age 15. References: S. Schachne and Henry Voltz. Guaranteed by Henry Voltz, 65 Nicholas Av. Proposed by Mr. Schachne. Resignation: W. H. Faber. Mr. Faber became a member November, 1906, and the society is very sorry to lose him after a lapse of only four months. Change of Address: Dr. Rossberg to 2005 Fourth avenue, Louisville, Ky. A revised list of members will be gotten out soon. If the address of any other member, as noted on the present list, is not correct, kindly inform the secretary at once.

Mention has been made of a library belonging to the society a few years ago. If any member knows anything about it, where it is or who was librarian, please inform the secretary.

Twenty members have already paid their 1907 dues, as mentioned in previous reports. The secretary will be thankful to all others to remit theirs at their earliest convenience.

Their are still a few sets of the "Monthly Bulletins of the Postal Card Society of America" in the secretary's hands. Any members, especially the new members, can have by remitting ten cents. All understand that the two first numbers are absent. There is a great deal of interesting matter in these Bulletins, relating to the society between 1894 and 1898, besides the reports of the different officers.

SOLD OUT.

ROCKFORD, ILL., March 6, 1907.

I have this day sold my entire specialized stock of United States Postage stamps, my private collection of plate numbers (complete since 1894) and U. S. Entire Envelopes containing many of the rarities to the Eben S. Martin Company, 1334 First National Bank Bldg., Chicago, and to whom all orders should be sent. [47

S. VALENTINE SAXBY.

Fellow Members: We are located at so great a distance from each other—from Boston to San Francisco, from North Dakota to Texas—that we can not meet socially. The next best appears to be an exchange of views and sentiment on the Postal Card question, between each other and through our worthy official journal, and an exchange of postal and letter cards, if you please. There is a department for the latter and it should be better patronized. Our able superintendent will be glad to give all information on this subject. Then there is our president who is doing all in his power to supply us with new issues. He will be only too glad to furnish you with postal and letter cards. Write him. These two departments, in the absence of sociability, must be the life of our society and they must be maintained.

So many of our members are also members of the A. P. A. At the annual meeting of that society next summer in Denver—that hustling city at the foot of the grand old Rockies—there will be a lively time, no doubt. Would this not be a suitable time to have a meeting of the members of our society? The secretary would be glad to arrange for a meeting to give them an opportunity to get acquainted. To those of the east who have not been beyond the limits of their own state, the trip to Denver will be an eye-opener.

Regular meetings 2nd Monday at Oppenheimer's Hall, 514 9th St., N. W.

The fifteenth regular meeting was held February 11, 1907, with thirteen members present. The Treasurer reported balance in General fund, $21.67; Library fund, $7.40; Insurance, $2.84.

Dr. J. C. McGuire and Dr. W. D. Fales made application for membership. Mr. Johnson read a very interesting paper on Jamaica and its Stamps. Dr. Fox exhibited a complete set current Leeward Island stamps, ½d to 5sh, all on original cover used. Also the 1, 2 and 5c used Hawaii envelopes surcharged Prov. Govt. After the regular business an Auction sale was held comprising 108 lots which sold for $38.42.

J. FINNEY ENGLE, Sec'y.

The sixteenth regular meeting was held March 11, 1907. In the absence of Pres. Adams, Vice Pres. Whitney presided. Twelve members and two visitors were present. The Treasurer reported balance in General fund of $23.62, the Library and Insurance fund same as last report.

The resignations of O. W. Barrett and H. W. Davis were read and accepted. Dr. J. C. McGuire and Dr. W. D. Fales were elected members. M. H. Sanborn, M. M. Campbell and Isaac Clark made application for membership. Orders to amount of $7.75 for rent, postage, etc., were authorized.

A committee on Entertainment and Programs to consist of three members to be appointed by the Chairman was authorized. Meeting adjourned. Next meeting Monday, April 8th.

Established 1869.

Written for MEKEEL'S WEEKLY.

NOTES ON FRANCE.

BY C. A. HOWES.

To write the story of the stamps of France would require more numbers of MEKEEL'S WEEKLY than we could devote to the one subject, and would leave no room for the advertising matter which is the "staff of life" to a periodical publication. We must therefore content ourselves with notes upon the various interesting points presented by these always popular stamps.

In the first place it may be remarked that few countries have their varied political history so well illustrated by their stamps as France. When postal issues made their début on January 1, 1849, the government was that of the Second Republic, so-called, which had been established upon the overthrow of the House of Orleans in the previous year. For this reason we find a female head upon the first stamps, intended to symbolize the Republic under the guise of Ceres, the goddess of agriculture. In January, 1852, however, it was ordered that this head should be replaced by that of Louis Bonaparte, the Prince-President of the Republic. The change was to effect the whole series, but only two values had appeared in August of that year before other events rendered still further changes necessary.

The Empire was again restored on December 2, 1852, and President Bonaparte became Emperor under the title of Napoleon III. This necessitated a change in the title of the stamps, as well as the head upon them, from REPUB(LIQUE) FRANC(AISE) to EMP(IRE) FRANC(AISE), which was accomplished in the latter part of 1853. After the successful campaign in Italy in 1859, where the French and Sardinians defeated Austria, the Emperor, who was present at the great victories of Magenta and Solferino, deemed it proper that he should wear the laurel wreath, and decreed that the coins and stamps should henceforth bear his effigy thus adorned. The first stamp to bear the laureated profile was the 2 centimes, a new value issued January 1, 1863, the other values following as supplies of the old stamps became exhausted. Curiously enough, the 1 centime was the last to appear, in May, 1870, over seven years after its next companion in the set.

The next important event was the Franco-Prussian war of 1870, resulting in the overthrow of the Second Empire, so-called, and the establishment of the Third Republic which happily has proved strong and stable in spite of many vicissitudes, and bids fair to be the final and permanent form of the French government. This ill-advised war was precipitated by Napoleon III. in July, 1870, but such was the preparedness of the Germans that the French were overwhelmed at all points. The Emperor was taken prisoner in less than two months, and Paris was invested three months to a day from the declaration of war. Two weeks previously, on September 4th, the new Republic had been declared, and to save the time, trouble and expense of engraving new stamps at such a period, the old "republic" plates of the original issue of 1849 were brought out and used again for the 10c., 20c. and 40c. stamps. These are therefore known as the "Siege of Paris" issue, since for the five months of the investment they were only in use in the beleaguered city. These stamps are perforated, so there is no chance of confusing them with the earlier issue, which was imperforate.

While Paris was besieged, the rest of the country was naturally shut off from its stamp supplies, and as those on hand at first would not last a great while it became necessary to devise some means of keeping up the supply temporarily. This led to the famous Bordeaux issue. It was impossible to get the stamps engraved, so they were lithographed at Bordeaux, during the investment of the Capital, in one of the National mints which was located there. They form one of the most interesting issues of France, being wholly a "war issue" since they were replaced after the conclusion of peace in 1871 by the "Siege stamps," which continued with some additions and changes up to the appearance of the "Peace and Commerce" type in 1876. The latter was the result of a competition in which the requirement was that the design should bear no political significance whatever. This type satisfied the postal authorities for twenty-four years, when the current set made its appearance and began its troubles.

SOMETHING NEW!

New and different is this powerful MAGNIFYING GLASS, totally unlike anything you ever saw before, in appearance and magnifying power. It is an entirely new invention, a different arrangement altogether, and the results will surprise you—makes a minor variety stand out like the broad side of a barn, and a secret mark loom up like Pike's Peak (where all the stamp cranks are going this summer, you know). No focussing—put the flat surface right down on the stamp and you can see its past, present and future! Solid and compact—carry it in your vest pocket, drop it on the floor if you want to. Will you try one? If you do, you will say (as I did) that you never saw a magnifying glass before. I have sold 'em for $3 apiece that wouldn't do half the work this one does, if you hitched 10 of them in a row, tandem!

The above outline gives in brief the historical changes which the stamps of France so plainly attest. Much is often made of this aspect of philatelic study in its educational results, and certainly a student of French stamps cannot help becoming familiar with so much of her history as is embraced within the period during which there have been postal issues to reflect it.

One of the great rarities of France is the 1 franc orange-vermilion of the first issue. The 20 centimes and 1 franc stamps were the only ones in use in 1849. During that year the color of the 1 franc passed from the vermilion of the first supply, through brown red and dull red to a carmine, which was officially exhibited as the proper color in December, 1849. The 40 centimes stamp did not appear until February, 1850; and was then issued in orange. Fearing a chance of confusion between the new stamp and the early color of the 1 franc, which "might become the cause of errors prejudicial to the treasury," the Director of Posts sent out a circular under date of December 1, 1849, asking postmasters to examine their stock and return to headquarters all 1 franc stamps in the bright color which did not conform to the carmine desired. The circular was accompanied by two half stamps, cut diagonally, one the condemned vermilion and the other the authorized carmine. There could have been but one printing of the vermilion stamp and that the first, since the red color was in use by March, 1849. Such as were returned in accordance with the circular were destroyed, but probably not a great many were found at that date.

One often hears of the "Susse" perforation in connection with the 1853-60 issue of France. Messrs. Susse Freres were stationers located in the Place de la Bourse at Paris. They obtained a patent on January 8, 1861, for the operation of a perforating machine, and hoped to make a contract with the government to perforate all of the stamp issues. They did not succeed in this, but with the object, evidently, of advertising their work and perhaps creating a demand for perforated stamps, they sold such at face value to those who wished them, remunerating themselves through the two-per cent. discount allowed wholesale purchasers by the post-office. This perforation is the most ungainly one ever attempted, the holes being nearly two millimetres in diameter, and gauging 7 to the 2 centimetres. All values except the 25 centimes and 1 franc of this issue were perforated by the Susse machine. It was afterwards purchased by M. Maury.

The catalogue lists of the 1862-70 (laureated) issue show that all the centime values exist imperforate. This was not due to a regular issue in that form, nor to continued carelessness on the part of the post-office, but was a favor granted to M. de Rothschild, the great banker-collector, who obtained a certain number of sheets in this condition by imperial favor. Later these stamps came upon the market in imperforate pairs and were thereupon dubbed the "Rothschild stamps." In one case, however, the post-office is responsible. In April, 1869, some imperforate sheets of 20 centime stamps were sold in the regular course at Nancy and one or two other places, and therefore form collectible varieties. These latter are often called the "Lebaudy" stamps, since most of them have been found on letters addressed to that large Paris firm.

The French Colonies are notorious for their surcharges. France herself, however, cannot be held responsible for this condition of affairs, as she has never issued a surcharged provisional stamp, although two were prepared in expectation of their need. These figure in the Standard Catalogue as numbers 5 and 58, though they have no place among issued stamps. The first is the 20c. of 1849, printed in blue and surcharged with the figures "25" in vermilion in the center. There is said to be but one authentic copy now in existence, though it has been twice reprinted; the second "reprint" is only a pure fantasy, the numerals being smaller and the word "cent." having been added.

The story of this surcharge is as follows. The black 20c. stamp naturally possessed objections due to its color and the difficulty of cancelling it effectively. It was therefore decided in March, 1850, to change the color to blue, and the printing of the new supply was begun the next month. On May 18, however, the government passed a law establishing new rates, the single letter fee being raised from 20c. to 25c. This rendered practically useless the stock of the new 20c. stamps just finished. The law took effect on July 1, and it was a question whether a 25c. stamp could be gotten ready in season. While awaiting this result, M. Hulot, who had charge of manufacturing the stamps, conceived the idea of surcharging the unissued 20c. blue with the new value, so as to be ready for use as a provisional in case of need. Fortunately the regular 25c. stamps were engraved, printed and distributed in the short space of six weeks, so that the provisional stamps proved only stillborn and were destroyed. Had they been put in use they would have been the first regularly issued surcharged stamps.

It may be noted en passant that the 20c. blue was never issued unsurcharged, so that number 4 in the Standard Catalogue should not occupy its present place. The word "error" is also misleading.

The other provisional has a similar story. A law voted August 25, 1871, raised the rate on city and town letters from 10c. to 15c., so the issue of 10c.

ceased as unnecessary. Just before New Year's of 1872, however, they realized that the sending of visiting cards on that day would severely tax the supply of 5c stamps on hand, as these cards required 10c. postage and each would need two 5c. stamps because of the lack of a 10c. value. A stock on hand of the 10c. laureated head of 1862 was therefore hastily prepared with a surcharge of the figures "10" in blue in the center. This was done to prevent confusion with the 15c. in the same color then in use, according to accounts, though it is also stated that it was to prevent the use of a large amount of the same stamps that had been stolen by the Communists. But again fears proved groundless, and the second French provisional shared the fate of the first in being still-born. Three millions were prepared, but the stock was not destroyed in this case as the stamp is commonly met with.

The "Siege of Paris" stamps have already been mentioned. As the Germans advanced into French territory, the provincial postal officials forwarded their cash and stocks of stamps to Paris to prevent capture. When the investment of the capital became certain, the Director of Posts sent most of this accumulation to the departments of the South and West. For Paris itself he ordered new printings of the 10c., 20c. and 40c. stamps from the old "Republic" plates of 1849. The first two were in use from October 11, 1870, and the 40c. appeared in December. All other values used during the siege were of the laureated head type still on hand. Other values of the engraved Ceres head were not issued until after the siege and as the stock of the laureated stamps became exhausted, so the three values mentioned are the only ones that have received this appellation.

One of the most interesting phases of French postal history, or of any other for that matter, was the atempt to communicate with the outside world during the siege of Paris by means of balloons. The last regular mail despatch left the city on September 18, 1870. The first one on the following day had to return. The final attempt was on the 20th, when three carriages, two mounted couriers and five on foot were sent out. Only one man succeeded in reaching Evreux. He returned a week later bringing 150 letters. On September 23rd the aeronaut Durouf left the city in a balloon, carrying 104 kilograms of mail matter with him, and landed safely at Evreux. M. Rampon, the Director of Posts, immediately siezed upon the idea and organized a balloon post with headquarters at the Orleans railway station. The weight of letters was limited to 4 grams, and prepayment was required at the rate of 20c. each upon letters for the provinces, and 40c. each upon those for destinations outside of France. The cost to the government of each ascension was about $1000 at first, though later reduced to about $800, of which $60 was paid the aeronaut. But the returns were large, as 100 Kilograms of letters meant about $2000 in postage, and one of the balloons took 710 Kilos.

The ascensions took place quite regularly during the siege, there having been fiftv-four which carried postal matter between September 23rd and January 28th, the date of the capitulation. In all, about two and a half millions of letters were thus sent out of the city, and but four of the balloons were captured. Some of them travelled long distances before descending, several going to Holland and one as far as Norway. Two were lost at sea. The missives sent by this means can generally be recognized by the inscription PAR BALLON MONTE upon them. Private enterprise produced a large variety of envelopes for the balloon post, with various notices and devices upon them, but these were not required by the regulations. Many small newspapers were also printed upon one sheet of a folio, the other serving for private correspondence. All these covers form most interesting mementoes of the historic event, however, and collectors are always glad to add any specimens to their treasures.

We have already alluded to the famous Bordeaux issue and its cause. It may be noted in this connection that the French stamps were manufactured at the Paris Mint from the first issue in 1849 until after the Franco-Prussian war, when their preparation was entrusted to the Bank of France. The siege of Paris consequently cut off the source of supply from the rest of the country, and some other means had to be devised for provisioning the post-office with the necessary labels. Now there happened to be another mint located at Bordeaux, and the Postal Administration, whose headquarters were then at Tours, turned thither for its new source of supply. But the Bordeaux Mint had no facilities for engraving and printing stamps, so they turned to the lithographic establishment of M. Augé-Delile of that city, this firm being really the sponsor of the issue.

The Director of Posts had ordered that the stamps should conform to the design of the "Republic" set (then being re-issued in Paris, as before noted); so engravers were at once set to work upon models. But time was pressing and there was need of the ordinary letter stamp—the 20c. A copy was therefore carefully drawn with pen and ink upon lithographic stone by M. Dambourgez, a designer of the Augé-Delile establishment, and transfers from this were employed to make a temporary issue of this much used value. This is the so-called "Type I" of the 20c. Soon after, M. Léopold Yon submitted a 20c, engraved upon stone which was deemed excellent, and he was given a commission to engrave matrices for all the values needed. It was suggested, however, that the inscriptions at top and bottom be made larger and plainer, and this was done, resulting in a third variety of the 20c. Pending the execution of the last variety, the first one submitted by Mons. Yon, was used for making further supplies of stamps, and this is the one listed as "Type II." in the catalogues. "Type III." is of course the final form with the larger lettering.

As to the differences between these three varieties (they are really varieties of the same type, and not three types), the first can be recognized by its generally poor execution, but principally by the very slight dotted shading beneath the eye and upon the neck—so slight oftentimes as to appear almost nil. The second variety is better executed and the shading, mainly of solid lines, is quite heavy. The third variety has a similar head, but the lettering is larger, that of REPUB FRANC being perceptibly taller than in the second variety. The other values in this type (5c. to 80c.) are very similar to the second variety of the 20c., and do not have the larger lettering of the third variety, as would be expected.

There is but little danger of confusing the Bordeaux stamps with the first issue of 1849. Only two values correspond in color—the 10c. and 40c. The comparatively poor impression of the

QUERIES AND COMMENT.

Edited by C. E. Severn.

Our readers are cordially invited to ask the editor for any information desired concerning stamp collecting. Should a personal reply be desired kindly enclose postage. This department is for the beginner as well as the advanced collector. Address, C. E. Severn, 820 Oxford Bdg., Chicago Ill.

P. Z.:—"Will you please explain the difference between 'hard' and 'soft' papers, and also 'porous' paper, and give a good method for detecting the same? I sometimes find it very hard to distinguish them in the departments." It is not easy to distinguish between the papers named from printed description; the difference, of course, is best typified by the contrast afforded by the papers, themselves. In the hope of being of some assistance to our correspondent, we submit the following explanation: "It will be seen that the principal difference mentioned between the National and early Continental paper is that the latter is usually rather rough. This roughness is occasionally found in the National paper but is distinctive of the Continental. It consists of a lining in the texture of the paper, sometimes vertical, sometimes horizontal, sometimes apparently both, similar in nature to a very fine ribbing or corrugation. Stamps are sent us for examination with the idea that they are ribbed paper which are simply extreme examples of the roughness which is characteristic of Continental paper." The Continental paper used in 1878 "differed by being smoother and showing pores very distinctly. There is little difference, so far as porous quality is concerned between this paper and the thicker but still hard, porous paper used by the American Bank Note Company in 1879." The paper first used in the American printing was "a thick, hard, porous paper appearing in this last respect like the distinctive Continental paper of 1878, but showing horizontal lines in the texture." In 1882, an extremely soft paper which showed no pronounced pores when held to the light was used. Generally speaking, the paper of the Continental printing is rough, hard and thin, while the American paper is softer and thicker, and when held to the light shows little indentations or pores.

W. M.:—The pictures on the various stamps of the 1897 issue of Tonga represent the following: One penny, breadfruit tree; three pence, Harmonga Monument; six pence, exhibit of coral; two shillings, Tofoa and Kao Volcanoes; two shillings six pence, Maka parrot and five shillings, Port of Neiafu.

D. R. C.:—The stamp is the 2½ pence blue, Bermuda, 1884-93 issue which comes only with CA watermark; it is common. Mention of the other stamp will be made in this column.

A. D.:—The one penny Great Britain, with fourteen dots in each angle of the frame, was issued June 28th, 1881, and was replaced December, 1881, with the stamp with sixteen dots in each angle. The lettering on the first stamp is somewhat smaller than on the second.

R.:—Compound perforation is thus described by Major Evans in his book, "Stamps and Stamp Collecting:" "Compound perforation implies two or more different gauges of perforation, on different sides of the same stamp. In these varieties the top and bottom are usually perforated to one gauge, and the sides to another; but three varieties of gauge have been found upon the same stamp, and there is no reason why all four sides should not differ in this respect, though I have never met with an instance." In naming compound perforations, the horizontal gauge is given first, as a rule.

THEODORE CHAMPION & CO.

Upon page eight has been seen very frequently during the past three years the familiar advertising of Theodore Champion & Co. Probably no across-the-ocean dealer has used more space, or been found more regularly represented in our columns than this enterprising Parisian firm. Our readers will be interested in some of the details in connection with the growth of this great stamp house.

THEODORE CHAMPION.

Theodore Champion was born in Geneva, Feb. 14, 1870, beginning his stamp collecting at the age of eight, when he became proficient in the art of advantageously exchanging with his schoolmates. When a lad of fourteen he entered into commercial relations with the dealers of that time, including Messrs. Stanley Gibbons, Maury, Verbelle, Moens, Mahe, Georges Carion, etc., etc., his transactions for the first year amounting to several thousand francs.

In a small sized copy book treasured by Mr. Champion as a souvenir, one finds orders which make an interesting comparison with the prices today. A few quotations will be of interest:—"Mr. Gruat, will you kindly send me the following French stamps as per your advertisement: 1849, 10c yellow, price 16 centimes, 15c green, price 75 centimes." Another order to Mr. Maury reads:—"Basle, 1845, 2½ rap red, blue and black, 15 francs." Messrs. Stanley Gibbons, "United States Navy, 90c blue for 2.50 francs," etc., etc.

Mr. Champion had a brother Adrien, who at this time was a partner in the firm of Kirchoffer & Champion, a firm by the way enjoying a well-earned distinction among the stamp dealers of those days. Young Theodore availed himself of his opportunity and applied for approval selections giving as references his brother, and, as well, the other dealers with whom he had been in correspondence. Within a few years he had amassed a stock of stamps to the value of 100,000 francs and from which he sold, his transactions amounting to 20,000 francs a year.

This success did not please his brother Adrien, who had withdrawn from partnership with Kirchoffer. In his younger brother a dreaded competitor was seen, and he determined that the experienced and hard working boy should become his clerk, and used strong pressure to have him leave the bank in which he was employed. Theodore energetically declined so to do, but owing to his father's threats he submitted and entered his brother's firm as a mere clerk. He was, however, compelled to give up the stamp business and took up with bicycle riding as the pastime for his spare hours. The good fairy who assisted him at the time of his beginnings in philately did not forsake him. She gave to his bicycle fortune's famous winged wheels. He rose from success to success and covered himself with glory in the various races entered. Later on, as a professional, he won laurels in Zurich, Lyons, Turin, Milan, Munich, Mulhouse, Strasbourg, etc., etc. He thus secured a great accumulation of medals, works of art and more than 20,000 francs, that he deposited in the Federal Bank, retaining for five consecutive years the title of champion of Switzerland.

In the meantime Kirchoffer had again become a partner with Adrien Champion, and the firm took the title of Maison Champion & Cie, while the subject of our sketch continued his duties as clerk. In spite of the trade being thriving the purchase of a large stock of stamps some years previous hung like a cloud over the firm resulting in financial difficulties, as the stamps were later found to be practically worthless. Along in 1890 failure seemed unavoidable, and to save his brother's situation and honor Mr. Champion withdrew his 20,000 francs deposit in the bank and placed it at his brother's disposal. He then proceeded to Paris where, in 1899, he entered the firm of Forbin.

In April, 1900, occurred the financial catastrophe in Geneva that swallowed up his fortune. A fact that he can readily prove from the date of entrance of his withdrawal of funds from the Federal Bank, which corresponds with the date of deposit entered to the account of the firm to which the loan was made.

Mr. Forbin was ill and not on very good terms with the other Parisian dealers. He gave Mr. Champion a share in the profits and offered to take him into partnership. This Mr. Champion declined, having paid dearly in contemplating as a mere spectator how one partnership had resulted. He declined this proposition again and again. Failing in taking him in as a partner Mr. Forbin allowed him to have the business and stock in trade. Since then the firm of Theodore Champion & Co. has enjoyed increased prosperity, occupying a nice location and the number of clerks employed in the concern having grown from nine to twenty.

The firm does not specialize in the stamps of any particular country but possesses a very large varied stock of the stamps of all countries. Mr. Champion is continuing his contributions to the Yvert & Tellier catalog begun by his predecessor. We are under obligations to him for the classing of the stamps in said catalog, while the rise and fall of prices also depends upon his judgment.

Mr. Champion is a member of the Philatelic Societies of Frankfort, Gossnitz, Dresden and Berlin, and is considered one of the best students and appraisers for the stamps of Switzerland and the French colonies.

Through his cordial and hearty manner and unfailing courtesy he has been able to bring back to the Rue Drouot, philatelists who had discontinued their business to this store, and through his tact he knows how to keep their friendship, their confidence and their esteem.

STORE OF THEODORE CHAMPION & CO.

The readers of the WEEKLY will be very much interested in this brief story of the house of Champion, and the accompanying illustration will give an idea of the mammoth business that has been developed by this firm.

A lot of filled approval sheets all in perfect order and all ready to send out. The sheets contain 50 stamps each, priced according to catalogue and running as high as 25 cents and over that. Here and there a 35c, 50c stamp. There are about from 30 to 40 sheets in the lot and contain large variety. Stamps both used and unused, no U. S., no cut envelopes, no postal cards. A very fine lot for anyone doing an approval sheet business, as you can send them out the day you get them. Have never been folded nor soiled in any way. This lot of sheets price up to $70 00, and they usually run a little over that but not below. Price $6.75. You can give 50%, 60%, 75% or even 80% discount and still more than double your money.

This is a great bargain and almost every order has been duplicated or trebled in a very short time. [H

EDITORIAL.

A Paris Special—We feel satisfied that our readers will be pleased to obtain a glimpse of philately as seen in the Parisian capital. True it is not from the collecting standpoint but rather from the standpoint of the dealer. Nevertheless, the strength of philately in any locality can be estimated by the financial standing of the trade. We can find in Paris as we do in London immense capital invested in stamps which establishes upon a sound business basis that which a great many are disposed to look upon as a fleeting fancy. In the small space given us it is impossible to do entire justice to our subject but reading between the lines it will be clearly understood that French collectors are being well cared for in the enterprising dealers who are catering to their needs. Our cover was specially designed for us by M. Montader and is a work of art.

Perennial—In one phase or other, the catalogue question is always uppermost in the minds of a large division of collectors. We know from the many letters that are received that touch upon some point involved in this or that catalogue, that the impression made by the different price-books of stamps on collectors is marked. The intimate association of catalogue and collector engenders a closeness of regard that invites that candor of expression that friends often may indulge in and collectors do not hesitate to animadvert positively concerning a feature or alleged shortcoming. On page 63 of the WEEKLY, a communication appeared which contained references to assumed errors of omission or commission in the envelope division of the latest edition of the catalogue published by the Scott Stamp & Coin Company. We have received a communication from a friend to the catalogue who answers seriatim, the points made by the critic, and in the following paragraph, we present the interesting resume.

For Sake of Policy—First of all, it is explained authoritatively why the 1864 small varieties are not included in this year's edition: "The Nesbitt minor varieties were left out this year for several reasons, the most important one being that there are scores of other varieties of the Nesbitt envelopes, in addition to those formerly catalogued, which really had just as good a claim to be put into the catalogue; and it was obviously impossible to include them all in a catalogue for general use. An intensely practical reason was that the inclusion of these varieties, some of which took a geometrical instrument to determine, had been a large influence in killing the interest in envelopes the past two years, and I think that every dealer will agree with me that envelopes have picked up considerably since the new catalogue came out with these minor varieties omitted. If any specialist, such as I take the writer of the communication to be, prefers the decrease in interest in envelopes to the omission of the minor varieties from the catalogue, he is welcome to his opinion. It was a very difficult undertaking for even an experienced philatelist to straighten them all out and an absolute impossibility for a beginner. The result was that collectors were omitting envelopes entirely and losing interest in a very fascinating branch of collecting. The small differences in question cannot be compared for an instant with the 1874 issue, any more than the different types on the plate of Sydney Views can be compared with the differences in the National and Continental dies, United States. In my opinion, although of course the process of making them is entirely different, the principle would be the same, if we were asked to catalogue each plate variety of the Sydney Views, or the Hawaiian numerals, or any other early stamps, as these Nesbitt envelopes. As it is, the dies in the 1856 issue, which can easily be distinguished are catalogued." Here, we interrupt, as the writer has disposed of one consideration, to say that logically and broadly, the explanation must be respected. Additions of specialistic philatelic knowledge to the sum of philatelic learning are a high form of achievement, but they may not with a keen sense of the perspective, be delegated under general headings, such as appear in the catalogue for everyday use. The handbook for the specialist and the catalogue for the general collector; and of the two the catalogue is the most important and meaningful as reflecting living philatelic conditions, and so, its records should be kept uninvolved.

Continuation—We resume the letter: "As to the 'newly discovered big heads, die C, of 1887,' I do not know just what the writer means by this. There is, of course, what is known as the 'rejected die,' (not the so-called 'rejected die,' the catalogue's die A) which has a very large head, which was never used and is nothing but an 'essay.' There is, also, a variation of die B, which has a large head, but it is not important enough to go into the catalogue. If there is a die C which the writer has discovered, I shall be glad to hear about it." This section of the letter was referred to the J. M. Bartels Company, for corroboration, and Mr. Bartels says: "According to the Catalogue for Advanced Collectors, the die referred to in this article is No. 87, large head, and so far as I know has never been surcharged, 'Rejected Die.' I have heard that this applied only to die A, or No. 85. While the die here mentioned could scarcely be called 'newly discovered' it should be added that it has been known as die C for some time, and is so listed in our catalogue." In regard to this large variety, two cents, 1887, the following description from the Catalogue for Advanced Collectors is submitted: "Same as last except the bust, which is noticeably larger, as is shown by the following measurements: Across head at tip of nose, die 86, 8¾mm., die 87, about 9½mm. Across head at upper end of nose die 86, about 7½mm., die 87, fully 8mm. Across neck at base of chin, and across the base of the neck, die 86, 7mm., die 87, a good 7½mm. From the back of the bust to frame is 1mm., in die 86, and only ½mm. in die 87. From the back of the head, in line with the eye, to frame is 2mm. in die 86, and 1½mm. in die 87." This die 86 is the die B of the catalogue. In the large quite properly, the die C or No. 87, is listed; in the catalogue for general use, and one listing the stamps of each nation, it may be dispensed with, without disadvantage.

Final—To resume the letter of our esteemed correspondent: "No. 1518 is exactly the same stamp as has always been listed, except that it is described more correctly. The real color of this stamp on white is right as it stands now. Former 1518a has been transferred to No. 1510a, where it belongs, as it is a shade of the brown, and is frequently found used, with lots of common brown envelopes. About the other 'old friends that have gone by the board,' that is, of course, impossible to answer, without a detailed list of what they are." In regard to this interesting point, Mr. Bartels says: "In former catalogues, No. 1518 was listed as red on white. I know positively that such a thing exists, having seen more than one copy. The color corresponds absolutely to the wrapper, two-cent red on blue, of same issue. However, I am not certain that it is anything more than a proof. Perhaps, the cataloguer was right in omitting it, but it certainly exists. No. 1518 is well known and a bright lake color. No one could mistake it. The envelopes were found in a Pennsylvania postoffice a number of years ago. However, the price of forty dollars is fully twice as high as it should be. There is in addition to this bright lake, a brown lake shade of the ordinary two-cent of same issue. This has now been listed and priced, as No. 1510a, at five dollars used. The original article therefore is correct in saying that No. 1518 had been ousted, as the envelope certainly exists, and I can produce a copy if necessary. I can also show the bright lake and lake brown in addition to the ordinary color."

Worth It—So, the envelope discussion this week has taken up almost all our space here but the instructive results justify the expenditure; and the attention given United States envelopes on this occasion is a tribute to the fascination carried by these varieties which constitute one of the most engaging and entrancing of philatelic studies. The catalogue makers welcome deserved criticism; they invite ideas and suggestions for bettering their work and they are as anxious to approach ideality as practical ends will allow. They may be helped by criticism, be it adverse or favorable, and they will give the man with something to say, a considerate hearing. Write to them for explanation; it will be forthcoming.

What We Offer We Hold to be Cheap No Matter What We Ask.

It makes no difference what you pay us for goods, some goods at 90% discount are not a bit cheaper than others for which you have to pay 90% of catalogue. Get in touch with us once and you'll quickly become convinced we are doing business the way it ought to be done.

The condition of the goods we offer is all we claim. We do not advertise stamps in fine condition, unused, o. g., and then send copies without gum and perforated only three sides. When we fill an order we send return postage and invite the return of unsatisfactory copies, but they do not come back. That tells the story. It costs you less to do business with us than anyone else. First, because our prices are lowest—always lowest, condition considered. Second, we pay postage both ways, and we take checks or stamps and do not ask for Money Orders, on small orders that means 20%.

NOTES ON FRANCE.

lithographs should be enough to separate them, but in addition is the heavy shading on the head of the Bordeaux stamps, where the Paris stamps have a fine dotted shading. The same distinction holds between the Bordeaux issue, which was imperforate because of the lack of facilities for perforating, and the Paris made stamps issued imperforate for use in the Colonies. In only six cases is there chance for confusion, viz., the 1, 2, 4, 10, 20 and 40c. stamps, and the shading on the face is a sufficient test in any case.

One postage due stamp was also made at Bordeaux, having been engraved on wood and then lithographed, as they had no facilities for making electros and forming plates to print typographically. It is distinguished from the same value, 15c., made in Paris by the latter process, by the accent on the "a" beneath "centimes." In the Bordeaux stamp this is almost horizontal, while in the Paris stamp it is inclined at an angle of about 45 degrees.

The first Bordeaux stamps were issued about November 15, 1870, being the 20c. value. From this time the printing of supplies was continued until March 18, 1871, after the siege of Paris was over. They were also used in that city after the armistice. On August 12th of the same year the matrices and plates were destroyed, and several years later the remainder of the issue, then stored in Paris, was burned. Contrary to other reports, M. Maury states that he has official word that the Bordeaux stamps have never been demonetized.

Speaking of types, or rather varieties of types, to be more accurate, naturally calls to mind the two varieties of the allegorical type of 1876. This design was the result of a competition opened by the Ministry of Finance in 1875. Mons. J. A. Sage was the successful competitor, receiving 1500 francs for his design, though the issued stamps differ slightly from his original drawing. He described his conception as "Commerce and Peace uniting to rule the world."

The Bank of France was charged with the production of the new stamps, and they chose Mons. E. Mouchon, who had quite a reputation as an engraver on steel, to engrave the die. This was successfully accomplished, but in the process of hardening, it cracked across the design, the break passing through the hip of the female figure and down through the A of FRANCAISE. It was not considered necessary to engrave an entirely new die, so the cracked one was clamped together, put in a coining machine, and an impression in reverse taken. By the aid of this, with the damaged part erased, a new die was obtained in like manner having the lower left corner blank. This corner was then engraved anew by M. Mouchon.

Although in this second die the first engraving was very closely copied, yet in placing in the lower frame lines the small inscription J A SAGE INV, it seems that no especial care was taken; hence we have two varieties, with the N of INV under the U of REPUBLIQUE in one case and under the B of the same word in the other. These are usually catalogued as "types" II. and I. respectively, but M. Maury has proved by a set of signed proofs, as well as by actual sight of the re-engraved die which was permitted him, that the "N under U" was the first die, which broke, and the "N under B" is the second and re-engraved die.

The tete-beche stamps of the issues up to 1875 are most interesting varieties. They occur in every issue save that of 1852 and the Bordeaux issue, though they do not exist in all values. Their disposition is irregular, sometimes but one to a pane, sometimes three, and in different positions for different values. Perhaps we should state that the sheets of French stamps from 1849 to 1875 contained two panes, side by side, each pane having 150 stamps in 15 horizontal rows of 10 stamps each. No one has yet succeeded in establishing any undoubted reason for the appearance of these tetesbeches. The excuse of carelessness in clamping together the electros which made up the plates would be a natural explanation, but the care and attention to detail and strict administration at the Mint almost preclude the idea that such work would be accepted. The only thing left is to imagine that it may have been done purposely as a "control mark" for the recognition of genuine sheets of stamps, perhaps, in case doubtful or counterfeit ones should turn up.

The three types of the new issue of France in 1900 are thus described: For the five low values the design is an allegory representing the motto of the Republic—Liberty, Equality, Fraternity. Liberty is typified by the winged goddess, who holds the scales as an emblem of Equality, while the two cherubs dancing in an embrace signify Fraternity. The design is by M. Joseph Blanc. The second design, for the 10c. to 30c. values, is by Mons. Mouchon, and represents the Republic holding a "Hand of Justice" and a tablet inscribed "MAN'S RIGHTS" in French. The higher values show the work of M. Luc-Olivier Merson. A seated figure of the Republic, in a rather cramped position, has her hand upon a sheathed sword resting across her lap. The meditative attitude and the olive tree near by are all suggestive of "Peace."

On account of the opposition to the "Man's Rights" or Mouchon type of the 1900 issue, largely by the women, who made all manner of fun of it and even went so far as to have a label printed bearing a man's figure with "Woman's Rights" for a motto, the design was replaced in 1903 by a copy of Roty's design of the "Sower" from the coins of the Republic. This has not met with much more success than the former type, and various changes in its details have been made which perhaps are not even yet concluded. We must say in concluding these notes, however, that we hope France will some day rise to her reputation for artistic merit and production, by issuing a series of stamps worthy of her traditions.

OUR ACROSS-THE-OCEAN PATRONS.

W. H. Peckitt — Elsewhere in this issue is an advertisement strongly in keeping with the well-known reputation that the house of Peckitt enjoys upon both sides of the Atlantic. Large and valuable collections come upon the market, and no one dealer's name is associated with them more frequently than that of Mr. Peckitt. Time and time again our columns have exploited rarities purchased, the large announcement presenting an array of gems to which attention could not fail to be drawn. Very recently a magnificent collection of Straits Settlements and the Native States was announced, and in this issue still another valuable property is heralded.

Surely Mr. Peckitt is to be congratulated upon the strong hold that he has upon the stamp business of the great metropolis. Well situated upon the Strand with a fine store, private offices and store rooms he is splendidly equipped for the thriving business that he is experiencing.

D. Field—Always a strong believer in using MEKEEL'S WEEKLY, Mr. Field has given many a strong word of endorsement to the special numbers that we issue. Of late his offers have been found in every number, and the present is no exception. While large space is not used, the offers made will, we are certain, be perused with interest. Mr. Field deals in fine stamps in fine condition, and his shop, in the Royal Arcade, is one of the finest known to the stamp trade. As publisher of the West End Philatelist, many of our readers have come in contact with his enterprise.

F. R. Ginn—Few, if any, of the English dealers have spent as much money in American advertising as Mr. Ginn, whose column advertisements have appeared in the WEEKLY regularly during the past year. He has a fine stock of old British Colonies in superb condition. Indeed, it might well be called one of the finest stocks in existence. Mr. Ginn has very recently purchased some exceedingly fine collections, including specialized collections of New South Wales, Triangular Capes, Mauritius, New Zealand and several of the West Indian Islands. Mr. Ginn does business on the "small profits, quick returns" principle, and any collector wishing to get the value of his money can do no better than obtain his quotations for want lists or approval selections of any country desired.

Mr. Ginn became interested in philately in early life, and it has remained his ruling passion. The business which he has established in the Strand as dealer, expert and valuer, has grown enormously of recent years. It should be noted that Mr. Ginn is interested not only in the commercial end of philately, but has the true collecting enthusiasm. For the finest collection of U. S. stamps he was awarded a silver medal at the London Philatelic Exhibition of 1897. Strict reliability and promptness in executing orders has gained business for him the world over. We take great pleasure in commending him to those of our readers who have not yet been in contact with him.

London Stamp Auctions.—MR. FREDK. R. GINN attends every Sale of Stamps held in London and is one of the largest buyers. He personally undertakes the examination and purchase on commission of any lots for either Home or FOREIGN clients on most reasonable terms, which may be had on application. Mr. Ginn being an Expert of many years' standing, clients may rely upon every care being taken in carrying out their instructions. The advantage of employing a reliable Expert who is independent of the Auctioneers is very obvious, especially in the case of Foreign clients. Every commission entrusted to Mr. Ginn is executed at lowest possible price.

Note Name and Only Address:—

FREDK. R. GINN,
Stamp Expert, Valuer and Publisher,
143 Strand, London, W. C.

M. Giwelb—An advertiser who cares very little for complimentary mention is M. Giwelb, who prefers to let his stamps speak for themselves. We cannot, however, allow this issue to appear without some reference being made to the splendid stock carried by Giwelb, who makes a specialty of rare stamps. His offer in this number of stamps ranging as high as $125.00 will make many mouths water, and, we hope, a few pocket books open.

Bridger & Kay—In some unaccountable manner, in our issue of Jan. 26, we referred to Bridger & Kay as an auction advertiser. This was a slip surely, as this firm holds no auction sales, nor are they in any way connected with any auction sale firm. On the other hand they are among the largest purchasers at London auctions. Their specialty is the supplying of stamps on orders from their catalog, the filling of want lists, and the sending out of approval selections. The firm stocks all countries, both postage and revenues, and there is little they cannot supply on request. We are glad to correct the impression made, and which has been weekly refuted in the advertising of this firm in our columns.

Whitfield King & Co.—This old and reliable house has been using WEEKLY space regularly during the past few months. An unsolicited testimonial of the pulling properties of the WEEKLY was given when Mr. King wrote that over 500 1906 catalogs had been mailed to America as a result of their recent offers in our paper. The advertisement in this number is characteristic of the business which this firm is engaged in:—the importation and sale of new issues, at wholesale and retail. The set of Brunei surcharged on Labuan is a very timely offer. Indeed, lovers of new issues will find the firm a good source of supply. It will be seen that the 1907 catalog is now ready for mailing. It includes all stamps issued to last December, but without any minor varieties or perforation measurements.

D. Ostara—In Manchester, Eng., at 24 Corporation street, is a fine stamp establishment where the firm of D. Ostara caters to the growing philatelic business of this great city. Mr. Ostara's shop holds the same relation to the Manchester trade as Gibbons, Peckitt, Field and Giwelb do to London. With a stock valued at $100,000, and priced reasonably, it is small wonder that a patronage has been built up which less fortunate rivals might well envy. His advertisement in this issue does not show up the real merit of the particularly fine stock that Mr. Ostara can display. He has a nice stock of British Colonials, European and United States, and has been in business since 1884.

Besides dealing, Mr. Ostara conducts stamp auctions periodically, which are well attended and produce very satisfactory results. This is the first time, certainly for several years, that he has used our columns, and we can recommend our readers to him as thoroughly reliable and deserving of their fullest confidence. We only hope that his introduction may be so pleasant that he will desire to keep up the acquaintanceship.

A. Lindsay—A Scottish firm is a rara avis to WEEKLY readers. Mr. Lindsay, who uses our columns this week for the first time, assures us that he guarantees all the stamps offered by him to be absolutely genuine. It will be noted that his advertisement is of "British Officials," and a very fine lot of stamps is certainly offered. It would be difficult to find a dozen lines in this issue where are quoted in such compact form so many good things that the average collector will be compelled to admire—in some other person's collection. We hope Mr. Lindsay will find it profitable to present other of his wares to our readers.

Otto Weismann—For many years Mr. Weismann has been advertising in MEKEEL'S WEEKLY. His is, indeed, the oldest firm making a specialty of Netherlands and Colonies since 1885. Engaged as he is in both retail and wholsale lines he has been brought into touch with dealers and collectors throughout the entire world. The firm carries everything in the line above referred to, from the common stamp by weight to the rarest minor variety, rarer even than the well-known Mauritius from the standpoint of copies actually issued. Correspondents with this firm will surely be able to cover any wants for Netherlands and its colonies.

Gilbert & Koehler—This firm makes a specialty of revenue stamps, having a large stock of all countries. They are also the publishers of several illustrated revenue catalogs, to which we have referred in the past. Any of our subscribers interested in revenues, United States or foreign, will find it to their advantage to write this firm. In a letter just at hand a donation of four recent publications is made to the new United States Revenue Society, from which we may understand that the new society meets with the hearty approval and endorsement of this firm. Some idea of the extent of the Gilbert & Koehler revenue possessions may be gleaned from the fact that no less than nine gold and silver medals have been secured from the great exhibitions held since 1900.

A. O. Marimian—One can hardly take up a Continental stamp paper without noticing the advertising of Marimian. This house is one long established, and the advertisement of packets given elsewhere is well worthy of consideration.

Coates & Marsh—During the past few months many inquiries have reached the office of the WEEKLY soliciting information as to when the handbook by Mr. Poole on the postage stamps of Seychelles might be expected. The book is now at hand through the mediumship of Mr. Marsh, of the above mentioned firm, whose advertising will, for the first time, be found in the columns of our paper. The two members of this firm are well-known in English trade circles, and we bespeak for them a share of our subscribers' patronage. The Seychelles book, published by Mr. Marsh, will be sent any subscriber who remits us 50c with a new name.

C. G. Dietrich—It is a matter of regret to the business manager that he failed to call upon Mr. Dietrich when in Liverpool. He admits, however, that there are limitations even for an American traveller. At 61 Lord St. may be found C. G. Dietrich, "Stamp Importer, Expert and Valuer," and we commend his advertisement to the attention of our subscribers. Mr. Dietrich advertises considerably in European papers, but, if we mistake not, this marks his first use of the WEEKLY.

From the offers made, it will be seen that Mr. Dietrich has stamps for the advanced collector as well as for the medium. His specialty is the stamps of British colonies. We hope that a sufficiently large number of our readers will engage in correspondence to investigate his ability to meet their needs.

T. C. Appleton—"The proof of the pudding is in the eating." Mr. Appleton took a good-sized slice of space in our last special number with the result that he is with us again, as will be seen in the seven advertisements scattered throughout this number. We could not very well ask a better testimonial for the WEEKLY. Mr. Appleton has recently changed his address, and can now be found at Ben-Rhydding. This firm deals in all kinds of philatelic accessories,

TRANSVAAL 1868-1882.

Of these issues I am holding one of the most valuable stocks in existence consisting of a really fine selection of all the different surcharges, both red and black, imperforates, and rouletted, unused and used specimens, mounted according to their kinds of paper and colours. Serious collectors of ancient Transvaal stamps won't fail to engage in business with me.

I am paying the highest possible prices for old Transvaal stamps, WITHOUT guarantee of the seller.

JULES BERNICHON.

The life of Jules Bernichon is written in indelible characters upon the life of Parisian philately. Indeed, we may go farther than that, and say that France and the entire world has profited by the life and work of this well-known and representative leader of French philately. A Paris special without reference to his career could scarcely be written.

Jules Bernichon was born in Paris, Feb. 19, 1865. In 1887, becoming connected with a financial house, he began to collect stamps. A little later he entered the French Philatelic Society, of which he became secretary, holding also an office upon the Executive Board of this society.

A desire to see America led him to make the trip to the Columbian Exposition at Chicago, visiting the large cities of the United States, and calling at the office of the WEEKLY in St. Louis, May, 1893. Returning to France, and possessing a small stock, Mr. Bernichon entered the ranks of dealers.

While the French Philatelic Society was becoming more and more prosperous, that other organization, the French Society of Timbrology remained stationary. Among its members were Baron A. de Rothschild, Phillipe La Renotiere, Donatis, Paul Mirabaud, etc., etc. Nearly all the members of one society belonged to the other, so the union of the two societies was proposed. Pres. Auscher, of the French Philatelic Society, made many attempts to this end but they remained fruitless.

Like Diogenes, they searched for a man. The one in whom they built all their hope was named for the presidency. To him was entrusted the working out of a plan which had failed so many times. This energetic man, this fine diplomat who had the same sympathy for both societies was Jules Bernichon. His perseverance and ability to convince brought about the much desired union, and gave a new swing to the most important philatelic society in France—The French Society of Timbrology.

It was Mr. Bernichon, who as an expert, took charge of the first important philatelic sale at the Hotel Drouot when the collection of Edouard Linck (Robert) was sold. This sale, which occupied eight days, from May 20 to May 31, 1901, realized the sum of 87,000 francs.

Among his great acquisitions may be mentioned the collections of Charles Ephrussi, which brought 150,000 francs; that of Gaston Favre of Mulhouse realizing 108,000 francs; the two Post Office Mauritius from the collection of Dr. Legrand selling for 48,000 francs, the highest price ever paid for these two stamps (one of which is in the collection of H. J. Duveen of New York, and the other in the museum of Berlin).

Mr. Bernichon takes entire charge of his important transactions. It was to some extent from his important stock of unused stamps from all countries that selections were made for the purpose of making cuts for the Official Catalog. For this same work he was appointed to make the difficult classification of the stamps of the French colonies, while at the same time the duties of president of the Board of Administration of said catalog devolved upon him. All this while his own catalog was pressing upon him for attention, and this will be published within the next two years.

Mr. Bernichon is secretary of an organization of stamp dealers, and has served at exhibitions upon the Boards of Judges of Awards at Geneva, Manchester, Turin, Paris, The Hague and Berlin. His recognized honesty and high ability have made him one of the most popular experts in French philately, if, indeed, he is not the most central figure.

At the present time he is engaged in liquidating the immense collection and stock of Erard leRoy d'Etoilles, which, it is estimated, will reach 750,000 francs. The first five sales have already brought in close to 500,000 francs, and four others fully as important are to be held.

from hinges to albums. A price-list known as Appleton's Weekly is issued every saturday, at a subscription price of 50c a year, which price is less than the cost of postage. We trust Mr. Appleton will be found regularly in our columns.

L. S. Charlick—Very recently we signed a contract with Mr. Charlick for space in the WEEKLY during the year 1907. His announcements have proven timely and furnished such a wide variety of offerings that both dealer and collector could find something of interest. We hope and believe that he has been able to establish profitable business relations with the collectors of the United States.

Thumin Bros.—Just as we are closing our forms a belated advertisement reaches us from this well-known Parisian firm. We are glad to have Messrs. Thumin Bros. represented in this number, and we only wish that we could do their large business more justice than this paragraph will permit. The house of Thumin Bros. was established in 1878, and for thirty years has conducted a high-class business in stamps and philatelic accessories. Trade relations have been established throughout the entire world, and the firm feels very proud, as well it may be, of the hold that it has upon the business end of philately. Thumin Bros. have a large stock of all countries, but make a specialty of French Colonies in which they pride themselves upon being able to satisfy all demands at prices, too, that may well be considered reasonable. The firm enjoys the distinction of indisputable integrity, and in their years of dealing in stamps have been able to point to the achieving of a reputation that is beyond reproach.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centres. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—At the meeting of the Chicago Philatelic Society held March 21st, there was an unusually large number of visitors and members present. The special attraction was the exhibition of the collection of the stamps of the 20th century, the property of Howland Speakman. The contents of Mr. Speakman's albums were a pleasure to behold; his collection is almost complete. Comparatively few of the 20th century issues were missing; the single CA's practically all were represented and very few of the 20th century stamps were not shown. Mr. Speakman has made his collection in a very short time or less than a year's time. Mr. Speakman is now in the east on a visit.

—Wm. L. Hamilton, Jr, favors us with a clipping from the New York Sun of March 24. It is a very interesting article dealing with "Rare New York Local Stamps." Truly the New York Sun has done valiant service the past season in the spread of philatelic truth.

—The Chicago Daily News of recent date publishes an interesting story of the manner in which Col. H. H. Bandholtz has been he means of bringing the bandit chiefs of the Philippines to terms. The News describes the Colonel as a "little, slight-looking man but tips the scale at 178 pounds. He is well built, sinewy, very energetic and systematic and has been in some prodigious scraps." Col. Bandholtz is said to be slated to become chief of the Philippine constabulary as a result of his clearing several provinces of dangerous outlaws. He is a very popular man with the natives.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES.

Edited by Henry A. Kidder.

Any information regarding new issues will be gratefully received and acknowledged. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. The figures in parentheses refer to the previous number of the Weekly in which the same country was noticed Barbados.—Stanley Gibbons, Inc., have shown us the 1d on 2d "Kingston Relief Fund" with inverted surcharge.

British New Guinea.—This colony has been incorporated in the Commonwealth of Australia, under the name of "Papua." Its stamps are therefore being surcharged with the new name. Ewen reports that the 2d and 4d have been seen with the overprint.

Brunei.—The statement in the last number, regarding the quantities printed of the provisionals recently issued, should have stated that of the 5000 copies of the 1c surcharged, 100 had the surcharge in red.

Canada.—E. W. Ough reports a change in the color of the current $1 Quebec law stamp, from green to red.

Cuba.—Charles S. Hibbard reports that he has seen the 1c on 3c, Scott's No. 232, with double surcharge.

Denmark.—In the new set with portrait of King Frederick we have chronicled in No. 844 the 20ö slate-blue and in 846 the 100ö yellow brown. Stanley Gibbons, Inc., have shown us two other values in this set, a 10ö carmine and 50ö red-violet. These four values comprise all that have thus far been chronicled.

Adhesives.

10o carmine.
50o red violet.

Elobey, Annoban & Corisco.—Stanley Gibbons, Inc., have shown us the first five values of the new set. The colors were correctly described in our issue No. 837, but the design shows a late picture of the young king, a view with profile facing to the right.

Fernando Po.—Stanley Gibbons, Inc., have shown us the five lower values of the new set and the same remarks will apply as under Elobey.

France.—We have chronicled thus far the 10c red and 35c purple in the retouched Semeuse type without horizon, sun or ground. A third value has appeared as indicated last week, the 5c in a very beautiful shade of deep green. We are indebted to Gilbert & Koehler for a specimen just at hand. It has the "line of contour" and it will be noticed that this value is new to this design having heretofore appeared in the allegorical type.

Adhesive.

5c green, retouched.

L'Echo reports that the 3c has appeared in bright red instead of red orange.

The same paper notes that copies of the new 35c stamp, with a spot of color at the left side, as though the sower carried a reticule upon her hip.

Counterfeits of the 10c, first type, have been discovered, made with intent to deceive and defraud the Post Office.

Gibraltar.—Stanley Gibbons, Inc., have shown us the 2d green and carmine on chalky paper.

Gold Coast.—Ewen reports that the ½d lilac and green has been issued on ordinary multiple paper.

Hong Kong.—Of the current set the following values have thus far been chronicled on chalky multiple paper:—2, 4, 5, 10 and 12c and $2.00. Stanley Gibbons, Inc., have received another value, the 8c. Ewen reports that the 20c King's Head has been issued on chalky multiple paper.

Nicaragua.—Hermann Focke has shown us the 20c and 50c Waterlow print, surcharged "Costa-Atlantica"—C. The surcharge is in black on the 20c and in olive on the 50c. The "C" stands for "Cebo Gracias a Dios."

Philippines.—We have been shown by F. Wetherington two of the Revolutionary covers to which reference has been made several times in the Weekly and to which Mr. Siddall gave considerable attention in a recent article in this paper. Mr. Wetherington writes "I enclose for your inspection two Philippine covers which I found in the Philippines in 1900. I made a diligent search in every town possible and these two covers were all that I found. They are authentic beyond doubt as I unearthed one in San Pablo, Luzon, and the other in Bulan, Luzon. These stamps beyond a question performed postal duty within the territory held by the insurgents." Both of these covers have the 2c carmine with white ground back of the value. On one of the covers is an unsevered pair. All in all the covers are of much interest.

Spanish Guinea.—The chronicle for Elobey is applicable also for this colony, our issue of 839 noted a new set but without reference to the new design.

Straits Settlements.—Labuan having been incorporated in the Straits Settlements, the stamps of the latter colony are being used in the former. In order to use up the stamps of Labuan, or for some other purpose, the crown issue of Labuan stamps have been overprinted "Straits Settlements," and are being used in Labuan with this overprint. Those that have appeared, regular and provisionals, are as follows:

Adhesives.

Overprint in two lines in red.
1c violet and black.
2c green and black.
4c on 12c yellow and black.
8c vermilion and black.
Overprint in two lines in black.
4c on 16c brown and green.
4c on 18c brown and black.
Overprint in one line in red.
10c slate and brown.

PHILATELIC PREACHMENT (No. 13).

By F. R. Cornwall.

When recently in Washington, D. C., I had the pleasure of viewing the collection of Mr. George L. Toppan, including the Danish West Indies. I shall not attempt to speak of the wonderful things I saw—space will not permit. Nor shall I tell of the many varieties which were arrayed in blocks to better display their pristine beauty. None of these form my text, nor, indeed, shall I discuss Mr. Toppan, first, because he is too well known; and, second, because business calls me to Washington frequently, and he might— No, it is not of the man, but his work that I shall write, for by your work shall ye be known.

As Manager of Waterworks in Wisconsin, Mr. Toppan garnered stamps from various corners. The stamps which were so secured, being on sale, could have been secured by others—but weren't. The stamps classified and arranged by Mr. Toppan meant a labor of love, predicated upon such knowledge available at that time, and the devotion of hours at the shrine of Philately. Nor was this all. The application of knowledge and energy, combined with intelligent deductions, resulted in new discoveries. These new discoveries contributed to the sum total of philatelic knowledge on the subject.

This lesson teaches us that what one philatelist has done, another can do. We may not, all of us, be Christopher Columbuses (excuse the plural); but we may all study, we may all acquire, we may all arrange, and we may all know that which is common knowledge to the initiated. In acquiring knowledge, the mind is broadened and trained to the familiar, so that when the unfamiliar is seen it is recognized. The reader should not be too literal in construing the above—it is meant to be taken in a broad sense. The reader might say, "There are many stamps I have not seen, nor would I be familiar with them if I did see them." The answer is you would be familiar with them, because the catalogue would, if it had not already done so, make you familiar. You do not have to see a stamp to become familiar with it, although visual inspection is more impressive than the imagination can picture. There are some stamps which the writer has never seen, but he is familiar with them, and believes he could almost, as one might say, recognize them in the dark. He has long sought them, and may continue to seek for them. Familiarity will never breed contempt when postage stamps are concerned.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—Chas. S. Osgood, Salem, Mass., the well known dealer in British Colonials, favors us with a pricelist of the stamps that he can supply unused with original gum in single watermark. Few dealers, if any, in this country can supply a better line of these stamps than can Mr. Osgood.

—We acknowledge receipt of clippings from the following with thanks: James C. McGuire, M. D., (2), L. B. Chapman, Stanley P. Barnet, J. E. Jacobs, A. H. Hoffman (6), G. A. Herthum (2), Harold N. Androus, Eben S. Martin (2) and John A. Solomon (3).

—The 17th birthday of the Garfield-Perry Stamp Club of Cleveland, Ohio, was celebrated by a dinner at the Colonial Hotel. Covers were laid for 21, including Otto C. Reymann, of Alliance, Ohio. A most enjoyable time was had and indications point to a most successful year. At the last meeting President Wilson appointed Dr. W. H. Kinnicutt and Messrs. Alvin Good and W. H. Barnum a Committee on Entertainment for the remainder of 1907, and they promise much out of the ordinary.

—F. G. Ross, New York City, manager of "The Other Girl" theatrical company, is in Chicago during the stay of the troupe there, where he is renewing philatelic acquaintances. Mr. Ross, whose collecting range is wide has a penchant for western express franks.

The only profitable foundation for a high grade stamp collection is the "Rowland Hill" series, endorsed by the London "Bazaar" Expert. Price from $1 to $11. Booklet free. Alfred Smith & Son, 4, Southampton Row, London, Eng.

M. Z. BOOLEMAN.

We have met Mr. Booleman—in correspondence—and have found him a very affable gentleman. He writes one of the best letters in English that comes to us from a continental dealer. This makes it very easy for him to get acquainted, and adds materially to the value of the hold that he has upon American trade. Only quite recently has he entered our columns, but during this time he has been a generous user of space, and we are glad to be able to publish his picture in this number and call attention to the large advertisement elsewhere. In Amsterdam at Warmoesstraat, 193, may be found the offices of this Dutch dealer. He has accommodations upon the first and second floors in what is the busiest section of the city.

M. Z. BOOLEMAN.

Assisting Mr. Booleman is his nephew, Mr. Weening, who is a valuable aid in keeping the nicely arranged stock in shape for proper display.

Besides conducting a general stamp business our genial dealer is a well-known specialist in the stamps of Transvaal, having lived formerly in Johannesburg where he was the pioneer stamp dealer in South Africa. He exhibits with pride a photograph of his old premises. Among his grand old Transvaal rarities, awarded a silver gilt medal at the Milan 1906 Exhibition, he exhibited a recent purchase, a Transvaal 1877, 1d with V.R. TRANSVAAL, double surcharge rouletted on four sides. This stamp, heretofore unknown, must be one of the very rarest Transvaal stamps ever found. A complete sheet of the 15c orange first set of Netherland is shown as a rarity. Specialists of this country and its colonies may rely upon obtaining a fine assortment of issues, both rare and common, from the approval department conducted by Mr. Weening.

Mr. Booleman began business in March, 1887, having had just twenty years of experience as a dealer, which should be a guarantee in itself of his courteous and generous treatment. An office force of no mean proportions is engaged in attending to the mail order branch, which has assumed generous proportions under the forceful management that Mr. Booleman brings to his ever increasing business.

—The Boston Stamp Exchange will hold its fifth sale in Elks' Hall, on April 17, with Mr. Lyons as auctioneer. Catalogs listing 700 lots are now ready.

REPORT OF THE BOARD OF VICE-PRESIDENTS.

To the Stockholders of the American Philatelic Association:

During the second Quarter of the fiscal year the Board of Vice-Presidents have received no complaints against an applicant for admission, and but two complaints against members. Of the latter one was withdrawn during investigation, and one is now undergoing investigation In addition, however, two cases of complaints against members and two complaints against applicants, which were undergoing investigation at the date of our last report, have been disposed of as follows. Both cases against members have been referred to the Board of Directors; one applicant withdrew his application for membership; and charges against the other were not sustained and admission to membership was granted.

During the Quarter we have drawn warrants, through the regular channel, on the insurance fund in the sums of $9 00 and $7.15, total $16.15. The first of these was in reimbursement for a stamp substituted in the book of a member while in circuit through the Sales Department, and the item of $7.15 was in favor of F. M. P. de Graca of Hongkong, China, in settlement of his due for stamps sold through the Sales Department under the Oesch administration in 1904, which amount has been awaiting his claim as shown by the records of our predecessors.

We have received, and forwarded to the Treasurer to be placed to the credit of the Insurance fund, the sum of $2.60, same being from the sale of substituted stamps, account of which warrants were drawn as reported in our last report. These stamps were sold in P. M. Wolsieffer's 75th auction, January 12th, without cost to the Association.

NEW APPLICATIONS.

As soon as your name has been published as an applicant you will probably have unsolicited selections of stamps sent you on approval. As a great many collectors object to this practice the Association desires to break the practice up. Please aid us and help protect yourself and others against further imposition, by holding such selections without purchasing any, until sufficient funds have been sent by the dealer to return it to him by registered mail. Also please report the names of such dealers to the Secretary of the Association.

Written for MEKEEL'S WEEKLY.

MORE 2c ENVELOPE RETOUCHES.

TOGETHER WITH A DESCRIPTION OF THE NEW PAPER LATELY APPEARING.

BY LOUIS G. BARRETT.

It will be recalled that in the first installment of my article on the retouched dies of the current two cent stamped envelope, I stated that 200 working dies were furnished the contractors by the government, and called attention to the fact that this number was wholly inadequate to keep the presses working through a four years' contract to fill the fast increasing demand for this style of postal accommodation without retouching the working dies. It now seems probable that before the contract expires it will have been necessary to recut all of these 200 dies, for at the present writing there are 132 distinct varieties noted, and there are probably many others that have escaped our attention.

It is hoped that this constantly increasing number of varieties may not discourage collectors from laying aside all that may come their way, for while it is almost certain that it will be impossible to recognize all these differences in a catalogue already overburdened with minor varieties, still some of them, a full score or more at least show such great variations from the original as to compel recognition. Just which ones these honored ones will be it is a little difficult to say at present, hence the wish that collectors will not destroy good copies of any retouch until it is known where to draw the line against the remaining ones.

The value of retaining all until the future was shown recently in the solving, by the appearance of some of the later atrocities, of the origin of the mysterious double-teeth showing on a number of the varieties, notably Types 19, 40, 42, 62, 74, 87, etc. Until the appearance of Type 128 this was in doubt. In this type the new teeth were not cut "in register" with the old ones and the result was that the old teeth, not being wholly worn away showed close to the new ones or as double pointed teeth.

Since my installment in the WEEKLY for Jan. 26, '07, which carried the descriptions through Type 80, many new varieties appeared simultaneously from different parts of the country, shortly after the new year opened.

Also some of the older types have appeared on different sizes than they were formerly listed on, and Size 10 has made its initial appearance towards the end of January with a retouched die impression, namely Type 70, thus completing the list of sizes. Types which have appeared on the other sizes since the list in No. 839 was compiled, are in addition to that list, as follows:

Size 1, Types 32, 57.
Size 2, Type 116.
" 3, " 84.
" 4, Types 34, 112.
" 5, Types 43, 45, 51, 82, 83, 85, 86, 87, 88, 89, 90, 91, 92, 93, 95, 96, 97, 98, 101, 102, 105, 106, 108, 109, 110, 111, 117, 118, 119, 122, 124, 125, 126, 130, 131, 132.
Size 7, Type 121.
" 8, " 115.
" 9, Types 113, 120.
" 10, Type 70.
" 13, Types 42, 70, 81, 94, 99, 100, 103, 104, 107, 114, 123, 127, 128, 129.
" 14, Type 112.

Of these later types the gem of the collection is undoubtedly Type 96 and the description will make it clear that if this had happened a few years ago it would today be a listed variety of greater importance than the numeral variations in the previous issues, or at least in equal standing with the Die A's and C's of those issues.

And another matter of interest is not in the stamped impressions themselves, but in the paper upon which many of them have been appearing of late. Towards the last of the year 1906 my attention was called by a collector to the fact that a different paper was being used than formerly. Many of the types now come on this new paper which formerly appeared on the old, even the original die having been found on it. Its chief characteristics are a highly calendered surface; of a blueish-white tone both by reflected and transmitted light, rather than the yellowish-white tone of the old paper; it is somewhat thinner too than the old paper, and it can be picked out quickly from hundreds of the old specimens by sight and touch.

Another peculiarity is that the watermark, to be read properly, must be looked at from the inside of the envelope. While stray copies of the old paper may be found this way, still in its most usual form it should be read from the outside.

Further investigation showed that the watermark itself was somewhat different from the old one, its principal variation being in the position of the letters of P O D in relation to the top of the large U. In the new watermark the top of P is 8mm. below the top of U where in the old it was only 3mm.

The result of this change in position of the P has been to bring the top of O opposite the middle of the broad part of the P. The top of O is 10mm. below the top of U where before it was 8mm. and the top of D is, in the same way, 13mm. where before it was 15mm.

The U itself is broader than before, being 17mm. wide instead of 16mm. and this extra millemeter was gained at the expense of the space between the U and S which now measures 7mm. where formerly it was 8mm. The S is of different form, being especially noticeable at the back where the lower tail of the S is but 1mm. distant from the back instead of 3mm. as in the old watermark.

The date 1903 is now 19mm. wide where before it was but 18mm. This brings the 1 directly under the vertical stroke of the D whereas before the 1 was wholly to the right of the D. The 3 is but 10mm. high instead of 12mm. in the old and the 9 has a shorter tail, the numeral measuring 11mm. in length where before it was 13mm. I have been informed also that this new watermark has been seen with simply the date reading 03.

While the old watermark showed considerable variation at times, there has been nothing so different in all its parts as this new variety. Shall it be called a "retouched" watermark?

So far the following types have been found on this new paper:—Original die, 7, 9, 13, 25, 32, 33, 39, 43, 45, 47, 50, 53, 54, 55, 56, 57, 59, 61, 62, 64, 65, 69, 73, 74, 75, 76, 77, 78, 79, 80, 82, 83, 85, 86, 87, 88, 89, 93, 95, 96, 97, 101, 105, 108, 109, 110, 111, 117, 122, 126, and 130. From the above numbers it will be seen that these all appear on Size 5 with the exception of Type 57 which is on Size 1, and so far no other sizes have been seen on this paper, and the peculiarities in the watermark have not appeared on the colored papers.

My original grouping of these retouched dies into three main classes and three sub-divisions each, has been hopelesslv outgrown by the multiplicitv of the newer varieties and so to the extent of perhaps being tiresome I have given rather more lengthy descriptions than before, leaving to some future masterhand the task of gathering up and sorting the threads in this tangled skein and leading us to some better solution of the problem.

Following are the types from 80 onwards, with the sizes and papers on which they have been found at this writing:—

Type 81. (Size 13 on W, A, BL.)

(a) W of TWO tall.
(d) The right half of left swallow-tail terminates in a line pointing to the right. Earliest date seen, Dec. 4, 1906.

Type 82. (Size 5 on W, A.)

(a) T of TWO, E and T of CENTS and N of UNITED are tall.
(b) The left half of left swallow-tail is very thin.
(c) IN of WASHINGTON above the other letters.
(d) 1 and 2 of 1732 and 17 of 1799 high up.
(f) Shade-lines at left end of lower ribbon are long, fine and straight with a slight leaning to the left.
(g) First shade-line at right end extends upward into upper line of ribbon.
(h) Lower lobe at left of a round shape and close to the date 1732. Earliest date seen, Dec. 27, 1906.

Type 83. (Size 5 on W.)

(a) The E of UNITED has an upward stroke from the end of the lower bar extending nearly to the middle bar, and from the line of the ribbon below the D there is a short line branching out into the back-ground.
(b) The upper lobe at left end of lower ribbon is large and terminates in a long line pointing directly to the 14th tooth down at left.
(c) A of WASHINGTON leans towards the S.
(d) The lobes at right end of lower ribbon are of equal size, smaller than those on the left, and are connected by a very much curved line as in Type 31. Earliest date seen, Jan. 2, 1907.

Type 84. (Size 3 on W, A.)

(a) There is a large double tooth below C of CENTS.
(b) First N of WASHINGTON high up.
(c) I of UNITED is parallel with the stem of T.
(d) The inner shade-line at right end of lower ribbon is short and near top of ribbon.
(c) C of CENTS is tall and leans towards the E. Earliest date seen, Dec. 29, 1906.

Type 85. (Size 5 on W, A.)

(a) There is a distinct branching of the inner frame line just above the large numeral 2 in upper right corner.
(b) The line forming the left side of left half of left swallow-tail extends beyond the line forming the right side.
(c) Right end of upper ribbon slants downward.
(d) Left half of right swallow-tail is longer than right half.
(e) The bases of the 4th, 5th and 6th teeth down at right project into inner colored border-line.
(f) I of 1799 high up. Earliest date seen, Dec. 31, 1906.

Type 86. (Size 5 on W, A, BU.)

(a) The lobes at left end of lower ribbon are small and round and are widely separated, the upper one leaning over to the left close to serrated border.
(b) Right half of left swallow-tail is broad and ends in a double point.
(c) The top of T of TWO is very close to upper line of ribbon.
(d) Upper lobe at right end of lower ribbon long and vertical.
(e) First N of WASHINGTON leans towards the G, and final N is large.
(f) I of UNITED is parallel with N. Earliest date seen, Jan. 1, 1907.

Type 87. (Size 5 on W, A, BL.)

(a) There is a double-tooth over large numeral 2 in upper right corner as in Types 40 and 74.
(b) The top of large numeral 2 in upper left corner slants down.
(c) The right half of left swallow-tail is thin.
(d) The I's of 1732 and 1799 are high up.
(e) The upper lobe at left end of lower ribbon is large and round as in Type 21.
(f) T of TWO is tall.
(g) First shade-line at right end of lower ribbon extends into upper line of ribbon. Earliest date seen, Dec. 7, 1906.

Type 88. (Size 5 on W.)

(a) The lower line of upper ribbon is somewhat flattened below TATE of STATES but not as much as in Type 32.
(b) I of UNITED is thin and close to T.
(c) Shade-lines at right end of lower ribbon are very fine and first one extends into upper line of ribbon.
(d) C of CENTS small and low down.
(e) 2 of 1732 leans backward as in some former types.
(f) Both lobes at left end of lower ribbon slant upward at about 45 degrees.
(g) Outer line of ribbon at UN of UNITED far from serrated border and flattened. Earliest date seen, Jan. 4, 1907.

Type 89. (Size 5 on W, A, BU, BL.)

(a) The second T of STATES has a double top bar, caused by the retouching showing above the worn original line.
(b) Teeth across top are very irregular, being large at either end and diminishing as they approach the center.
(c) The left end of upper ribbon makes an abrupt cur-off corner near top of U of UNITED.
(d) First shade-line at left end of lower ribbon extends into upper line of ribbon.
(e) 1 of 1799 high and 9's small. Earliest date seen, Jan. 12, 1907.

Type 90. (Size 5 on W, A, BL.)

(a) U and T of UNITED lean backwards.
(b) A of STATES high and TE close.
(c) S of POSTAGE tall and TA close, nearly touching at bottom.
(d) O of WASHINGTON is like a letter C backwards.
(e) W of TWO leans back, and CE of CENTS are very close together, leaving a wide space between the E and N.
(f) The fifth tooth from right at top drops below the others.
(g) Left end of upper ribbon slants downward sharply and both halves of left swallow-tail are broad to the tips. Earliest date seen, Jan. 15, 1907.

(a) There is a long curved inner border line at left of large numeral 2 in left upper corner.
(b) The left half of right swallow-tail is thin. Earliest date seen, Jan. 8, 1907.

Type 92. (Size 5 on W.)

(a) Both lobes at left end of lower ribbon are of good size, the lower one is nearly horizontal, while the upper one is close down on it and slants upward.
(b) The right half of left swallow-tail is broad clear to the end.
(c) The G of POSTAGE leans back towards the A.
(d) The shade-lines at right end of lower rib-

SAVE MONEY

When we tell you that we send out as good a line of approval books at 60% discount, as you can get for 50%, we mean it. It's not "hot air." "Proof of the pudding is in the eating," and the only way you can prove our statements is by a trial. We have no fear of the result. Our books are intended for the general collector, not specialist. Let us send you a list of our books, also our money saving Bargain list. It pays to look around sometimes, to see if you can't do better. Perhaps this is your chance.

OUR AMERICAN PHILATELIC ASSOCIATION SPECIAL.

The latter part of this month our national organization will have passed the 1000 membership mark. It will be a notable achievement, and the WEEKLY proposes to celebrate the event. Our issue of April 27 will be dedicated to the A. P. A., and its contents will be of a nature calculated to render to our national society the honor due it. We shall make the number a missionary effort and issue a large edition; indeed, a sufficiently large number will be printed to use for sample copy distribution during the months of May, June, July and August.

bon are close to the end of ribbon and conform to the curvature of it.
Earliest date seen, Jan. 20, 1907.

Type 93. (Size 5 on W, A.)

(a) The E of UNITED leans forward towards the D.
(b.) The first N of WASHINGTON is above the curve of the other letters.
(c) The lobes at left end are of medium size and both slant upward at the same angle.
(d) The shade-lines at left end of lower ribbon slant to the left.
Earliest date seen, Jan. 19, 1907.

Type 94. (Size 13 on W, BL.)

(a) TE of UNITED are close; the top of the T touching back of E, and also leaning back towards the I.
(b) TA of STATES are close.
(c) O of TWO is far from W, being nearly half way between the W and the C of CENTS.
(d) The H of WASHINGTON is well above the line of the other letters.
(e) Lower lobe at right slants up.
Earliest date seen, Jan. 10, 1907.

Type 95. (Size 5 on W, A.)

(a) The right half of right swallow-tail terminates in a long straight line, pointing directly downward.
(b) The upper line of lower ribbon is very uneven beginning over the W of TWO and extending to a point over the E of CENTS.
(c) T of TWO and E of CENTS are tall; the E also being close to the C.
(d) 1 of 1799 is high up.
(e) The left end of lower ribbon and the shade-lines at that end all slant to the left.
Earliest date seen, Jan. 20, 1907.

Type 96. (Size 5 on W, A.)

(a) This is one of the most distinct types and can be readily found by noticing the saw-teeth at the upper left side. In all previous dies the first tooth down has been below the base of the large numeral 2. In this type however there is an additional tooth, in all respects like the others, higher up above the base of the 2.
(b) The base of the left numeral 2 has an abrupt thickening just before joining the down stroke.
(c) The I of UNITED is nearly the full width of the ribbon.
(d) The U of UNITED is far from end of ribbon, and the end line of upper ribbon at left slants upward.
(e) There is a hooked ending to right half of right swallow-tail as in Type 35.
Earliest date seen, Jan. 15, 1907.

Type 97. (Size 5 on W, A.)

(a) Lower ribbon is narrow at TWO.
(b) NI of UNITED close.
(c) C of CENTS low.
(d) Upper lobe at left extremely small with a long curved ending.
(e) Shade-lines at both ends close together and vertical.
Earliest date seen, Feb. 1, 1907.

Type 98. (Size 5 on W, A, BU.)

(a) Right half of left swallow-tail is broad and with very little curvature opposite the chin of bust.
(b) W of TWO is low, touching lower line of ribbon.
(c) Lower lobe at left is large and horizontal.
(d) Lower lobe at right is thin and raised well above end of ribbon.
(e) The two outer shade-lines at left end of lower ribbon extend upward into upper line of ribbon.
Earliest date seen, Jan. 7, 1907.

Type 99. (Size 13 on W, BL.)

(a) The lower lobe at right end of lower ribbon is small and close down on end of ribbon, while the upper lobe is larger and at a considerable distance above it, with a long curved stem connecting it with the lower lobe.
(b) The 7 of 1732 is high and the 3 is nearly closed resembling an 8.
(c) The ribbon about queue is very prominent.
(d) The shade-lines in right half of left swallow-tail are high up near point of division.
Earliest date seen, Jan. 30, 1907.

Type 100. (Size 13 on W, BL.)

(a) The lower line of lower ribbon is heavy beginning at left end and changing abruptly into a thinner line under the W of TWO.
(b) The W and O of TWO both lean back to the left.
(c) The left swallow-tail is narrow, as a whole, and the left half has but little wavyness.
(d) The right half of right swallow-tail has a split point.
(e) The shade-lines in the fold of the upper ribbon to the right of U of UNITED are close together in the middle of the fold.
(f) The shade-lines at left end of lower ribbon are nearly the full width of ribbon.
Earliest date seen, Feb. 2, 1907.

Type 101. (Size 5 on W.)

(a) The third and fourth teeth down at left are arrow-headed.
(b) There is a long hair-line under W of TWO branching from the lower line of ribbon and running parallel to it.
(c) Left half of left swallow-tail is slim and ends in a long point.
(d) Right half of right swallow-tail is broad and blunt.
Earliest date seen, Feb. 9, 1907.

Type ~~102.~~ (Size 5 on W.)

(a) There are small points between the large teeth in the top border at the right end.
(b) The A of WASHINGTON is high.
(c) The S of CENTS has a double-lined top.
Earliest date seen, Feb. 4, 1907.

Type 103. (Size 13 on W, BL.)

(a) The upper lobe at right end of lower ribbon is large and round.
(b) The inner border line at left of left large numeral 2 is divided into two hair-lines.
(c) The E of STATES is low.
(d) The third tooth down at left is large.
(e) Lobes at left end of lower ribbon are widely separated.
Earliest date seen, Feb. 10, 1907.

Type 104. (Size 13 on W, A, BU, BL.)

(a) The teeth at top are out of alignment, the 6th and 8th from the right being above the others while the 7th drops down, touching the upper line of ribbon.
(b) AT of STATES close and second T leans towards the E.
(c) Right end of upper ribbon slants downward.
(d) EN of CENTS high up, nearly touching upper line of ribbon.
(e) Right large numeral 2 is narrow.
Earliest date seen, Feb. 11, 1907.

Type 105. (Size 5 on W, A.)

(a) TA in STATES close, and 2nd T tips backward.
(b) W of TWO low.
(c) C of CENTS closed as in Type 4 with a hair-line.
(d) Both lobes at left end of lower ribbon are round, but the upper one is larger than the lower.
(e) There is a small tooth between first and second teeth at upper right corner.
(f) There is a long tail to upper lobe at right.
(g) Shade-lines at left end of lower ribbon are very fine and close to end of ribbon.
Earliest date seen, Jan. 12, 1907.

EDITORIAL.

Thirst for Instruction—The subject of philatelic literature is one that interests many collectors, who, in the aggregate, represent the gamut of philately's personnel, from beginner to specialist. The beginner so soon as he scans the wide vista of philately naturally feels a confusion, due to an impression of largeness; he becomes very anxious to know the meaning of terms familiarly used and to learn all those facts that are understood by the average collector. He is ambitious in his quest of knowledge; and he desires a rate of progress in learning that requires, if it would be accomplished, a special degree of attention centered upon him. Unless a stamp paper be wholly devoted to the interests and information of the beginner, it cannot assist the novice so rapidly as he would like. Under existing circumstances, the beginner must acquire his instruction somewhat slowly through the stamp paper, selecting the items that inform him, from the total of contents. While his progress in this way may be slow, it is sure, and the knowledge is the more satisfactory because it is acquired only by some effort. If the young collector desires the elementary part of philately in condensed and compact form, he may obtain it through the study of works such as, "What Stamp Collecting Teaches," by Mr. Luff or "Stamps and Stamp Collecting," by Major Evans. The preface, "Hints to Collectors," in the Standard Catalogue gives in tabloid form, much information of the essentials of the hobby.

Position of the Beginner—Our experience has been that beginners in many cases are content to obtain their knowledge gradually, and absorb the rudiments a few at a time. When a stamp monthly, some years ago, was established under able management, solely to instruct the young collector, it did not receive the expected support from those whose interests it aimed to cultivate exclusively, and, consequently, after a time, it was discontinued. The sale of hand-books for the beginner are not so large as one would expect them to be; and observation during a period of years forces the conviction that the beginner while wishing to learn rapidly does not take the most direct course to fulfil his desire. Perhaps, it is just as well to allow the novice to feel his way along and get his information only at the expense of some personal application and effort. We always have the beginner in mind, even though we cannot devote a monopoly of space to him. After all, the typical beginner, full of youthful philatelic ardor takes care of himself, in a gratifying way, as a rule.

Proud Record—Having disposed of the beginner in a manner, our remarks on philatelic literature may now proceed to a consideration of other collecting divisions, in their relations to philatelic literature. These items are a consequence of the question of a reader who writes a letter complaining about the lack, he alleges, of instructive works on philately, which, he says, has no permanent literature in comparison to the standing and importance of philately. The sincerity and emphasis of our correspondent's remarks are not to be questioned, but, on the score of fact, his contention is not well, or even fairly grounded. Philately has a "permanent literature" and one that merits acclamation more heartily than it generally receives. There are all too few collectors who give consistent attention to the formation of a library, and the very existence of some of the creditable works that have been published may not be known by some philatelists. Volumes, such as Baron de Reuterskiold's "Switzerland," Wright and Creeke's "Great Britain," Ewen's "British Railway Stamps," Luff's "United States," Diena's "Sicily," translated from the Italian, and the works of the London society, all in English, are some of the creations that redound with distinct meaning to the credit of philately; they are, indeed, super-excellent.

No Enormous Demand—The number of worthy volumes of substantial kind that have been issued during the past decade or two, ranging from works of airy fiction to those of solid fact are sufficient in number to stock a small book-case. We can say further to our correspondent that if more encouragement were extended to publishers of philatelic works, even more examples of "permanent literature" would appear, as in the past, it has not infrequently proved that the expectations of publishers were sadly disappointed by the sales of works that entailed large expense in producing.

Handbook and Catalogue—Collectors are well provided, too, with catalogues; in this regard they are equipped very satisfactorily. There are the familiar catalogues of the kind that are indispensable to collectors, those that are consulted continuously. Then, there are catalogues embodying the most exhaustive treatment of stamps, e. g., the Catalogue for Advanced Collectors, Moen's and the work of the French society. Thus, the general ground is well covered and more exactingly than it might be thought practical by some to cultivate so broad and rich a field. For some years, hand-books, elaborately treating the issues of single countries have been appearing and counting the total output of these from all sources, the number is now a commanding one. In time, nearly every stamp issuing country of distinction will have a hand-book devoted to its issues; and then, the specialist will be taken care of in a way that will leave him little to be desired.

Something for All—The specialist is one who may be said to find two stamps where before only one appeared. Even though the hand-book tells everything about the stamps of a country, it does not follow that the specialist's occupation will be gone. Philately is a progressive study and it usually keeps just tantalizingly in advance of its followers; this loans a piquancy to the pursuit that in different ways is desirable. The specialist may know the stamps of one or several countries, in a most thorough way, but he appropriates only a small geographical division of the world. The general collector may know something of all the countries of the world but he cannot know everything about all of them in the way that the specialist knows everything of some of them.

* * *

A Comparison—A friendly reader sends a clipping from a newspaper telling of the sale at auction, in Philadelphia, of some of the rarer United States coins. Among the items was a one-dollar gold piece, Dahlonega mint mark, in extremely fine condition that brought $280. Only four specimens of the date (which is not named) and mint are known, it is said. The comment is made: "Why don't you write an article in your paper noting the greater popularity and stability of stamps as shown by one of a total supply of coins having sold at $280, while the 2-cent Hawaiian, first issue, of which perhaps a dozen or more are known, sells at $3000, post office Mauritius at $6000 or more and 12 pence black Canada of which there are hundreds, at $3000 to $400, each." It is generally admitted that coin collecting is a dignified pursuit whose importance in contributing to a knowledge of early history, in particular, places it high among the standard hobbies, and stamps, while not boasting of any proud heritage, seem to have eclipsed coins as collecting favorites, even when weighed on the scales of sordid financial consideration.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

It has been called to our attention that the Monroe Stamp Co. of New York City has been sending out Philippine stamps with counterfeit surcharges. Purchasers of these stamps will do well to have them passed upon by an expert.

—At the present time the membership list of the Royal Philatelic Society numbers about 250. 100 more applicants may be received and given the "F. R. P. S." so much prized by the members of this society.

Lot of Filled Approval Sheets FOR DEALERS

A lot of filled approval sheets all in perfect order and all ready to send out. The sheets contain 50 stamps each, priced according to catalogue and running as high as 25 cents and over that. Here and there a 35c, 50c stamp. There are about from 30 to 40 sheets in the lot and contain large variety. Stamps both used and unused, no U. S., no cut envelopes, no postal cards. A very fine lot for anyone doing an approval sheet business, as you can send them out the day you get them. Have never been folded nor soiled in any way. This lot of sheets price up to $70 00, and they usually run a little over that but not below. Price $6.75. You can give 50%, 60%, 75% or even 80% discount and still more than double your money.

This is a great bargain and almost every order has been duplicated or trebled in a very short time. [H

QUERIES AND COMMENT.

Edited by C. E. Severn.

Our readers are cordially invited to ask the editor for any information desired concerning stamp collecting. Should a personal reply be desired kindly enclose postage. This department is for the beginner as well as the advanced collector. Address, C. E. Severn, 820 Oxford Bdg., Chicago Ill.

We must say a word here to those who write this department for information, desired in print or by personal reply. For some time past, the congestion of letters has been so great that queries sometimes are answered only after the longest delay, and not a few readers who have asked for personal replies which have not been forthcoming, no doubt feel provoked at our delinquency and retention of the stamps sent for return reply. The unusual volume of letters is reflective of the activity of the stamp season, which is now at its height. We are making an effort to attend to delayed correspondence and hope soon to have everything running according to schedule again.

It is apparent from the questions that they ask, that many of our readers, particularly among new subscribers, do not possess a stamp catalogue, one of the necessary adjuncts to intelligent collecting. Requests are coming in number for price quotations on stamps that are listed and priced in the standard catalogues; and if we were to comply with these wishes, this column would become a barren field of quotations from the priced catalogues. Much as we incline to favor all of our readers, we must, in an effort to make this column of interest, only sparingly, if at all, supply catalogue quotations that may be found from consultation of the catalogues. We do not hesitate to recommend any of the leading catalogues and say that the amount of monev invested in one or more of them is wisely expended by the collector even of the youngest estate.

Reader: The one penny red brown or Venetian red, Great Britain, 1881, comes in shades but there is no record of the color of the stamp as named by you. Your specimen must be a changeling, its color having been altered by chemical means employed accidentally or intentionally. (2) Your uncatalogued Hawaiian numerals may be forgeries; all the known varieties of these stamps are catalogued. We suggest that you submit the stamps in question to an expert for his opinion. (3) The word "Cancelled" was printed on the remainders of certain stamps of Mauritius before they were turned over to a stamp dealer who had purchased the lot from the authorities.

An esteemed correspondent submits a number of interesting postal curiosities for inspection. One is a cover bearing the 1d green, Peru, 1862-72, in conjunction with the 2d blue, 1859, and 4d vermilion, last type, 1862-65 issue of Great Britain; and in addition there are four United States stamps on the envelope, two 3-cent green and two 2-cent brown. Our correspondent says: "From the letter, which was mailed to my father's step-father by his nephew, I glean that it was mailed to a steamship which demanded United States or British stamps on it or both,—perhaps, it was carried on two lines of ships." Covers bearing Peruvian stamps and those of Great Britain are seen occasionally, but the envelope in question bears the postal issues of three nations. A Panaman postmark, dated 1872, is noticed among the markings on the envelope. We all know that upon the appearance of the 1861 issue, United States, the preceding issue was demonetized and rendered invalid for postal service. A letter is shown, bearing in the upper right hand corner, a three-cent 1857-60, pencil-crossed, and adjoining the stamp is one of the 1861 issue, three cent. It is proved by the cover that the law against the availability of the 1857-60 issue was observed more strictly, as was natural, in 1862 when the letter was mailed than in later days. A collector now may slip an envelope bearing a three-cent 1857-60 through the mails unchallenged, as a rule.

A reader asks: "If possible, I should be pleased to obtain the exact number of stamps of each denomination of the present issue of Antigua that have been printed." Not having the information at hand, we ask if any of our readers can supply it.

WHY DO I COLLECT?

As a special inducement to our younger readers to enter the contest outlined two weeks ago, the Weekly will print the picture of the winner in the contest providing a photograph is supplied us. A goodly number of entries have already been received, but not sufficient for us to feel that the contest is a genuine success. Remember six gold posthorn badges will be given to the six essayists sending in the best contributions of not more than 300 words upon the subject "Why Do I Collect Postage Stamps?" In addition a $3.00 stamp album will be given for the best entry, and, as stated above, the writer will be awarded the special distinction of having his portrait appear in the Weekly. Any of our readers 18 years of age or younger are invited to enter this contest, and submit manuscript prior to May 1.

VICTORIA.

COLUMBIAN STAMP Co., Arlington, Mass.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES.

Edited by Henry A. Kidder.

Any information regarding new issues will be gratefully received and acknowledged. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. The figures in parentheses refer to the previous number of the Weekly in which the same country was noticed

United States.—E. M. Gearhart reports having seen what appears to be a new variety of precancel. This is the current 1c stamp, precanceled "Yonkers—N. Y." in two lines. The peculiarity is that the precancellation covers two stamps, so that each stamp has only one-half the overprint. As Mr. Gearhart has the stamps on cover, he feels sure of their genuineness.

Canada.—Mrs. Oughtred supplements the note in the last number by showing us two copies of new issues of revenues from the Dominion. These are the $1 carmine Quebec Registration and the 30c blue Quebec Registration. These have previously been printed in vermilion and green respectively.

French Colonies.—The New England Stamp Co. has shown us the following novelties, supplementing and completing the partial sets previously chronicled, all appearing under the general head of French West Africa.

Dahomey—This set is completed as follows, the 10c and 35c regular adhesives and 20c postage due adhesive having been previously chronicled:

Adhesives.

1c dark gray green.
2c brown violet.
4c brown on blue.
5c green.
20c black on blue.
25c blue on salmon.

Peru.—This country is evidently to have a new series of stamps, the new 5c value having been shown us by Hermann Focke and Emil R. Penschow. It is the same large size of the recent issues of Peru, and is in two colors, and finely engraved and printed, evidently the work of the American Bank Note Co., New York. The central picture is a copy of an equestrian statue, spirited and well drawn, while the frame is striking in its simplicity and artistic beauty. "Union—Postal Universal—Peru" is printed in a tablet at the top, the second and third lines being slightly curved. Figures of value appear at either side in small shield shaped tablets, while "5 centavos 5" forms the bottom of the frame. The frame is printed in deep blue and the center in black.

Mr. Penschow also sends us two provisional stamps, being the 12c blue and black, Scott's No. 165, overprinted new values, as stated below, the surcharges being in small Gothic caps.

Adhesive.

5c deep blue and black.

Provisional Adhesives.

"Dos Centavos" on 12c deep blue and black, surcharge in purple.

Reunion.—The New England Stamp Co. has shown the full set of stamps for this colony, noted last week, regular adhesives and postage due stamps, so that we are able to confirm the statements there made on the authority of our French contemporary. There are three types as there stated, the first showing a map of the Island, the second a view of St. Denis and the third a vessel off a mountainous coast, probably some portion of Reunion. Analyzed, the designs are not altogether bad, though the arrangement and colors are not always happy, and sometimes quite the reverse. The stamps are of the large oblong type so much affected at present by the French Colonial authorities. One thing the colonists of Reunion can safely claim,—they at last have a decidedly unique set of stamps, like no others ever issued. Let us hope they may be the first and last of their kind. The regular adhesives are all on white paper.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centres. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—A temporary organization of a branch of the United States Revenue Society has been effected in Chicago, and Branch One of the parent organization has been formed. The officers chosen for the time, are: President, James S. Hardy; Vice-President, E. P. Douglass; Secretary-Treasurer, Wallace H. Dodge.

—Duncan Kay, Detroit, Michigan, paid a visit to Chicago recently, where he renewed acquaintances made on former trips.

—Latterly, the imperforate stamps, one and two cents of the present issue, have been sold in sheets at the Chicago postoffice only after assurance has been given by the customer that the stamps will be used in Chicago and not sent away from the city.

—As will be seen by the advertisement of M. Z. Booleman the recent issue of Charity stamps has passed into Mr. Booleman's possession and he now has the sole agency for the supply of these stamps.

—We acknowledge with thanks the receipt from Warren H. Colson of the regular monthly installment of his desk calendar. April has an illustration of the 2p New South Wales laureated of November '53 showing error in spelling WAEES. This is one of a recently purchased fine lot of laureated issues New South Wales re-constructed plates.

—The Chicago Philatelic Society has engaged quarters in the Roanoke building for the ensuing year. The step is one in advance, even though the old quarters that have been occupied so many years are relinquished with some regret for old association's sake.

—Receipt of clippings is acknowledged with thanks from T. C. Mann and John Monser.

—From the Toledo Stamp Co. we have received a catalog of their 14th mail auction sale which will be held April 15, at their office in Toledo, O. A good general line of U. S. and foreign is offered.

—The collectors of Attleboro, Mass., have organized what will be known as the North Purchase Philatelic Society. F. B. Eldredge was elected President and Clarence L. Bowers, Secretary. Meetings will be held on the second and fourth Wednesday evenings of each month.

—P. M. Wolsieffer, who advertised recently on behalf of a client to pay good prices for United States stamps in fine condition says that he did not receive a single response to his advertisement. Evidently United States stamps in fine condition are recognized as something worth keeping by their owners.

—We have received from the Mecca Stamp Co. a mid-season list No. 19. It prices a good line of U. S. and foreign stamps at good reductions from catalog prices. It also contains lists of sets and packets that can be supplied. There is also an exchange proposition that would interest those of our readers who have duplicates to offer. This list of 20 pages is well worth perusal. Address Box 860, Omaha, Nebr.

The fifty-third regular meeting of this Society was held at usual time and place, Tuesday, March 19th, 1907, President Cornwall in the chair and eleven members present. The entertainment for the evening was furnished by the contest exhibition of adhesives of Norway, which proved to be a favorite country with many members, evidenced by the number of entries, of which there were more than at any preceding competition. The prizes offered by Mr. Diamant were awarded as follows:—Myers, 1st; Humes, 2nd; Delafield, 3rd. Messrs. Diamant, Hopkins and Schoeman acted as judges Highest average 90%

Don't forget Grand U. S. contest next meeting April 2nd. Entries to consist of Adhesive Postage, Department, Postage Due, Special Delivery, Officially Sealed and Newspaper Stamps. Only these classes will be considered in competition although members may exhibit such other varieties as they may desire. This contest is already arousing considerable interest and a goodly number of entries is expected. It is hoped to make this the banner exhibition of the year and to this end and to encourage all to enter, the prizes offered by Messrs. Cornwall, Diamant and Hopkins will be awarded in five parts. Next meeting April 2d.

THE MONARCH TYPEWRITER COMPANY,
Old South Bldg., Boston, Mass.

Gentlemen:

I wish to let you know how pleased I am with the Monarch Visible Typewriter. The machine which I bought of you a few months ago has been eminently satisfactory in every way, and after considerable experience with some of the standard non-visible writers, the many advantages of your machine have been peculiarly impressed upon me.

It is certainly true economy to buy the best, and this I feel that I have done.

Wishing you all success, I am

Yours very truly,

NEW APPLICATIONS.

As soon as your name has been published as an applicant you will probably have unsolicited selections of stamps sent you on approval. As a great many collectors object to this practice the Association desires to break the practice up. Please aid us and help protect yourself and others against further imposition, by holding such selections without purchasing any, until sufficient funds have been sent by the dealer to return it to him by registered mail. Also please report the names of such dealers to the Secretary of the Association.

Regular meetings 3rd Friday in each month at Y. M. C. A. Bldg., Room 6, Providence, at 8 P.M.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., March 15, 1907.

The regular monthly meeting was held in Room 6, Y. M. C. A. Bldg., Pres. McIntyre presiding. Minutes of two previous meetings approved as read. Mr. Mason as Banquet Committee had nothing further to report as the good time enjoyed was well covered in the minutes of the last meeting. The Executive Committee could not report on proposed members, as the chairman was unable to be present.

The Pres. appointed the following committees: Auditing Committee, Geo. A. Streeter; Executive Committee. Dr. S. A. Welch, A. R. Perry, W. A. Mowry. The proposition to hold all the meetings on the 3rd Friday in each month was carried. Any member having copies of the American Journal of Philately and wishing to help out the Library Committee (some numbers being short to complete a few volumes) will kindly notify Mr. F. M. Mason and he will supply you with the dates of the copies wanted. Several members displayed fine lots of stamps. This exhibition and a spirited auction sale closed a very interesting meeting.

The 225th meeting of the T. C. P. S. was held Thursday evening, March 28th, at 422 6th Ave. Roll call showed 13 members and 2 visitors present. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. Mr. Stauffer exhibited a portion of his fine collection and Mr. Doeblin will exhibit his stamps of France, Switzerland, Portugal, Spain, Norway and Sweden at next meeting. The application of J. G. Linn, 922 Mellon St., Pittsburgh, was received and referred to the Executive Committee. A general discussion of matters tending to benefit the Society closed the evening. The Society adjourned at 10 P. M.

EDW. DE Z. KELLEY, Sec'y.

BOSTON, March 20th, 1907.

The one hundred and sixty-fourth regular meeting of the Society was held in Elks' Hall, Boston, on Tuesday evening, March 19th, with President Howes in the chair and 31 members and friends present.

The Committee on Permanent Quarters reported progress.

The Library Committee reported the following pieces added to the library:—

British Guiana Philatelical Journal by the British Guiana Society.

Drew's 176th, 177th and 178th, and Bartels' 36th Priced Catalogues, by A. P. Brown.

Drew's 10th, 11th, 12th, 13th, 15th, 16th, 95th and 126th, Brown's 1st, by the New England Stamp Co.

Morgenthau's Scholle sale, by J. S. Rich.

"Stamps of the Straits Settlements surcharged for use by the different protected States," and Senf's 1907 Catalogue, by purchase, and "Philatelic Side Lines," by the Springfield Stamp Club.

We have also had bound:—

1906 Philatelic Journal of India, London Philatelist, Gibbons' Stamp Weekly and The Philatelic Record, Bartels' Priced Catalogues from the 5th to the 34th inclusive, and Drew's 1905 and 1906 sales.

A communication was received from Mr. L. Harald Kjellstedt, American representative of the Philatelic Society of Sweden, requesting on the part of that Society permission to make a translation of Mr Holland's "Siam Book" for publication in the Swedish Society's Official Organ, and it was unanimously voted to give the desired permission.

The following gentlemen were elected to membership:—

No. 468. Mr. P. C. Kimball, 2nd, No. Scituate, Mass.
No. 469. Mr. E. A. King, Wollaston, Mass.
No. 470. Mr. Day Kimball, Boston.
No. 471. Mr. E. R. Jackson, Boston.
No. 472. Mr. F. A. Fowler, Boston.
No. 473. Mr. H. V. Roberts, Utica, N. Y.

Mr. Francis C. Foster exhibited his wonderful collection of the stamps of the Colombian Republic, which embraces every major variety (except some of the recent trashy freaks, which Mr. Foster does not collect) and many unlisted varieties, and is especially rich in imperforate pairs and shades.

Among the wealth of fine things was noted 1863 error 50c red, instead of 20c, cataloguing $100.00; Cali, reconstructed sheets and panes; Cauca, complete, including the 1879 5c black cataloguing $250.00 and the only known copy of the 1882 5c with frame, and figure 5 omitted in lower left corner.

Panama is very strong in old issues and rare surcharges and errors.

Of the first type set issue of Tolima Mr. Foster showed more than one hundred specimens, including several uncut sheets and an unlisted variety—5c blue on horizontally laid paper—plate one, with double impression.

The opportunity of viewing such a magnificent collection was greatly appreciated and a vote of thanks was given Mr. Foster for his kindness in furnishing this addition to our entertainment.

In the Uncatalogued Variety competition Mr. H. W. Legg gained the custody of the Weber cup with an exhibit of over fifty uncatalogued varieties.

REPORT OF SECRETARY-TREASURER.

ATTLEBORO, MASS., April 1, 1907.

Total membership to Mar. 1, 1907, 25. Resigned: 53. Joseph Hahn, Chicago, Ill. Total membership April 1, 1907, 24. It has been proposed that the N. P. A. of L. C. be changed so that instead of only Letter Carriers being taken as members we take any United States Post Office employee who wishes to join us as a member. I should like to hear the opinions of the members upon this subject before any action is taken upon it. Please let me hear from all regarding it. The following members are still in arrears on their 1906 dues: 2, 5, 23, 35, 40, 45, 56.

The Postal Card Society of America.

S. SCHACHNE, Pres.; DR. GEORGE DIMMOCK, Vice-Pres.; S. M. EDWARDS, Sec., Argusville, N. Dak.; JNO. N. MORSE, Treas.; J. T. A. HOSBACH, Exch. Supt., 1422 No. 53d St., Phila., Pa.; S. SCHACHNE, Purchasing Agent, Masonic Bdg., Chillicothe, O.; N. H. WITHER, H. E. CARPENTER, JR., W. G. SAXTON, Ex. Com.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

A copy of the new pamphlet, explaining in detail the advantages of postal card collecting, has been mailed to all my fellow members. The only way to assist me in this propaganda is to send me the names and addresses of all persons who might be interested in our hobby. I therefore ask all members to send me as many names as possible; students of high schools, academies, etc., are particularly desired. Each party will receive, in addition to above mentioned pamphlet, an entire, unused foreign postal card. Please bear in mind that, in assisting me in this work, you not only aid our Society in particular and postal card collecting in general, but that you also enhance the value of your own collection.

S. SCHACHNE.

Distribution No. 6 of the Purchasing Department, sent out on March 14th, consisted of the following new issues: Bavaria (12), German Empire (3), Monaco (2), Servia (1). Notwithstanding my repeated advice to all members to take advantage of the usefulness of the Purchasing Dept., there are still a few names lacking on my list. They do not appreciate the benefit they would derive by joining. I earnestly urge all members to participate. They risk absolutely nothing, as any new issue not satisfactory may be returned.—S. SCHACHNE.

QUERIES AND COMMENT.

Edited by C. E. SEVERN.

T. E. N.:—The following extracts from the contract entered into by N. F. Seebeck, secretary of the Hamilton Bank Note Company, New York City, and the Republic of Salvador, in 1889, detail the information, in effect, for which you ask: "1. N. F. Seebeck, in representation of the above named company, binds himself to supply, free of all cost to the mail service of Salvador, such quantities of the necessary postal issues as will be in hereinafter determined, for the period of ten successive years, commencing from the date of the present agreement, according to the designs which the General Management will supply on the first day of April of each year, it being understood that the issues of each period of twelve months be perfectly distinct from those preceding and following them, while the type adopted for each year's series of postal issues must be uniform. * * * 6. In compensation of the disbursements made by the company in engraving and furnishing the postal issues in question, the Supreme government of Salvador agrees to cede to the company the stock which, on the conclusion of each year, may be in its possession, upon the previous declaration of their nullity on the first day of January of each year, whatever be the quantity thereof; binding itself, moreover, not to sell stamps or any of the other issues mentioned for less than their nominal cost or value, while they are in use. 7. This stock will be delivered, without any cost whatever, by the government of Salvador to the representative of Mr. Seebeck in this capitol on the first day of February of each year for the term of the present agreement. 8. Upon the representative of Salvador being notified by the Supreme government that the issues of each successive year being declared void and not receivable for postage, and advice having been given to that effect to the engraving company, the latter can withdraw from the safe deposit already mentioned, the matrices of the postal issues, and break, in the presence of the representative, the seals referred to in Article II., for the purpose of using the plates to make such reprints as the engraving company may want to sell to stamp dealers and collectors." From the foregoing, it will be seen that while the plates were preserved, they reverted to the possession of the engraving company, and so the number of reprintings was optional with the company.

While on the subject of the stamps of Salvador correction must be made of an error that was made in the answer to "Iberia" on page 91, WEEKLY of March 9th. It was said: "There have been no reprints of the stamps of Salvador." When this answer was given the Seebecks were not in mind; and as reference to Mr. Bacon's work on "Reprints" contained no reference to Salvador, the misleading statement was made. In the preceding item, reprinting is referred to in specific terms, so far as the Seebecks are concerned; and the statement as made in this column should have been qualified, "with the exception of the Seebeck issues." We are aware that the reprintings of the Seebeck sets show differences in some cases, and that it has been suggested to a catalogue maker that he take cognizance in his work of the different printings. E. B. Power of Stanley Gibbons writes to correct our Salvador slip and sends copies of a specimen used during the year of issue and a subsequent reprint, in which the differences of shade are marked.

D. S. K.:—The 5c. green, 1856-58, Italy, perforated, is a reprint. Mr. Bacon says that the 5, 20 and 40c. of this issue, were reprinted by a Berlin dealer in 1889 and 1890; white wove paper and white gum; imperforate and perforated. (2) We have no statistics as to the number of Crete 19a issued. (3) The one penny Antigua, 1862, watermarked letters, is from a sheet on which the marginal watermarked letters were printed upon. "If the sheet of paper is carelessly put into the printing press, one of the outer rows of stamps may be printed upon the margin, and we may find stamps watermarked with large letters or with a line * * * Many of the stamps of British colonies (most of which are watermarked) are known with irregular watermarks of this kind."

The following is quoted from a letter, enclosing for inspection, a pair of one-cent blue, 1895, regular issue, United States, on a cover, that were used provisionally at Detroit, as postage due stamps; each stamp is letter-impressed: due, 1 cent: "The due stamps, on the envelope, were used in Detroit about ten years ago, when the postoffice had run out of the official sort. For three days these stamps were used, and then there was trouble from Washington. This issue was official, of course, and not at all speculative, although it is given no place in the catalogue. Do you know why? There are two cent stamps used in this way, and I am informed that a Detroit collector has a five cent of the kind on the original cover."

S. B. HOPKINS, (A.P.A., M.P.A., etc.)
5728 Julian Ave., St. Louis, Mo.

We can understand why cataloguers do not list the specimens referred to in the foregoing item. The arbiters of philatelic destiny in a catalogue sense are suspicious of any issue that has not the fullest official sanction or does not emanate from supreme authority, and in comparatively recent years they exercise their restrictive prerogative more jealously than ever. While not undertaking to weigh the philatelic merits, if any, of the stamps that have been described, we say that as the stamps, in their aspect of peculiar use, were not inspired by Washington, but on the contrary, repudiated so far as the manner of employment at Detroit was involved, cataloguers feel justified in rejecting them as distinctive issues, even though they may not care to combat that theoretically, the stamps have some claim to philatelic attention, and may admit that the postal enterprise born of emergency on the part of the Detroit authorities was wholly thoughtless of philatelic consequence.

C. H. M.:—The spelling "banu" instead of "bani" on the 1½b, type A13 of Roumania, is the regulation one, notwithstanding that the word is "bani" on subsequent types, 1½b of Roumania.

As we suspected, our original informant regarding the restrictive regulations governing R. R. B., or railroad mail, is able to prove that his position was wholly tenable, notwithstanding that the evidence submitted by several correspondents in rebuttal seemed to make it somewhat uncertain. Our railroad friend of high standing and many years' experience, gives us the following printed information: "Railroad mail.—Under the United States Postal Laws and Regulations, train mail must not be carried in the baggage car without prepayment of postage, except in the following cases: Mail matter from one officer or employe of this company upon its lines addressed to another officer or employe of, and upon the lines of same, pertaining strictly to the business of this company. Mail matter from an officer or employe of this company upon its lines addressed to an officer or employe of and upon a connecting line of railway, and pertaining strictly to business in which this company and the connecting railway have a direct interest. Every such package must be plainly marked 'Joint Business.'" The foregoing are some of the rules which "must be strictly observed, as any violation of U. S. Postal Laws will subject this company, as well as the employe violating the laws, to a severe penalty." It is seen what the railroad companies and their employes are enjoined to do, under the postal laws, any violation of which may not be cited as proving a proper custom.

COLUMBUS MEANS BUSINESS.

At the meeting of the Columbus Collectors Club Wednesday, March 27, it was voted to present Columbus as a candidate for the seat of the 1908 convention of the American Philatelic Association. C. B. Duffy will attend, to present its claims, while a committee consisting of H. S. Adair, Paul Mason and Geo. W. Linn have been appointed as a campaign committee.

At this meeting Henry L. Fleek exhibited his collection of Barbados and Bermuda. The stamps of France will be shown at the next meeting.

MORE 2c ENVELOPE RETOUCHES.

By Louis G. Barrett.

Type ~~103~~. (Size 5 on W.)

(a) The outer white border-line at left of lower ribbon is split into two hair-lines for some distance opposite the end of ribbon.
(b) T of TWO is low, almost touching lower line of ribbon.
(c) There is a large blunt tooth under right shade-lines.
(d) Right half of left swallow-tail has been badly mutilated, showing ragged outlines.

Earliest date seen, Feb. 17, 1907.

Type 110. (Size 5 on W.)

(a) The final S of STATES is nearly vertical.
(b) G of POSTAGE is nearly closed and the E is heavy and close to lower line of ribbon.
(c) The 7 and 2 of 1732 are above the line of the other figures.
(d) CE in CENTS are low and the S has a double lined top.
(e) D of UNITED leans back towards the E and the N is low.
(f) The T of TWO shows the new stem recut over the old one.

Earliest date seen, Feb. 4, 1907.

Type 111. (Size 5 on W, A, BL.)

(a) The letters in STATES are very irregular in position and alignment, both T's being low down and the second one also leaning back towards the A. The E has a line extending upward from the end of the base line to the end of the middle bar, as in the E of UNITED in Type 83.
(b) G of WASHINGTON is high up and the T is far from the O and leans back towards the G.
(c) Two teeth under W of TWO and over AT of STATES touch outer lines of ribbons.
(d) W of TWO tips over backwards towards the T.
(e) Both halves of right swallow-tail are much heavier than the halves of left swallow-tail.

Earliest date seen, Feb. 1, 1907.

Type 112. (Size 14 on W.) (Size 4 on W.)

(a) This has the additional tooth cut opposite left large numeral 2 as in Type 96, but in addition has a double tooth for the first one down on right side. There are other differences, but the features mentioned, together with the odd Sizes 14 and 4 are enough to identify this variety conclusively.

Earliest date seen, Feb. 23, 1907.

Type 113. (Size 9 on W.)

(a) The right hand side of the right half of left swallow-tail is composed of two curved lines crossing each other at the second wave opposite the chin of bust.
(b) The right half of right swallow-tail has a curved line extending upwards in place of the lowest of the three shade-lines usually found in the swallow-tails.
(c) The shade-lines at both ends of lower ribbon are mere hair-lines, very close together and close to ends of ribbon.

Earliest date seen, Feb. 18, 1907.

Type 114. (Size 13 on W, A.)

(a) There is a small additional tooth cut between the third and fourth teeth down at left, directly opposite the top of I of UNITED. There should be 21 teeth on the left side including the one in the lower left corner opposite the angle in the ribbon, but in this type as in Types 96 and 112 there are 22, only this type differs from these latter in having the extra tooth added between two others instead of on the end of the line.
(b) The lobes at left end are large and round, the upper one being close down upon the lower one.
(c) The N of CENTS is very low, nearly touching the lower line of ribbon.
(d) The shade-lines at right end of lower ribbon are long and slant slightly to the right, the one on the extreme right extending up into upper line of ribbon.

Earliest date seen, Feb. 15, 1907.

Type 115. (Size 8 on W.)

(a) This type may be easily found by its coming on the large size 8 and by the fact that the line defining the second fold of the upper ribbon to the right of the U of UNITED, has been extended to the left through the middle of the U and on through the border lines, cutting the serrated border between the 6th and 7th teeth down at left.
(b) A high in WASHINGTON.

Earliest date seen, Feb. 27, 1907.

Type ~~118~~. (Size 2 on W.)

(a) The line forming left hand side of left swallow-tail crosses the end line of ribbon as in Type 65, but the end line of ribbon slants downwards instead of up as in that type.
(b) The second T of STATES touches the back of E.
(c) The 1 of 1799 is heavy.
(d) The lobes at left end of lower ribbon are small and rounded.
(e) A high in WASHINGTON.

Earliest date seen, ~~Feb. 14~~, 1907.

Type ~~117~~. (Size 5 on W, A, BU.)

(a) The first tooth down at left is much larger than the others.
(b) 7 of 1732 is close to the 3 and 1 of 1799 is tall.
(c) N of UNITED and N of CENTS are both small.
(d) Shade-lines at left end of lower ribbon are curved, convex side towards the T of TWO, which is tall as in several other types.

Earliest date seen, ~~Feb.~~ 2, 1907.

This type seems to be a composite having several characteristics common to other types as follows:—

(a) There is a double tooth over the large right numeral 2 as in Types 40, 74 and 87.
(b) The 2 of 1732 tips backwards as in Types 46 and 66.
(c) CE of CENTS are low as in Types 47, 61, 88 and 97.
(d) I of WASHINGTON is low as in Types 15 and 71.
(e) N of CENTS leans towards the T.
Earliest date seen, Feb. 25, 1907.

Type 119. (Size 5 on W, BL.)

(a) There is a double tooth over first S of STATES.
(b) Right half of left swallow-tail is thick and points towards A of WASHINGTON.
(c) Right half of right swallow-tail is considerably longer than the left half.
(d) W of TWO tips backwards towards the T.
(e) Both lobes at right end of lower ribbon are nearly horizontal and are widely separated.
(f) First shade-line at left end of lower ribbon leans to the left and extends upward into upper line of ribbon; the other two lines are short.
Earliest date seen, March 1, 1907.

Type 120. (Size 9 on W, A only.)

(a) The I of WASHINGTON leans sharply towards the N.
(b) 7 of 1799 is tall and thin.
(c) The left half of left swallow-tail is thinner than right half.
Earliest date seen, Feb. 21, 1907.

Type 121. (Size 7 on W, BL.)

(a) Lower lobe at right end of lower ribbon is large and slants upward slightly.
(b) I of WASHINGTON is high as in Type 82.
(c) There is a spur directly under the O of TWO extending into the ribbon from its lower border line.
(d) The first shade-line at right end of lower ribbon extends upwards into upper line of ribbon.
(e) The cross-stroke of the large numeral 2 in upper left corner is horizontal for a portion of its length, thus leaving more space between it and the base of the numeral than is usually the case.
Earliest date seen, Feb. 16, 1907.

(a) The left end of lower ribbon is concave towards the saw-tooth border and the lower left corner is sharp.
(b) The outer border-line at the right of large numeral 2 in upper right corner is very heavy.
(c) W of TWO is low and leans back, while the E of CENTS leans forward.
(d) G of POSTAGE has no cross-bar.
(e) The bust of Washington shows a square-ended nose.
Earliest date seen, Feb. 15, 1907.

Type 123. (Size 13 on W.)

(a) Both halves of the left swallow-tail are long and slender and the shade-lines in left half are high up at point of division.
(b) Lobes at left end of lower ribbon are small and round and widely separated.
(c) The second T of STATES leans back towards the A; the base of T and first stroke of A in POSTAGE touch; the top of T and first stroke of W of TWO touch.
(d) Reverse folds of upper ribbon to the right of U of UNITED are very small.
Earliest date seen, Feb. 9, 1907.

39-a Type 124. (Size 5 on W.)

(a) There is an additional tooth cut on left hand side opposite the centre of large numeral 2.
(b) The second or down-stroke of A of STATES runs into lower line of ribbon as in Types 39 and 54.
(c) Final S of STATES is small.
(d) Upper line of upper ribbon is heavy, extending from a point above the E of STATES to a point above O of POSTAGE.
(e) The head of left large numeral 2 is narrow as compared to the width of base; and the base is heavy at the intersection of down-stroke.
Earliest date seen, Feb. 1, 1907.

Type 125. (Size 5 on W.)

(a) ED of UNITED are far apart.
(b) The first tooth down at left is curved upwards and has a double point.
(c) There are four shade-lines at left end of lower ribbon.
(d) There is a small cap on the upper line of lower ribbon directly over the T of TWO and under the 7 of 1732.
(e) E of CENTS is high, nearly touching upper line of ribbon and both C and E lean forwards.
(f) The teeth at the left of lower ribbon have a small line cut between them.
Earliest date seen, Feb. 20, 1907.

Type 126. (Size 5 on W, A, BU.)

(a) The curved border-line outside the left large numeral 2 which connects the top and side rows of teeth, overlaps the first tooth from the left in the top row.
(b) N of CENTS is small.
(c) E of STATES is high and close to second T.
(d) S of CENTS has the double-lined top as in Types 102 and 110. This feature and the double-topped T of STATES in Type 89 clearly show the results of re-touching, for the lighter lines are the remains of the nearly worn out letters of the old dies over which the heavier new letters have been cut.
Earliest date seen, ~~March 8~~, 1907.

Type 127. (Size 13 on W.

(a) The fifth tooth down on right breaks out into colored border-line at an angle.
(b) The shade-lines at left end of lower ribbon appear as a blur to the naked eye, but with a glass it is seen that the apparent jumble is caused by the three new shade-lines being cut over the remains of the old ones, and not coinciding with them.
(c) H of WASHINGTON is large.
(d) The right half of left swallow-tail ends in a curve pointing to the front end of bust.
(e) The right half of right swallow-tail is longer and broader than the left half.
Earliest date seen, March 4, 1907.

Type 128. (Size 13 on W, BL.)

(a) The serrated border, especially at top and right side show many evidences of the re-touching, where the old teeth partly show between the newer ones. Note the 3d, 4th and 5th teeth at top counting from the left, where this may be seen clearly.
(b) Both ends of lower ribbon are concave and shade-lines at right end are vertical.
(c) There is a slanting line connecting the base of the tooth under T of TWO with the white border-line below it.
(d) I of UNITED parallel with the stem of T.
Earliest date seen, Feb. 26, 1907.

Type 129. (Size 13 on W, A, BU.)

(a) The whole word STATES is low down in ribbon.
(b) There are two double teeth in the lower row under E and N of CENTS.
(c) The lobes at left end of lower ribbon are thin and both slant upwards sharply.
(d) The second fold at right end of upper ribbon is wide opposite E of POSTAGE.
(e) T of TWO is tall and has but a short top bar.
Earliest date seen, March 2, 1907.

Type 130. (Size 5 on W, A.)

(a) The right swallow-tail and reverse-fold are not shaded.
(b) The reverse-fold of upper ribbon at right of U of UNITED is large as in Types 47 and 49; while the reverse folds at right end are small.
(c) First tooth down at left is double pointed.
(d) G of WASHINGTON is high.
(e) Chin of bust thrust forwards.
(f) The right end of lower ribbon is vertical, and the shade-lines at this end are long, close together and slant slightly towards the right.
Earliest date seen, Feb. 24, 1907.

Type ~~131~~ (Size 5 on W.)

(a) The left swallow-tail is in a badly patched condition due to carelessness in the re-cutting; the left side near the end line of ribbon and the right side near the point are a botch, while the left half has a split point.
(b) TA of STATES close.
(c) Right end of lower ribbon much rounded, with shade-lines short and near upper line of ribbon.
(d) C of CENTS leans towards the E.
(e) 1 of 1799 high.
Earliest date seen, March 9, 1907.

Type 132. (Size 5 on W.)

(a) The reverse folds at both ends of upper ribbon are small and have but one shade-line in them.
(b) G of POSTAGE is cut in such a bad way over the old one that parts of the old letter show alongside, giving it the appearance of O of TWO is small and low.
(c) A of WASHINGTON high as in Type 72.
(d) Lower lobe at right is small and slants up.
Earliest date seen, March 5, 1907.

Just as I am closing this article, the information comes to hand that on March 14th, bids were opned by the Postmaster-General for furnishing the stamped envelopes and wrappers for the four years following July 1st, 1907.

The lowest bidder, the Mercantile Corporation of New York, was awarded the contract, having under bid the present contractors, the Hartford Manufacturing Co., by a considerable sum.

It is to be hoped that this change in contractors will put an end to the present long list of varieties of the current issue.

EDITORIAL.

Fewer Stamps Then—There was a time when the advent of a new stamp or the discovery of a variety was hailed with enthusiastic accord by philatelists. Then, any increase in the number of specimens available for collecting purposes was welcomed impressively. In the old days, each stamp received what may be called a concentration of attention that made it stand forth prominently in the mind of the collector; nowadays, the single specimen may not claim so strong favor, as there are so many worthy stamps to share the recognition of the philatelist. Forty years ago, for instance, the emission of new stamps by the comparatively few stamp-issuing countries of the time was a fascinating occasion; and the chronicling of novelties in detailed way was an important duty of the stamp papers of the day. In fact, the idea of recording the appearance of newcomers was a dominant one, and a publication that was the first to announce a new issue or a collectible variety of an old one could well pride itself upon its enterprise. In those days, the desire to augment the number of stamps for collecting purposes was keenly felt; evidence of this is indicated in a perusal of the old stamp journals. As time progressed, the eagerness to expand the collecting field abated insensibly; and even so early as in the late seventies, there were expressions to the effect that the numerous issues of new stamps and multiplication of varieties of old ones were greatly complicating the study of philately.

Old Story Now—The collector, today, who looks with even emotion on a new picture or commemorative set of striking design is quite the antithesis of the collector who glowingly lingered upon the beauty and novelty, say of the bi-colored stamps of Guatemala, 1879, design of quetzal. When there was a paucity of stamps of unconventional design, the appearance of stamps of the kind just referred to made a profound impression. Every addition to the collecting aggregate was desirable and the aim was to extend the list of stamps; any increase was acceptable and when it came in pleasing guisè, it was all the more welcome. The collector whose affiliation with philately is of many years' standing will never forget the feelings with which he saw issues, such as the Spain 1875, King Alphonso, Salvador, 1879, etc., for the first time. The thought then was to enlarge the available supply of stamps; now, in the minds of some, it is to restrict it. Yet, there are more friends to new issues today than there were in the past, it is safe to say. This simply is due to the great numeral increase in the number of collectors, latterly.

A Beginning—In Europe, in 1865, the idea of the multiplication of varieties by considering watermark, paper and perforation differences was broached. A French student and writer founded the "French" or advanced school advocating the collectibility of the varieties of the kind that previously had been ignored. Though there was much controversy at the time, and subsequently, as to the advisability of multiplying varieties in the manner indicated, yet there were adherents of the new plan from the outset, throughout the collecting world. In time, the recognition of the propriety and legitimacy of the differences as collectible varieties prevailed; and so, the increase in varieties of known stamps proceeded with that in the number of newly issued. In this connection, it may be said that the students of stamps in the pioneer days of philately was every whit as able as, and perhaps more entitled to credit than, the authority of today. The acumen and philatelic omniscience of some of the leaders of philatelic thought in the sixties, in the light of the present, is deserving of wondering admiration.

Oranges of 1899—The foregoing observations are preliminary, in a loose way, to the analysis of a possible variety that has been shown us by a reader. It may be remembered by some of our readers that the WEEKLY in 1899 discovered the two-cent stamped envelope of the issue current in that year, in an orange color, instead of carmine. The variety came to the notice of the paper in a way to convince that manipulation had not changed the original color of the envelope. Yet, it was not allowable to proceed on supposition, no matter how sound it seemed to be, and before the discovery of the variety was announced it was submitted to tests of different kinds by a chemist, who chanced to be a collector; and a copy was sent to the third assistant postmaster-general at Washington by the WEEKLY with the request that explanation be made, if possible, to account for the color variety. In due course, the sample envelope that was submitted to the authorities was returned with the information that there was no record of the envelope in orange color and that in consequence, the color may have been attained through chemical means. As if to loan point to the surmise, the envelope that the WEEKLY had sent was returned with half the colored impression in orange and the other half, which had been subjected to some chemical agent, in a lighter and redder orange. This alteration proved nothing, of course, and evidence enough was at hand by that time to justify the proclamation of the orange two-cent, 1899 envelopes as genuine varieties. There was on our part, a natural and reasonable reluctance to recognize the varieties that excited suspicion of chemical manipulation at first glance; and this feeling was shared by cataloguers for a time, but in the end the orange envelopes were granted their rights.

Possible Crop—Now, the current two-cent stamped envelope in orange on white is shown by D. T. Eaton, Muscatine, Iowa, who, in his most recent letter to us on the subject, writes: "Your letter was received this morning, and is of so much interest that I am enclosing you two of the five envelopes which is supposed to be all there are of them. One of the envelopes is on creamy white and the other on white. The creamy white is the one that you suggested might have been changed chemically. I wish that you would examine the paper of each very closely and see if you think that either has been through any kind of chemical process. I am not a chemist, but I have tried the fumes of sulphur which Mr. Toppan said might produce the change but in every case it has the opposite effect. Mr. Lord of Minneapolis spent yesterday with me and said that he had consulted one of the best chemists in Minneapolis who said that these changes could not be produced without injuring the texture of the paper so that any one could tell at a glance that they had been tampered with. Furthermore, the fact that Mr. Berthold had found two copies on size 8, in the Boston office, the color and paper identical with these, to me seems good evidence in favor of the stamped envelopes, enclosed in orange." It should be added that Mr. Eaton's envelopes are on size 5, and came from an office in or a person on one of the Hawaiians.

* * *

Chemically Speaking—We shall be able to say something further on the subject of these orange envelopes in a subsequent issue; but it is only fair to say in the words of Dr. Kalckhoff, in the interim: "In the case of carmine and rose, the change leads generally to brown or gray, also to orange and yellow. * * * But here the chemist need not be made responsible for light, air and moisture are the worst enemies of organic colors to which carmine belongs; all these adversaries join hands oftenest in the storage rooms of old writings. Then, too, there often joins them still another associate, unpleasant to the senses, sulphuretted hydrogen." Etc. In the case of the 1899 orange envelopes there were a number of adventitious circumstances that helped to establish the authenticity of the stamps, and it is possible that the envelopes under scrutiny will likewise be favored.

$5,500,000 POSTAL CONTRACT.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—The Postmaster-General has awarded a contract for furnishing stamped envelopes and newspaper wrappers for a term of four years from July 1, 1907, to the Mercantile Corporation of New York, the lowest responsible bidder. Bids were opened on March 14, there being two competitors, as follows: Hartford Manufacturing Company, $5,887,635; the Mercantile Corporation, $5,525,386.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centres. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—At the meeting of the Chicago Philatelic Society held April 4th, the entertainment was in the nature of a guessing contest for prizes. The members were asked to name the countries on one or more stamps of which, each of the ten words, as follows, appeared: Chorrillos (Peru); Sic (New South Wales); May (New Republic); Damus (British Guiana); Times (Fiji); Napoletana (Two Sicilies); Predece (Roumania); Multada (Chile); Pax (St. Vincent) and Palazzo (San Marino). Only a half-minute was allowed for each name; and the highest marking was 50, achieved by H. A. Fowler.

—The American Journal of Philately has suspended publication. The December number just at hand contains an announcement from its publishers stating that this step has been decided upon because of inability to give the Journal the attention that it needs and lack of interest in the literary field that has been cultivated. We regret very much that we are compelled to make this announcement. For many years the Journal has been a welcome visitor and its passing will remove another of our American philatelic publications which are at the present time altogether too few. The publishers expect that the Monthly Circular will offer a satisfactory means of keeping thoroughly in touch with their customers which renders the publication of the Journal all the more unnecessary.

—F. N. Massoth, manager of the United States Stamp Company, Chicago, is about to make his annual trip down the Tennessee River, taking the boat at St. Louis. He will be gone about two weeks; and during the time, the office will be under the competent management of Mrs. Beard.

—Julian Park, 510 Delaware Av., Buffalo, N. Y., will be glad to send any one his recently published essay on Esperanto. The WEEKLY has seen the leaflet and commends it to its readers.

—Howard Speakmann, Chicago, when on his trip east carried with him, his superb twentieth century collection for exhibition to those who wished to see his stamps. Mr. Speakman wishes to acknowledge the many courtesies that he received at the hands of philatelists in Boston and New York City in particular.

—Receipt of clippings is acknowledge with thanks from John A. Solomon (3), Wm. L. Hamilton, Jr., W. C. Stone, E. F. Chalfant and Paul Mason.

—The catalog of the "Century Sale" of the United Stamp Co. lists a fine lot of Great Britain and colonies from the William Thiessen collection. The sale will be held April 23.

Monster Free Offer!

(Positively only given to those who have not wrote us before, or whose names are not on our mailing list, or we will give any one of these offers with an order of $2, or more from this ad., whether you are a new customer or not.)

To protect us from those who write for the premium only, and to make sure you mean business, we make the following terms. (These stamps cost us good money, and our offer is very liberal.)

ANY ONE OF THESE FREE, IF YOU AGREE TO MAKE A PURCHASE OF AT LEAST 50c FROM OUR BARGAIN BULLETIN ON RECEIPT. You get stamps at the very lowest prices from our list, and the premium is free. Our Bulletin offers hundreds of first class stamps at one-fourth and one-third cat. It saves money.

Persia 1902, 5c on 10c, No. 188, red surcharge ..... Cat. $1.00

Costa Rica 1881, 5c on ½r, No. 13 a good stamp ..... Cat. $1.00

Cundinmarca 1904, 50c violet, No 41, (Col. Rep.) Cat. $1.00

Suriname 1898, 10c on 25c, not common ..... Cat. $1.00

We want the name of every WEEKLY reader on our list, because if you take the WEEKLY you must buy stamps. If you buy stamps you simply miss it, if you don't have our Bargain lists as issued many times a year. Sooner or later there is going to be something on our Bulletin, that you need, at a money saving price, no matter how good a collection you have. Don't be penny wise and pound foolish. Write us to-day.

Just look over our little list of offers below. There is quality there. See how many of these stamps you have seen floating around on ordinary app. lots. Many low priced stamps are almost impossible to get, and wont always stay low priced.

We can't sell you gold dollars for 50c. Our offer is liberal.

SCARCE CHEAP STAMPS.

Many of these stamps are the kind though low in price you find it very hard to get.

—To aid the interests of stamp collecting in Newton, Mass., Geo. B. Forristall contributes an article "Philately" to the local high school magazine.

—A New York state newspaper is responsible for the following example of near wit:

"Any stamps?" she asked as she entered the drug store.

"Yes, ma'am," replied the proprietor.

"Let me have a 2-cent stamp, please."

"Got a prescription? It's Sunday and we can't sell you a stamp without a prescription, ma'am."

—Very recently a deputation representing 200 members of the House of Commons who are agitating the establishment of a 2c postal rate with America waited upon Chancellor of the Exchequer Asquith. The Chancellor stated that there was no intention that the United States was in favor of such a proposition and while he promised to bear this in mind he refrained from making any pledge.

—In a letter recently received from S. V. Saxby, the well known dealer of Rockford, Ill., who has just retired from active business, he writes: "On account of my eyes failing me I was forced to stop business which was a very successful one and I give MEKEEL'S WEEKLY the credit for it. United States stamps will still be my hobby and I shall try to do my best for philately in general as a mere collector." Many of our subscribers will voice the regrets of the WEEKLY that the step taken by Mr. Saxby has been rendered necessary.

—On April 17 Lyman H. Low will sell a lot of U. S. coins, fractional currency, Confederate notes and various other coins and medals at public auction at 14 E. 23 St., N. Y. City. They are the properties of various parties.

—"Wholesale Price-list No. 5," is the title of a 32 page list just at hand from the Toledo Stamp Co. It prices a large number of U. S. and foreign stamps, single specimens and sets while packets and other philatelic accessories come in for proper treatment. A cover page shows pictures of the manager, Mr. Stewart, and the mailing department.

—The chairman of the Swedish Society has received the acceptance of H. R. H. the Prince of Wales of honorary membership of the Society.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES.

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Any information regarding new issues will be gratefully received and acknowledged. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. The figures in parentheses refer to the previous number of the WEEKLY in which the same country was noticed

UNITED STATES.—E. D. S. has shown us the new "Officially Sealed" stamp, the familiar "Liberty Head" stamp being printed in a new color.

Officially Sealed Adhesive.

No value, ultramarine.

John A. Solomon has shown us a Cleveland, O., 1c, 1902, precancelled, double invert.

AUSTRALIAN COMMONWEALTH.—Ewen's Weekly Stamp News chronicles the ½d postage due stamp on Crown A paper, perf. 12x11.

Postage Due Adhesive.

½d green.

BRITISH GUIANA.—Ewen reports that the 60c has appeared on chalky multiple paper. The new 2c is in carmine and not red as stated in No. 844.

CANAL ZONE.—Regarding the new 2c Panama, without surcharge, H. Leonard writes: "The stamp in question is of no value for domestic postage (that is, is not necessary); but the fact is apparently overlooked that an agreement between the United States and the Republic of Panama allows a two cent gold rate from the Republic to the Canal Zone or United States, or vice versa.

"I am aware that it is very difficult to obtain any information from the Pan American authorities; no more so, however, than it is from the Canal Zone postal authorities. Apparently the only way to obtain satisfactory information is to purchase the stamps over the country. The 25c and 50c de Balboas have not yet received the Canal Zone overprint, and it is not certain whether they will be used in the Zone."

Mr. Leonard further writes:

"It is very gratifying to see the prices obtained for Canal Zone stamps at the Thorne sale. I have in my collection five of the 2c June, 1904, two of them with inverted surcharge, Panama reading down. One of the others has Panama reading up and down and another Panama reading up on both sides.

"Of the 5c I have three used on part of the original cover, and several unused. Only one of the used copies however shows the date, viz.: July 18, 1904, a day after these stamps were said to have been withdrawn. Of the 10c I have four unused, two of them with inverted surcharge.

"The greatest difficulty is to retain the stamps with original gum. Most of my unused stamps have lost this necessary item, owing to climatic conditions. All of my unused stamps, however, I purchased at the Cristobal postoffice in June, 1904, which at that time was in charge of a colored postmaster, who, as has been stated in Mr. Toppan's 'Stamps of the Canal Zone,' was instructed not to sell more than a dollar's worth to any one person."

COLOMBIA.—Gibbons' Monthly reports several old designs reprinted in new colors. These are Scott's Types A75, A76, A77, A78 and A80. All are imperforate but the 1 peso value, and that is found both perforated and imperforate.

Adhesives.

2c light carmine.
5c orange brown.
10c orange.
20c blue on rose.
1p purple.

Registration Adhesive.

20c deep brown.

Antioquia—Gibbons' Monthly reports the 1c issued in change of color, perforated 12.

Adhesive.

1c blue (formerly rose).

Bolivar—Gibbons' Monthly reports several novelties from this state.

Adhesives.

50c purple on white wove paper (new color and paper).
10p blue on blue laid paper (new paper).

Too Late Adhesive.

20c deep violet on yellow or on pale rose.

A. R. Adhesive.

20c orange and rose.

DENMARK.—Stanley Gibbons, Inc., have shown us the 5 ore with portrait of King Frederick. The 10 ore, 20 ore, 50 ore and 100 ore have been previously chronicled.

Adhesive.

5 ore green.

GOLD COAST.—Stanley Gibbons, Inc., have shown us the 2½d on chalky multiple paper. This makes the set on this paper consist of the ½, 1, 2, 2½, 3 and 6d.

NETHERLANDS.—Hermann Focke and the Home Stamp Co. have shown us used and unused copies of the new commemorative set just issued by the Dutch postal authorities. They were issued in commemoration of the 300th anniversary of the birth of the famous Admiral M. A. de Ruyter, who was born in 1607. He rose from the position of a ship's mate to the high office of an admiral of the Dutch navy, and as such defeated the superior naval force of the combined fleets of England and France, and won a signal victory over the English fleet, under Admiral Ascue, in a battle off Plymouth in 1652. His victories saved the United Netherlands. Since the days of William the Conqueror, he was the only foreign warrior who ever penetrated into England. He sailed up the Thames to the neighborhood of London, whipping the English Admiral's ship and bringing it to Holland. The new stamps are good for inland postage only; were issued March 23, and will be withdrawn in May.

W. F. GREGORY, 65 NASSAU ST., NEW YORK.

The stamps are very crudely engraved, the shape being a horizontal oblong 21x28mm. There is only one design, a portrait of de Ruyter appearing at the left, with "1607—1907" above and at the right a curious engraving of a naval battle with "Nederland" in a curved line above, with the value "½ ct." just below in very small type. On a ribbon running across the stamp at the bottom is "M. A. de Ruyter" in large caps, being the most prominent inscription on the design. The stamps are perforated 12. It would be interesting to know whether this new move of the Netherlands indicates that other commemorative series are to be issued, — possibly to commemorate the achievements of Admirals Tromp or de Witte.

Commemorative Adhesives.

We have also been shown the above set by Stanley Gibbons, Inc., and Otto Weismann.

PERU.— Prof. M. Loewy has shown us copies of the two provisionals noted last week, and Hermann Focke has also shown us the "Un Centavo" on 12c. Evidently the 1c and 2c values ran low while waiting for the new set. However, the provisionals are well printed, and not by rubber stamps. We omitted to say last week that both surcharges were printed diagonally, running from lower left to upper right.

Secretary reports that the Bellows collection of Mexico is being remounted and will be ready for exhibition at the next meeting on the 17th of March. All collectors are invited to attend that meeting and inspect the grandest collection of its kind. In view of our last competition, which was very successful, the Exhibition Committee announces a competitive exhibition of the postage stamps of TUNIS on May the first. An appropriate paper will be read on that occasion.

MISSIONARY STAMPS.

Old Stamps are solicited by Religious Missions and Charitable Associations in France, Switzerland, Belgium, Germany and other parts of the world. This means of collecting supplies of cancelled postage stamps has grown during the past twenty years to enormous proportions.

Charitable people in all parts of the civilized world are saving stamps from current correspondence and from old letters, and shipping their accumulations to the depositories assigned to receive them. This work of accumulation is going on in countries and colonies all over the world.

The proceeds from the sale of these stores of stamps are devoted to charity, educational and missionary work.

The people collecting these stamps know and care nothing about their value. Stamps collected in Holland are quite likely to have Transvaals, Capes and Dutch colonies. Belgium mixtures include scattering stamps of Congo Free State. Great Britain mixtures have officials and colonials, etc., etc.

The magnitude of this collection may be conceived when a lot of 500 Tons is offered.

CHEAP STAMPS CHEAP!

I have a stock of stamps consigned by Missions in Belgium, Holland, France and Switzerland. These include lots collected in Italy, Austria, Gt. Britain and other countries (U. S. and Canada excluded as far as possible).

These stocks from various sources have been mixed together so that every lot of

Some have found between 400 and 500 varieties in a single 1000! Some have found single stamps worth the price of the lot, but I cannot guarantee anything like that it is obvious.

This is an unpicked mixture, and I have thousands of testimonials from parties who were pleased, and the chance of good things is fair for all. In any case, the stamps are worth the money.

ARE YOU GOING TO DENVER?

As the time for appointing the Committee on Credentials is not far distant the President would request those members who are planning to be at the convention to notify him by postal card in order that he may know from whom he can select members of that committee. The Denver committee are also desirous of knowing how many to expect in order to perfect their plans for entertainment. Kindly attend to this as soon as possible. [53

SCRANTON PHILATELIC SOCIETY, BRANCH No. 19, A. P. A.

The second regular meeting of the Scranton Philatelic Society was held in the Society's room, Y. M. C. A. building, Scranton, Pa., Tuesday evening, March 26, with President Kjellstedt in the Chair. Several important propositions were put before the Society, which were discussed and a decision reached to pass upon them at the meeting in April.

In behalf of the Philatelic Society of Sweden, President Kjellstedt presented the Scranton Society with a number of Philatelic publications. These made a valuable addition to the Society's rapidly growing library which necessitated the appointment by the President, of O. E. Lancaster as librarian.

After the business meeting, stamps to the value of several thousand dollars were displayed.

C. EVERETT LANCASTER, Sec'y.

A. YAREMDJI,

40-41, Tidjaret Han, CONSTANTINOPLE, TURKEY.

Established 1875. (VIA LONDON.)

Member of the American Philatelic Association, Canadian Philatelic Society (Montreal), International Philatelic Union, London; Junior Philatelic Society, London; Birmingham Philatelic Society, Birmingham; Scottish Philatelic Society, Glasgow, of Philatelic Societies of Berlin, Dresden, Vienna, Paris, etc., etc.

Recommends to American collectors his immense stock of used and unused stamps of Turkey, of Foreign Offices in Turkey, of Bosnia, Bulgaria, Cyprus, Crete, Egypt, Eritrea, Gibraltar, Greece, Malta, Montenegro, Persia, Roumania, Roumelia, Russia, Servia and Tunis.

Forwards selections of single stamps and in blocks etc., arrayed in order of issue, on list of wants from catalogues, Scott, Stanley Gibbons, Senf, etc., to all collectors who apply for same, adding their references.

Possesses all kinds of used and unused curiosities, such as errors in colours, inverted surcharges and imperforate stamps; bi-sected stamps which were used for the half of their values, etc., etc. Of all above mentioned countries, selections are sent on application. Amateurs will be accommodated with selections also.

At the request of the presidents of American Philatelic Societies Mr. Yaremdji arranges nice selections of used or unused stamps, according to desire, of Turkey and all Oriental countries for the purpose of being put in circulation among their members.

Against a stamp of 2 cents for postage our General Catalogue is sent to collectors.

Dealers receive gratis and post free the Wholesale List of all Oriental Stamps, used and unused, for stamps by 10, 100, 1000 and 10,000 pieces.

Any Philatelist who desires a reliable and solid firm in the Orient should apply to

NEW YORK, April 6, 1907.

To Members of the U. S. R. S.:

I am in receipt of a letter from Sales Supt. that members are not sending in many sheets for the circuit and asking me to urge upon you the necessity of doing so. There are now over 100 members and Mr. Tuttle has so far only received enough sheets for four circuits. Mount up your duplicate M. & M.'s or good Revenues, mark prices as low as you care to sell and turn them into money. Then spend this money on stamps out of the circuit for your collection and you will then be deriving the benefits the Society was promoted for. Get together! Get busy!!!

A FEW NOTES ON U. S. TAX PAIDS.

By J. D. BARTLETT.

The collecting of U. S. Tax Paid stamps is becoming more popular as the days go by and well it might, for they make a very interesting field for study and the philatelic scribes seem to have neglected them almost entirely.

A few years ago it was almost impossible to find a collector of them, but today there is little trouble in finding those interested both in this country and abroad.

I will endeavor to give a general outline of some of the tax paid issues which are the most common.

Beer Stamps.

Stamps for use on beer kegs were first issued in 1866, and were for seven different size kegs—⅛, 1-6, ¼, ⅓, ½, 1bbl. and for 1hhd. There has been 11 different issues not considering the different varieties of paper used, and the same order of sizes have been maintained throughout.

Cigar Stamps.

Two sets of stamps of six varieties each were issued for use of the inspector in 1864. Two of these were surcharged in 1865, and six new stamps issued. Also a set of 5 stamps were issued in each of the following years for the inspector, 1866 and 1867.

In 1868 the regular cigar stamps were first issued as tax paid stamps, and consisted of 5 stamps in the set, 25, 50, 100, 250 and 500 cigars. In 1879 the 200 was first issued. In 1891 the 12 and 13 made their appearance. By act of July 24, 1897, stamps for cigars were divided into sets. One set being for large cigars and another set for small cigars. The first issue for small cigars were surcharged on stamps for cigarettes of 1883 and 1893, and consisted of 4 sizes, 10, 20, 50 and 100 cigars.

Cigarette Stamps.

First issue appeared in 1868 for a package of 500 cigarettes, several stamps of the size 500 were issued during the years 1868 and 1878, while in 1879 the act of congress brought in existence four new sizes and did away with the old size, 10, 20, 50 and 100 cigarettes. These sizes have remained in use until date. In 1891 there were two taxes made for cigarettes and four new stamps were issued in green under tax of $3.00 per 1,000, and are what is known as for large cigarettes, sizes being the same as for the smaller. In 1901 there was another division made in the smaller cigarettes and a new set of four sizes were issued for the cheaper cigarettes. The rate of taxes in 1902 were as follows: For cigarettes weighing less than 3lbs. per 1,000, 54c per 1,000. For cigarettes weighing over 3lbs. per 1,000, $1.08 per 1000. For large cigarettes $3.00 per 1,000.

Tobacco Stamps

Were first issued under two rates of tax. Tax 16c per pound being for tobacco without stems, or in other words smoking tobacco, and stamps were prepared in 1868 for packages of 2, 4, 8 and 16 ozs. Tax 32c per pound being for tobacco with stems or for chewing tobacco. There were issued in the same year for packages of ½, 1, 2, 4, 6, 8 and 16ozs. and for ½, 1, 2, 3, 5, 10, 20, 21, 40, 50, 60 and 100 pounds. In 1870, two stamps, one for 15 pounds with nine coupons, and one for 22 pounds without coupons, were issued.

In 1873 the rate of tax was made uniform on all tobacco and changed to 20c per pound and a set was issued the same as given above for the Class 32c, except the ½ and 6oz., also the 50 and 100 pound stamps were dropped. In Dec., 1877, coupons (9) were added to the 60lb. stamp. In March, 1878, coupons (9) were added to the 10, 20 and 40lb. stamps. Also in 1878 new sizes were added as follows: 4lb. without coupons 30 and 50lb. with 9 coupons each. A 3oz. stamp was added to the set in 1879 and the 15, 21 and 22lb. stamps were dropped. In 1892 coupons were added to the 5lb. stamp and in 1898, under the Spanish war tax, new sizes of 1⅔, 2½ and 3½ oz. were added to the set and the 2, 3 and 4oz. were dropped, but in 1901 these three sizes were re-established, also a 1oz. with 15 coupons was issued.

Snuff Stamps.

Stamps for snuff follow very closely the tobacco stamps with the exception that the sets do not contain as many stamps as the tobacco. They run from ½ oz. to 20 pounds.

This covers mainly the stamps for Beer and for Tobacco in its various forms, but there are several single stamps and short sets such as Customs, Exportation, Im-

I will not attempt to give an outline of the Liquor, Butter and Oleomargarine stamps here, but may take it up for you sometime in the future.

A small list issued by the Springfield Stamp Club deals very nicely with the beer stamps and the small stamps for small cigars, cigarettes and snuff, it also contains a good list of the hydrometer labels, lock seals and cancellations on Gt. Britain and French stamps. It is very handy to use as a guide to mount your collection. Price 15c from any of its members.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centres. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—A live stamp club has been organized by a number of boys in the vicinity of Prospect Park, Brooklyn. We are indebted to L. H. Newman for this item of news.

—Receipt of clippings is acknowledged with thanks from S. P. Barnett, Kenneth Caldwell (2), George L. Toppan, James N. Porter (2), John A. Solomon, James M. Porter, J. E. Douglass (3), and Wm. Hamilton, Jr.

—P. M. Wolsieffer, Chicago, has announced that he will not accept under any conditions a third term as sales superintendent of the American Philatelic Association, and in order to relieve the embarrassment of prospective candidates for this important position on the score of any feeling of friendliness to the department under its present management, he makes this early proclamation of his unalterable intention. Mr. Wolsieffer will have served two years upon the completion of his present term, and he has been compelled to devote so liberal space of time to the department that he has had to neglect business interests more personally vital to attend properly to the details of the department, with its present volume of business. So, as a matter of business policy, Mr. Wolsieffer, after two years' of faithful service, retires from the sales superintendency.

—"Enclosed find check for $1.00 for two years' sub. I get full value for my money out of every copy of your able paper. If the food manufacturers could get a paper that would create an appetite for their foods such as your paper does for stamps they would make their fortune. Every issue of MEKEEL'S drags out some of my hard earned cash in the purchase of some of the bargains listed, and I always am satisfied at the way I am treated. It has been a source of wonder to me that all of the cash I have sent away has always been accounted for and full value given. It must be that stamp men are more honest than others." —A. C. FERNALD.

—France was the subject for the last meeting of the Columbus Collector's Club. A paper was read by C. B. Duffy illustrated with a display of stamps. An auction sale of stamps was also held. The subject for the next meeting will be Peru.

—A preliminary meeting was recently held in this city for the purpose of organizing a society for the study of envelopes. A permanent organization will shortly be effected.

—Charles S. Smack, editor of the Western Trail, a publication of the Rock Island Railroad, has been granted a six months' leave of absence from Chicago, beginning May 1st. Business cares were weighing upon Mr. Smack so heavily that it became necessary that he experience a season of rest and recuperation, and he will spend a half year in the southwest. Mr. Smack will retain his fine specialized collections of different countries, with a possible exception, or two.

—We have received the M. P. A. year book for 1907. It is neatly arranged and well printed, making a very handy pamphlet, especially as it contains a list of the members of the association.

—At the meeting of the Chicago Branch One, American Philatelic Association, held April 11th, the ticket in nomination by the Branch was completed with the names of J. A. Klemann, New York, for International Secretary, and F. R. Cornwall of Missouri for director.

—L. Frieri, formerly of 48 Nassau St., N. Y. City, has removed to 39 Broad, where he will be pleased to meet his many patrons and friends.

—The catalog of Wolsieffer's 78th sale is at hand. A general line is offered from the collection of Dr. Henry C. Pope of Birmingham, Ala.

—"The members of the American Philatelic Association here in Denver propose to organize a Colorado Branch of our national association. No less than twenty have already signified their intention of joining, and at a meeting just held for the purpose of making the necessary arrangements a ticket identical with that before nominated by the N. E. Branch was placed in the field."—O. K. CARSTARPHEN.

—Commander Enrico Santoro, who recently died at Constantinople, has bequeathed his stamp collection, a very valuable one by the way, to the museum at Palermo, his native city.

—The annual medal of the Philatelic Club of Berlin has just been awarded to M. Hanciau of Brussels, for many years the assistant of M. Moens, the eminent philatelist. Mr. Hanciau though 72 years of age is still very much interested in philatelic literature and is a frequent contributor to our press.

PHILATELIC PREACHMENT (No. 14).

BY F. R. CORNWALL.

Did you ever notice a child assembling "sliced animals?" A piece of wood with a pretty picture pasted on it, is sliced in irregular shapes, and the trick is to locate and assemble the jumbled pieces into a perfect whole.

Did you ever notice the "children of philately" trying to locate a stamp? Where ignorance of a subject is concerned we are all children. Knowledge begets wisdom, but as there are degrees of knowledge so are there degrees of wisdom. Unfortunately, however, the degree of knowledge is not always in proportion to the degree of wisdom. Some possess little real knowledge, but make a great show of wisdom. Others possess great knowledge but appear unwise. Whether you are wise or otherwise, your bearing or assertions may deceive others into crediting or discrediting you for being what you are not. This may titilate or irritate your vanity, if you are so blessed or cursed, as the case may be. Everyone is expected to live up to the reputation he has made for himself—if it is for wisdom the reckoning will come when he is called upon and cannot answer; if it is for ignorance, he will never be called upon. As between the two, to assume much and know little is worse than knowing much and assuming little. Modesty may account for the apparent ignorance of the wise man, but more forceful language is necessary to probe the motives of the ignoramus.

I do not advocate a rush of language merely because you know something. Knowledge, in philately, consists largely of what others know, or can learn without much trouble. The late Speaker, Thomas B. Reed, accused one of the Representatives of subtracting from the sum total of human knowledge every time he opened his mouth.

True wisdom consists of knowledge not commonly possessed by others. It is acquired by hard work and study, by leaving the highways where traveling is easy, and investigating the byways. Dig, dig, dig, and then some more. Sometimes a good lead turns out to be a false vein—but the richest paying mines are generally hidden from public gaze, and are only discovered by going after them. Sometimes by accident the work is easy, other times hard. In the former case the reward is less appreciated than in the latter. Study your stamps. Prospected fields often yield rich returns, though you dig in the same hole, but deeper, than your predecessor, or to one side. But dig. Even if you do dig in the same hole you will learn what similar labor in the same place taught your predecessor.

BURGER & CO., 90 NASSAU STREET, NEW YORK

NEW DUTCH "ANTI-TUBERCULOSIS" STAMPS.

The "White Man's Scourge," tuberculosis, is receiving more and more attention, not only from the medical profession, who have yet to find a specific that shall nullify its ravages upon the human system and effect a cure, but also from municipal and state authorities, who wish to segregate the unfortunates afflicted with the dread disease in order to prevent contagion, and to render living conditions in the slums and tenement districts more healthful so that dirt and darkness may not combine to form breeding places for the deadly microbes.

Many foreign governments have lately given the public an opportunity of aiding in this and other charitable objects by issuing special stamps—sometimes good for postage, sometimes not—the proceeds of the sale, or at least a portion of them, being devoted to the charity specified. The Prince of Wales Hospital Fund labels may be remembered; the Russian stamps which were sold for one value, but good for postage for a lower one, the difference going to a fund for the widows and orphans of the late war; the large New South Wales Consumptive's Home posters, sold at a shilling and half-a-crown, but good for postage only at a penny and twopence-halfpenny respectively; and recently several sets of stamps for various charities in which the Queen of Roumania is interested may be mentioned.

The latest issue of this kind hails from Holland, whose government has been interested in the success attending the efforts of France and Germany to spread a knowledge of proper hygienic conditions to prevent the spread of consumption, and to combat the disease in its early stages by the open air treatment and proper dietetic observance. The Dutch government has determined to take up a similar work and is building large sanitariums. Queen Wilhelmina has instituted a fund for this purpose, and it was to aid in establishing it that the stamps under discussion were issued on the 23rd of December last, and remained good for postage until the 31st of January of this year.

They are of a very neat and appropriate design, the royal arms occupying the center above the expressed value, and NEDERLAND beneath. In the frame is the following inscription:—"Amsterdam Society for the Prevention of Tuberculosis." The four corners within the frame are occupied by circles enclosing a symbolic figure in each case: the upper left a sun in splendor, typifying Light; the lower left a fountain representing Water; the upper right a dove in flight, suggesting the Air; and the lower right a spear of wheat, in token of Nourishment. These four requisites are what the afflicted most need, and are thus appropriately adapted to the design. The values of the stamps are 1, 3 and 5 Dutch cents, and as a million of each were printed their total amounts to some $44,000. They were sold at double their face values, so that a like amount was available for the charity in event of their total sale. As a matter of fact some $23,000 was collected from the sale, half of which therefore goes to the beneficiary. The stamps remaining on hand were cancelled and given gratis to the Society for sale to stamp collectors.

PHILIPPINES POSTAGE DUES.

Colonel H. H. Bandholtz, Manila, writes:—"Herewith is a complete and final statement regarding the Philippine due stamps. Stamps sold prior to August 3, 1905, were most of them actually used; those sold subsequent to that date all went to dealers and collectors. Note the small number of 'undestroyed' 3-cent and 30-cent, and comparatively small number of 10-cent and 50-cent."

EDITORIAL.

In the Air—There will be a contest for offices this year in the American Philatelic Association that will stimulate the interest of members in what may be called the political workings of the organization, if the preliminary signals from the opposing camps under whose pennants supporters are already beginning to assemble are not misread. For some years past, as the older members know, a lack of keen enthusiasm in the selection and election of candidates in so far as it dominated all members has been apparent, and in consequence, the balloting has been perfunctory; now, however, a condition of comparative lethargy will yield to one of marked excitement, auguries indicate, and a struggle of worthy opponents for political preferment that will awaken the dormant zeal of members will ensue. Official prestige in an association such as our national body has become is worth contending for; and a lively campaign need not detract from the dignity and lofty philatelic purposes of the association. The members, staunch philatelists as they are, are yet possessed of the very human qualities that generate individual thought and invite amiable rivalry in the choice of leaders; and this is well, as the harmony that results after a battle of sincere convictions is of the most wearing and dependable kind, when intelligence decides the issues.

Unbiased—We view the impending contest with no misgivings, and bespeak a fair field and no favor for those who will march under opposing standards. Following its custom for some years past, the WEEKLY will not advance the interests of any of the candidates at the expense of those of an antagonist. This neutrality is befitting a paper that is official journal of the whole association and the policy would be deviated from only in the event that the welfare of the association was threatened by the aspirations of the unscrupulous and the unfit. To seriously consider the contingency would be a reflection on the intelligent motives of the members and so the necessity for partiality to be shown is most unlikely to arise. In this connection, it should be said that the WEEKLY will not act as the vehicle for the advancement of principles proclaimed by the different political parties, in its reading columns. The intent of the following excerpt from Section 3, Article IV. of the By-Laws of the American Philatelic Association defining the duties of the secretary is to curb undue license on the part of members who are moved to express themselves in print on political subjects and to allow only orderly discussion of questions on which there is a division of opinion: "He shall, under the supervision of the President, edit the official matter published in the Official Journal; provided, that if there shall be a disagreement between the President and Secretary as to the advisability of the publication of any matter, said matter shall be submitted to the Board of Directors."

* * *

In Commemoration—Next week, a special number of this paper will be issued to celebrate the attainment of the thousand mark in the membership of the American Philatelic Association. No more appropriate occasion could be conceived for the exploitation of the now mighty corporation whose affairs latterly have been conducted in a manner to merit the admiration of all who have an intimate knowledge of its workings. It is not alone in numerical growth that the association has thrived; it has progressed in different other ways under capable leadership until it stands a most deserving recipient of the heaping measure of praise that the special number to be issued next week will carry.

Difference of View—Editorially, in the issue of March 30th, a letter appeared in which explanation was made accounting for the dismissal from the catalogue of the die varieties of certain United States envelopes. Mr. Bartels and Mr. Berthold have sent communications to us based on the remarks that were published in this column in the issue in question; and their letters will be read with interest elsewhere in this number. Mr. Bartels in his communication alleges that there is an inconsistency between certain remarks of our correspondent and an editorial observation; but we do not see how his contention can be substantiated. In the closing editorial, we wrote as Mr. Bartels says: "The attention given United States envelopes on this occasion is a tribute to the fascinations carried by these varieties which constitute one of the most engaging and entrancing philatelic studies." This is an observation that is intended to be general in its application; it was the wish to convey an idea of the attractions of United States as a class and the words as printed merely say as much. If there was a vagueness about our expression that invited an inference contrary to the statement of the sentence, we are at fault; but Mr. Bartels' letter consists of something more than his reference to what was said by us.

A Tribute to the Departed—We have to record, and with keen regret, the passing of an old friend and mentor, the American Journal of Philately. With the completion of its nineteenth volume, the discontinuance of the publication is announced; for nearly a score of years it has paid its monthly visit to the gratification of a discriminating circle of readers. The fame of the publication is based not alone on its achievements during the past nineteen years, but its name had an added significance by reason of its having been that carried by one of the pioneer philatelic journals of America, the American Journal of Philately, first series. The American Journal of Philately was the one monthly philatelic paper in America that the serious collector was likely to find indispensable, at least, theoretically. It was a sound and substantial exponent of philately in its dignified aspect; while its contents were palatable, yet the pabulum was heavy in the estimation of those whose attention to stamps was not an absorbing one. In view of the exalted philatelic character, it did not become popular in the sense that it appealed to the ordinary collector. It was an artistic success, but not a financial one; the publishers, the Scott Stamp & Coin Company, say that the "journal from the beginning, has always been published at a considerable annual loss." The publication of the paper at a loss merely to conserve the best philatelic sentiment was a creditable undertaking, which was maintained until the publishing firm could not fairly devote the time for the proper production of the paper, particularly since the advent of the company's Monthly Circular. Unexpired subscriptions are to be credited or money will be refunded, as desired. If the American Journal of Philately had to enter its period of rest, it may repose in the consciousness of work well done.

Watch Us Grow—Recently, the government closely attended to a survey of the United States and its possessions, and it has been found that the United States may stretch itself somewhat, as there is more room at its disposal than it had been thought there was, heretofore. An addition of 1118 square miles has been made through "checking up old charts and records in an effort to reconcile disagreements between the various departments which have to do with our geography." The officially corrected figures are: United States, proper, 3,026,789 square miles; Alaska, 590,664; Guam, 210; Hawaii, 6,449; Canal Zone, 474; Philippine Islands, 115,026; Porto Rico, 3,435; Tutuila Group, Samoa, 77, making an aggregate of 3,743,344 square miles.

BURGER & CO. REMOVAL.

As will be seen elsewhere the firm of Burger & Co., of 53 Nassau St., has removed to the Armeny Bldg., 90 Nassau St., corner Fulton. For twenty-one years this firm has been in business on Nassau St., and has handled many rare and valuable stamps during that time. In their new quarters they will be even better situated than they have been in the past, and the friends of the firm are cordially invited to call and get acquainted. The firm says "The WEEKLY is the best salesman we have tried." This is a testimonial the WEEKLY often hears, and it pleases us to know that our efforts to secure patronage are proving so successful. We invite our readers' attention to the firm's announcement in this issue.

Lot of Filled Approval Sheets
FOR DEALERS

A lot of filled approval sheets all in perfect order and all ready to send out. The sheets contain 50 stamps each, priced according to catalogue and running as high as 25 cents and over that. Here and there a 35c, 50c stamp. There are about from 30 to 40 sheets in the lot and contain large variety. Stamps both used and unused, no U. S., no cut envelopes, no postal cards. A very fine lot for anyone doing an approval sheet business, as you can send them out the day you get them. Have never been folded nor soiled in any way. This lot of sheets price up to $70.00, and they usually run a little over that but not below. Price $6.75. You can give 50%, 60%, 75% or even 80% discount and still more than double your money.

This is a great bargain and almost every order has been duplicated or trebled in a very short time. [H
